LA School Adds New 4-Year Curriculum

A new four-year curriculum in labor-management relations, specifically designed to meet the needs of Pennsylvania business and industry, was announced on June 1 at the College by James Milholland, acting president.

Labor leaders and managerial personnel from all parts of the State co-operated with College officials in a two-year preliminary study of the best combination of courses for students seeking careers in this field.

"The result," President Milholland explains, "is a curriculum built to practical specification supplied by management and labor. It will not turn out finished experts on labor-management relations, but it will provide young men and women with a sound educational foundation for such a career."

To receive a degree in this curriculum, students are expected to obtain practical experience by working in some business or industry for a total of at least three months before completing their senior year. Graduates of the curriculum will seek careers in some phase of labor-management relations with industry, with labor unions, with government agencies, or as teachers.

Although the curriculum will be offered by the School of Liberal Arts and lead to a bachelor of arts degree, it will be administered by an inter-school committee. Dr. Ben Euwema, dean of

Construction About Campus Nears Finish

Major construction work on the campus is progressing nearly according to schedule except for minor delays due to adverse weather and a major tie-up due to the carpenter strike report George W. Ebert, director of the department of Physical Plant, and H. O. Meynor, director of construction for the Commonwealth.

The College building program and that of the Commonwealth are separate items since state appropriations are not made for financing construction for commercialized purposes.

The College's program includes the Navy water tunnel, Foods building, Men's dormitories and dining hall, the storm sewer, and erection of new stands and dressing rooms at New Beaver Field. The Commonwealth project now in force will be concluded with the completion of the Plant Industries building, Willard Hall, the Mineral Science building, and work at the power plant.

The new Foods building, located across N. Atherton street directly above the Greyhound Post House, requires only minor interior finishing for completion. Work is now at a standstill await-

Soloist To Open Summer Session

Evelyn MacGregor, familiar to radio listeners as featured soloist on the American Album of Familiar Music, American Melody Hour, and Waltz Time, will open the 1949 Summer Artists Series in Schwab Auditorium, July 6.

For several years Miss MacGregor was soloist with orchestra leader Andre Kostelanetz. She was introduced into radio by Frank Hummert, head of one of the largest program agencies.

For this summer's concert tour, Miss MacGregor's program will include at least one operatic aria and a number of her favorite ballads which she has sung in her radio appearances. Her program will be listed in the next issue of Summer Collegian.

Other artists to appear in the Summer Artists Series are the Ambassador Quartet and Swiss Bell Ringers, July 12; La Meri and her dance ensemble, July 20; and the Ebonaires, July 28.

Tickets for the series, priced at $2.40, can be purchased in 104 Burrows. All seats are reserved.

Windcrest Borough Elects Officials

The Borough of Windcrest, the trailer village occupied by about 300 veterans' families, on East campus, recently elected the following officials:

Burgess, Theodore Gilbert; council members, Paul Achenbach, David Christ, Marion Deppen, Letty Kechman, Kathleen Kidder, Tomas Lauderdale and George Wolff.

Newly elected directors of the Co-op board are Paul Achenbach, David Christ, Harry Rauch, Kenneth Rhodes, George Smith, Steven Szumski, and George Taylor.

Orchestra To Play

Music for the dance, to be held in the gymnasium, will be provided by Don Peeble's Orchestra from Harrisburg. Other activities planned by the committee include bridge and table games.

Flowers and greens will dominate the decorations, of which Edward Mattil is chairman, and the gymnasium will be adorned with balloons and cut-outs.

Guests will be received in the Play Room in the east end of the building by Acting President and Mrs. James Milholland, Dean and Mrs. M. R. Trabue, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Weaver, Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Kern, Dean Pearl O. Weston, and Dean and Mrs. A. E. Wannock. Refreshments will be served in 105, in the west end of the building.

Parking Facilities

Since parking facilities are limited in this area of the campus, the committee desires that automobile traffic be reduced to a minimum. The nearest large parking lot is located to the rear of Osmond Laboratory.

Committee members planning the program are Miss Haidt, Mrs. Trabue, Miss Amy Gardner, Miss Ellamae Jackson, Mrs. George Free, John E. Miller, Clarence Sykes, and W. K. Reed.

Actors To Open 'Golden Boy'

Town and Nine, Centre County's summer theater group, will open the third week of their season on July 4, with the production of "Golden Boy" by Clifford Odets.

Directed by Portman Paget, the play stars James Ambardos as Golden Boy Joe Bonaparte, whose struggle between the artistic and materialistic elements of his soul is the central theme of the work.

Concerned with prizefighting, the play features Francine Toll as Lorna Moone, the girl friend of Joe's manager and the girl with whom he falls in love; Eddie McCoy as Mr. Bonaparte, Joe's father; Jane Stauss as Anna, Joe's sister; Dick Frontman as Fuselli, a gangster interested in cutting in as Joe shows promise as a fighter; Walt Eckley as Tom Moody, Joe's manager; and Frank Fatsie as Tokio, Moody's trainer. The element of struggle in the play reflects Odets' idea that life is all a kind of fight.

This play was originally produced by the Group Theater in New York, an experimental organization which has produced such actors as John Garfield. This is the first time the play has been given in arena production. Town and Nine will stage it with a functional set and special lighting effects.

Reservations are now being accepted, and may be obtained by calling the box office.

PSCA Sponsors 'Summer Shindig'

PSCA will sponsor an informal mixer in 304 Old Main starting at 7:30 tonight. The party is being held in order to give summer students an opportunity to get acquainted.

The evening's entertainment will begin with group singing followed by a musical mixer and relays. Square dancing will fill the remainder of the evening with Ed Wetherald serving as caller.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Unsafe Trailer Removal Starts

Work on dismantling unsafe trailers in Windcrest has started and about 50 of the units will be removed before the opening of the Fall semester.

Russell E. Clark, director of housing at the College, explained that an inspection of all trailers in the area has revealed a large number have rotten and sagging floors, and damaged roofs and walls, and are beyond repair.

Many others are in bad shape, but it is hoped that by utilizing parts salvaged from the worst trailers, these can be continued in use through the next winter. Many of the trailers are 10 years old, having been used for defense housing before they were brought to the campus four years ago. Some of them were hauled from the East coast to Kansas and then returned to the East coast.

Clark explained that the work started this summer would mark the beginning of the end of the camp. As trailers become unsafe, and hazards to the health of the veterans and their families occupying them, they will be gradually removed. He explained that the removals would be handled in a systematic manner, but with due regard for the needs of the families living there. It is expected that the village, established in 1945 to fulfill the promises of the College to veterans who interrupted their college work to serve in the armed forces, will be disbanded by June, 1951.

Juba Urges Safety

John R. Juba, chief of the State College police department, asks summer school students to co-operate in observing parking and traffic regulations. Many drivers who are new in the town may not be well acquainted with these rules and it is important for both newcomers and drivers who are familiar with the regulations to follow them.
