

Gridders Clash With Villanova

By Bob Kotzbauer

A battle of hard-smacking, driving fullbacks will be the feature attraction at New Beaver Field tomorrow when the Villanova Wildcat invades the lair of the Nittany Lion to open the 1949 Penn State grid schedule.

Out of the 60-minute smoke and fury may come a potential "fullback of the East." Providing he has worked the soreness out of a pulled thigh muscle, Fran Rogel, already named as possible Eastern star at the plunging spot, will be carrying the mail or the Bedenkmen. The Wildcats will throw two buckers, Ralph Pasquariello and Pete D'Alonzo, into the line to prove that State has no monopoly on power.

Rogel, Penn State's leading ground gainer for two successive years and scoring leader with seven touchdowns last season, has recovered sufficiently from the leg injury to be used for limited service. Bedenk plans to use the five-foot, ten-inch, 195 pound senior for offensive duties only.

That students do not try to go to the Villanova game via automobile was urged last night by Harold R. Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics. He declared, "The huge crowd expected in addition to the student body will certainly place a strain on parking facilities. Students' walking instead of riding will ease the situation immeasurably."

He also pointed out that although students will be admitted to the field through the main gate, they should instead use the Allen Street entrance, located along the baseball field behind the library. That entrance is closer to their east and north-stand seats.

comparing to the great Bronco Nagurski of Chicago Bear fame. D'Alonzo, shorter at five-foot, ten-inches, and weighing 200, is the same hard driver though half a-step slower in the flat.

Leonard, coming to Villanova for his first year after coaching experience with the Pittsburgh Steelers, will not pin his hopes entirely on power, however. Half-backs Joe Rogers and Johnny Geppi are speed-personified, and quarterback veteran Steve Romanik, directing the Wildcat "T" and winged "T" is a sterling passer. Also slated for running duty is Mickey Frinzi, a scourge on the outside.

Rogel

State's Fran Rogel, though heavily relied upon in this his third season, is promised relief this season against opponent's habits of packing the line to meet his charges. Head Coach Joe Bedenk has instituted a "T" formation for the Nittanians. This season the Lions will line up in the "T", and can run from that formation or shift to the orthodox single wing, or single wing with a flanker wide. The system is

HST Hopeful Of Settling Steel Strike

Truce Extension Given As Reason

WASHINGTON — President Truman said that things look very hopeful for a settlement of the steel dispute. He explained that he bases that opinion on the latest agreement to extend the strike truce until October 1 and on the resumption of direct negotiations.

UMW Under Suit

WASHINGTON — A Pennsylvania coal miner filed suit in Federal Court asking an accurate accounting of money spent by trustees of the United Mine Workers' Welfare Fund. The suit was brought by G. H. Livengood. He claimed that welfare and disability benefits have been paid to miners ineligible to receive them.

Delegate Raps Russia

LAKE SUCCESS—The Chinese delegate to the UN General Assembly accused Russia of helping the Chinese Communists. He pleaded with the UN to do something, but didn't say what. What everybody noted most of all, however, was that our Secretary of State and the leading foreign representatives stayed away from

The Nittany Lion Roars

FOR Genial Joe Bedenk, esteemed Nittanyman now embarking on his first campaign as head football skipper.

This rocky road the schedule makers have hewn, but Lion followers are pulling for the husky, gray-haired mentor to beat the odds and lead his eleven to the same prominence as that attained by his '49 baseball team.

And the Lion is pulling too.

Lion Shrine Painted; 'V' Burned on Field

The Nittany Lion Shrine in front of Rec Hall received its annual coat of paint early this year.

Captain Philip Mark, head of the campus patrol, reported that a covering of bluish-white paint was applied to Penn State's traditional symbol "sometime after 4 a.m. yesterday."

In addition, a 15-foot "V" was burned into the New Beaver Field grass in front of the East stands at about the 50-yard line. This would place the initial almost directly in front of the bench the visiting Villanova football team will occupy for tomorrow's grid contest.

The vandals also attempted to paint the word "Villanova" across the inside of the ticket booths facing Rec Hall but in the words of Capt. Mark, "they ran out of booths."

No Clues

No clues to the identity of the culprits could be found.

Only evidence left at the scene of the crime was an empty can near the Shrine and a partially-filled jug of gasoline on New Beaver Field. It is believed the gasoline was used to burn the "V" into the turf.

Fortunately the paint used on the shrine and ticket booths was of a washable variety and already the traces of the painting have been erased.

Workmen on their way to complete installation of the New Beaver Field stands discovered the painting early yesterday morning.

The night watchman who guards the field reported that he had neither seen nor heard anything suspicious until 4 a.m., the hour at which he goes off the job. This led Capt. Mark to speculate that the painting had been committed after that time.

May Be Work of Locals

Mark, although he admittedly has no clues to the identity of the vandals, believes the painting and burning was perhaps the act of a local group rather than that of Villanova students.

"This is the first time it was ever painted so early in the week," the campus patrol chief said. "Normally any painting of the Lion is done on Friday night so that game-goers can view the

New Students Hear Leaders At Orientation Meeting

New students at the College were given an explanation of the major fields of activity on campus by student leaders at a meeting sponsored by All-College Cabinet in Rec Hall Wednesday evening.

Ted Allen, All-College president, welcomed the new students in behalf of the student body and student government.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Joel Fleming who readily put the students at ease with his humorous remarks. Fleming explained forensic and dramatic activities at the College.

Gehrdes

James Gehrdes, president of the Athletic Association, pointed out that the College is carrying on a program of 17 sports, both inter-collegiate and intra-mural, with football, basketball, and baseball considered as major sports.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Peter Giesey welcomed the students on behalf of the fraternal organizations. He explained the operation of the council, which is run on a democratic basis with two representatives from each fraternity.

Panhel Prexy

Dolores Jelacic, president of the Panhellenic Council, gave a brief resume of the activities of the council. She also explained that the council is the governing body of the 19 sororities on campus and is composed of two representatives from each.

All-College Mixer

Newcomers to the Penn State campus will be given an excellent opportunity to meet on an informal, social plane at the All-College mixer to be held at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The affair will be staged on the Osmond Lab parking lot and is sponsored by All-College Cabinet.

Jack Huber and his orchestra will provide the musical entertainment. In case of inclement weather the mixer will be held in the TUB.

Students are reminded of the time and place change from that originally announced in the Orientation Program forms. Harry McMahon, All-College Vice-President and chairman of the Cabinet Orientation Committee will be in charge.

The All-College gathering tomorrow will mark the second such meeting held during Orientation Week, the first being the PSCA affair Thursday night.

Pep Rally Set For 9 Tonight

"Let's get the football team off to a good start by showing our interest at the pep rally," declared Morton Snitzer, co-chairman for arrangement of the event, which is scheduled for 9 p.m. today at the Lion Shrine.

Snitzer urged all freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors on campus to be present tonight. "It's a traditional responsibility of all hatmen, also, to be at the pep rally wearing their hats," he added.

Featuring the rally will be songs and cheers, music by the Blue Band, introduction of several campus personalities, and a personal appearance by the Nittany Lion.

In place of James Milholland, acting president of the College, who will be unable to attend, will be Wilmer E. Kenworthy, assistant to the president in charge of student affairs.

Others to be introduced are Joe Bedenk, head football coach; Frank Patrick and Sever Toretti, assistant football coaches; Negley Norton and Bob Hicks, football co-captains.

College Gears For Record Enrollment

3500 Start Job Today; Upperclassmen Monday

College facilities are geared to the utmost as registration of a record 3500 freshmen, sophomore, and transfer students begins at 8 a.m. today. Members of the two upper classes, numbering about 6500, will register Monday and Tuesday. Classes begin 8 a.m. Wednesday, according to the Time Table.

To complete registration, all students must present matriculation cards at Recreation Building. Cards are available for those students who do not have them at the office of the registrar, 109 Old Main.

Time Limits

Students who are scheduled to register next week must follow the group time listing which appears on Page 3 of the Time Table, which may be seen at all advisers' offices. Students will not be permitted to register with groups other than their own, unless an appearance before the Board of Control in the case of scheduling adjustments makes registration at the appointed time impossible.

If a student must make changes in his schedule, he obtains a form from his adviser or the head of his department and has the form signed and approved. This "Drop-Add" form is presented to the Board of Control, located in the Armory, where departments involved in the change approve or deny the action.

If a desired course is closed, the student reports to his adviser or department head to make a substitution. After the final schedule is approved by the
