

Army, Nebr. Grid Movies Slated Wed.

Movies of the Penn State-Nebraska and Penn State-Army football games will be shown next Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Schwab.

Ray M. Conger, in charge of student recreation for the School of Physical Education and Athletics, yesterday announced the student showing. The event will be sponsored by the Penn State Camera Club.

Football movies in the past two years have attracted overflow crowds to Schwab.

Coaches will give a running account of the movies. Tentative speakers are Frank Patrick, assistant coach, for the Nebraska contest, and James O'Hara, assistant coach, for the Army game.

Plans call for showing other football movies in the following weeks.

Bishop Wicke To Address Alumni, Chapel

As part of the Alumni Homecoming celebration on campus this weekend, the College Chapel will hear Dr. Lloyd C. Wicke, resident bishop of the Methodist Church in the Pittsburgh area.

Special music for the occasion will be presented by the chapel choir under the direction of Willa Taylor, associate professor of music education. The anthem for the service is entitled "Sanctus" and is part of the Requiem Mass by Mozart.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Doctor Wicke spent his undergraduate years at Baldwin-Wallace and later procured his B.D. degree from Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, New Jersey. The Ph. D. degree was conferred upon him at Drew and later in his career his Alma Mater honored him with the Doctor of Divinity degree.

This year Allegheny College presented him with the LL. D. degree at its commencement exercises. In addition to his graduate work at Drew Seminary, Doctor Wicke has pursued post-graduate study at New York University, Yale, Syracuse and Union Seminary.

As a member of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Church, Dr. Wicke served pastorates in New Jersey before his call to Mount Lebanon Methodist Church in Pittsburgh. In 1948 he was further honored by his denomination through his election as Bishop of the Methodist Church assigned to the Pittsburgh area.

New Date Set For MI Opening

Opening of the Mineral Science building, originally to have taken place today, has been tentatively set for November 1, according to a School of Mineral Industries spokesman.

State inspectors are still scrutinizing the building, seeking to eliminate all flaws before the state turns the edifice over to the College.

After the official presentation, all M.I. research and M.I. extension offices will be transferred to the new building.

Money for the new equipment, totaling $5,000, according to a preliminary estimate, has not been appropriated as yet. No equipment from the Mineral Industry building will be used, but records and perhaps 20 per cent of the faculty will be transferred.

After the State releases the building to the care of College, it will be open for inspection, including the museum.

The museum will have five-built-in, self-lighted wall cases. Three in the lobby will depict the three functions of the Mineral Industry School, namely, (1) resident instruction, (2) extension and correspondence instruction, and (3) M.I. research.

Student Patrol Names Officers

Student patrol, which works in conjunction with campus patrol at all student functions, last week named five new officers.

Paul Glenn Harr was elected lieutenant, Tony Corrozza and

Fred Brown, sergeants, and Gordon Hartzell and Walter Gable, corporals.

Squirrel Comfy In Waste Basket

Things were more "squirrelly" than usual in Sparks yesterday afternoon.

A baby squirrel was found on campus by Charles King who was on his way to his afternoon classes. Since King had a lab which lasted all afternoon, he left the tiny animal in a wastebasket in 119 Sparks.

Miss Julia McNutt, a sociology secretary, and Miss Jean Dunlap, a political science secretary, fed the "cute little thing" apples all afternoon. They were kept busy showing off their temporary guest to the many people who stopped in to see him.

King, a third semester chemical engineering student, plans to keep the little fellow for a pet.

Fee Payments Will Continue

A large number of students unable to pay college fees yesterday can make payment this morning from 8:30 to 11:30, Bursar David C. Hogan, Jr., announced last night.

Hogan reported that "about half of the students" were accommodated yesterday in the new Willard Hall office. Nine receiving points were in use but a line of students extended out of the building and along Pollock Road.

The bursar attributed the heavy load to the fact that, although veteran enrollment is dropping, the number of students paying fees has increased at the College.

A $5 late payment fee is assessable but returns this morning will govern the decision as to whether the fee will be enforced Monday, Hogan stated.

Extra Car Area Planned For Game

Parking facilities for those driving to the football game today will be provided behind the beef barn, Phillip Mark, captain of the Campus Patrol, announced yesterday.

The barn is located at Park avenue and Shortlidge road in the northeast corner of the campus. Following the game, only south-bound traffic will be permitted on Burrows road.

"The purpose of this regulation," Capt. Mark explained, "is to avoid traffic jams such as developed after past games."

To lessen the burden on campus traffic and to provide more parking facilities for alumni, students are requested to walk to the game.
