

Polish Student Recalls Camp

 Polish people for every German, he continued, and it was not unusual for 100 Poles to be shot for one underground offensive. In September, 1944, Rosner was sent to Liesing, Austria, a labor camp.

"Every morning, we were taken in trucks to a factory near Vienna, returning at night," he said.

Escaped

In March, 1945, as the Russian offensive became stronger, more and more Nazis left the camp. During the confusion of the last days, Rosner escaped, and after five days arrived in Salzburg.

A short time later, Andrew and his mother were reunited through a friend. However, he has not seen his father since 1944. In 1945, he received word that his father had been arrested by Russia. This has not been verified, however.

"In October, 1945," Rosner continued, "I was sent on a Polish Army scholarship to the University of Innsbruck, where I studied medicine for three years. Through the International Refugee Organization I came to America, where I applied for aid with World Student Service fund."

Arrives At College

He arrived at the College about a month ago, and at the present time is temporarily staying at the Beta Sigma Rho fraternity. The fund set up by IFC will supply room and board for a year, and books. In addition, he will receive a small spending fund.

Andrew Rosner is very grateful to IFC and deeply impressed by the kindness everybody has shown.

"I will become a citizen of the United States," he declares, "and hope to enter the field of medicine after graduation."
