

Filing System To End Dateless Weekends

Along with the many contributions of modern science to the general welfare of man comes a prescription for ending pain and suffering on our own campus.

The disease: dateless weekends! The cure: a filing system devised by PSCA's Personal and Campus Affairs Commission!

Under the proposed program, as outlined by Co-chairman Helen Dreher, each girl on campus would be issued a card on which she would indicate whether she was interested in dating under the system. Provision would be made on the card for designating age, height, major field, and general interests. Top section of the card, containing the name and address, would be detached and assigned a number corresponding to that appearing on the remainder of the card on file for the general male public.

It has been stressed that the plan is not designed to create a "last resort bureau," but to make available a means for men and women on the campus to become acquainted. Contacts made through the system bear no obligation for either party concerned. John Spoofendingle, for example, feels a need for feminine companionship which he has found difficult to satisfy because he is in a course attractive to few of the opposite sex. He locates a card in the file upon which is described a damsel who is five feet four inches tall, 20 years old, a music major, and is interested in bowling, dancing, bridge, and Dixieland.

John is interested and, noting the number of the card, applies for the name and address. A quick call, an introduction, a discussion of mutual interests, and he's all set.

Net result: one budding friendship.

A letter, explaining the proposed plan in detail, is being sent by the commission to leaders of all campus men's and women's organizations, asking their cooperation and support in putting the plan into operation. Suggestions and criticisms of the plan will be gratefully received in the PSCA office, 304 Old Main.

VA Announces Payment Order Of Dividends

Serial Number Digits Determine Distribution

WASHINGTON—The Veterans Administration has announced the order in which the GI Insurance dividends will be paid—and it has nothing to do with the number on the claim card. Payments will be made on the basis of the last three digits of the serial number—whether officer or enlisted man—starting with triple zero. All checks probably will be mailed within a 10-day period early in January.

Ford Cancels Lay-Off

DETROIT—While government conciliators in Washington were setting up more talks with John L. Lewis for next week, the labor picture brightened some what in this motor car capital as the Ford Motor Company cancelled plans to lay-off 100,000 workers.

The Nittany Lion Roars

FOR William Hoffman, ex-registrar of the College, and Julius Kaulfuss, professor of civil engineering, rival candidates for Burgess of State College.

Mr. Hoffman, and Prof. Kaulfuss are waging what is known in political circles as "gentlemanly campaigns." In other words no mention of pipe-smoking grandmothers or horse thieves in the family of either nominee.

Therefore, a gentlemanly purr for Messrs. Hoffman and Kaulfuss, conducting races for office as they should be conducted—on merit.

PSCA Returns Total $2,411.37

With 30 per cent of the returns in from students and faculty, contributions to the Penn State Christian Association fund drive total $2,411.37, Luther Harshbarger, PSCA general secretary announced yesterday.

Since a large number of people have not yet been contacted, Harshbarger said the drive will be extended over the weekend and until Wednesday of next week.

Contributions so far this year compare very favorably with other years, Harshbarger said. Starting next Monday the PSCA will inaugurate a new series of coffee hours and news reviews in the Hugh Beaver Room in Old Main. The first speaker will be Dr. Anthony Luchek, associate professor of economics and head of the labor educational service and extension.

Another new PSCA series will start at 2:30 tomorrow when Rev. Bradford Abernathy will speak on "The Mid-Term Slump" in 304 Old Main.

Rooked! Oldster Loses Close Match

Youth vs. Experience! This was the keynote of an aggressive chess match between a 93-year-old veteran chess player and a college student Wednesday afternoon in the TUB.

This battle of kings, rooks, and pawns was one of a series between 93-year-old U. B. Marr and some of the best players of the Penn State Chess Club. Mr. Marr, father-in-law of Dr. Clarence O. Williams, college examiner, played Richard Cressman, a student and president of Penn State Chess Club.

Fades In Homestretch

Cressman emerged victorious after a well-played game, in which Mr. Marr displayed strokes of brilliant strategy and vast experience. But, after getting out of several tight spots, the old strategist, a former checker champion in Missouri, proved not quite strong enough to meet the pressing game of Cressman. The moves of the match, although definite and forward in nature, were so carefully planned and thought-out that spectators began wondering if the two contestants were still playing or merely taking a rest in between sharp strokes of chess board savvy.

Seeks Matches

Recently Mr. Marr, on a visit from his home in Missouri, came to the TUB in search of some chess players to oppose him in a few matches. The old gentleman presented a challenge to the Penn State Chess Club, which was promptly accepted. He played several matches during the week with some of the best players in the club.

Those from the Chess Club who have already met the cagy nonagenarian readily admit that he is a very good player. One of them even said he would refuse to meet the exceptional Mr. Marr in another match.

Ex-Dean, Prof Run for Office

Two college staff members are campaigning for the position of Burgess of State College without any mud-slinging.

William S. Hoffman, ex-registrar and dean of admissions, and Julius Kaulfuss, professor of civil engineering, are opposing each other with non-political friendliness.

Mr. Hoffman, the Republican candidate, is against the expensive method used in collecting the wage tax, wants better streets, a youth center, more courtesy to visitors, and help in attracting major conventions.

The Democratic candidate, Mr. Kaulfuss, stands for great teamwork between council and the Burgess to eliminate feuding and make for better government and wants more emergency policemen.

However, both men have a high regard for each other. Mr. Kaulfuss says, "I think Bill Hoffman would make a fine Burgess, and shame on me if I don't mean every word of it."

And Mr. Hoffman adds, "I think Julius Kaulfuss would make a fine Burgess, and shame on me if I don't mean every word of it."

Christian Science Lecture

Peter B. Biggins, C.S.B., will present a lecture entitled Christian Science: Its Work and Song, in 121 Sparks, 7:30 Monday.

NSA Also Nominates Officers; To Take Poll on Charity Drive

A State Police escort will be provided for the proposed auto caravan to the Pitt-Penn State football game in Pittsburgh November 19 providing more than 50 cars make the trip, it was disclosed at the National Student Association meeting Thursday night.

Although definite departure time has not been set, it is expected that the caravan will leave State College in the early afternoon on Friday, Nov. 18.

Meanwhile student government representatives at the University of Pittsburgh are trying to arrange housing facilities for Penn State students, Barbara Lehn, member of the caravan committee, announced.

Kappa Nu fraternity will have room for a limited number of students, the committee was informed by the assistant dean of men at Pittsburgh. Other students will have to seek housing in private homes and hotels. A dance following the game is also on the tentative schedule for the big weekend.

Nominate Officers

In other business at the meeting John Doyle, James Dowdy and Otto Grupp were nominated for the position of vice-chairman of the association.

The final election will be held next Thursday, according to Lyn Lapp, who was recently appointed chairman by All-College Cabinet.

Other officer nominations were held for secretary-treasurer and publicity chairman. Nominated for secretary-treasurer were Michael Cantwell, G. G. Fetzer, Mary Fox and Martha Schwing. Publicity chairman nominees were Isobel Greig and Hugo Mandes.

Take Poll

Mary Fox of the Campus Chest committee announced that a student poll will be taken to determine the feasibility of a fund lumping several charities in one drive. Forms requesting student opinions will be distributed at the freshman and sophomore elections on Nov. 15.

She added that upperclassmen will receive these forms through Leonides, the Association of Independent Men, Pan-Hellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council.

Chairman Lapp reported that the opening date of the Student Government Room will be announced by All-College Cabinet next week. honor system.

Women Voters Name Finalists

Final elections of WSGA and WRA freshman and sophomore officers will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday.

Two candidates will vie in each case for the various offices, following yesterday's preliminary balloting in which 647 women voted. Candidates for the WSGA offices are Doris Heister, Joan Lee, and Margaret Schultz, freshman senator; Barbara Clapp and Sally Shoemaker, sophomore senator; and Virginia Miller and Jane Stieber, treasurer.

WRA candidates on the final ballot are Margaret Betts and Genie Deger, sophomore representative; Sally Osmond and Marilyn Williams, secretary-treasurer; and Patricia Frank, Janet Herd, and Mabel Markle for freshman representative. No primary election was held for this last office since the slate contained only three names.

All coeds will be eligible to vote for the secretary-treasurer of WRA and the treasurer of WSGA. However, only members of the candidates respective class will be able to vote for the other offices.

Ballot boxes have been placed in the various dormitories. Freshman women are requested to vote in Atherton Hall; coeds living in McAllister and the cottages vote in McAllister; and all other coeds vote in Simmons Hall.

Voting Excuses

Excuse blanks for students wishing to go home for the Nov. 8 election may be picked up now at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

These blanks, to be signed by the judge of elections in the district where the student votes, are to be honored by the faculty, but only for election day.
