

Health Service --

the Infirmary 24 hours a day (except during regular College vacations), the Health Service can cope with most emergencies requiring medical attention.

However, the health fee does not include calls or treatment in students' rooms by members of the Health Service staff. It is a rare medical emergency that prevents moving a student to the Infirmary by taxi or private auto. But exceptions to this rule may be made by Dr. H. R. Glenn, director of the Health Service, in critical emergencies.

First to receive the ailing student is the Dispensary, or outpatient department, located in 3 Old Main. Here, over 40 per cent of the cases treated are respiratory in nature, but there are a wide variety of other aches and pains to care for.

Dispensary Hours

The Dispensary is open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1:30 to 5 p.m. during weekdays of the regular semesters. Saturday hours are from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. At times other than these, including Sundays and holidays, all patients are cared for in the outpatient department of the Infirmary. Such treatment of non-emergency conditions is conducted from 10 to 11 a.m.

The Infirmary, or College hospital, located at the corner of Pollock and Shortlidge Roads, is the inpatient department. Here, in addition to the 30-bed hospital, are the physical therapy lab, clinical lab, and X-ray department.

Handle Most Medical Cases

The hospital has complete facilities to handle most types of medical cases except those involving major surgery. Cases requiring major surgery, and this includes approximately 25 cases of acute appendicitis each year, are transferred to hospitals of the student's choice. All fractures are set by the hospital staff.

A recent fracture set by the Infirmary staff was suffered by a student who fell from the second story window of a fraternity house. He suffered several broken bones in his foot and was soon moving around with the aid of a walking cast applied at the Infirmary.

Each student patient is entitled to seven days of free treatment in the Infirmary each semester. After expiration of the allotted time, he is charged at the nominal rate of $2.00 for each additional day of confinement.

In addition, the health fee includes the expense of one X-ray if ordered by a member of the medical staff. Not long ago an X-ray was taken of a student's shoulder to determine injuries suffered when he was struck by a gas-powered model airplane. Bad contusions proved to be the extent of the injuries.

Will Double Capacity

Future building plans call for additions to the Infirmary which will almost double the present capacity and provide space for incorporating the Dispensary in the hospital building.

The Health Service not only provides services for students, but also to personnel of any special group or conference visiting the campus. In a recent case, Fullback Ed Clasby, of the Boston College grid squad, who suffered a fractured leg in a pileup on Beaver Field on October 8, was patched up and sent out that night with the rest of the team.

Full detailed information on services offered to the student is set forth in a pamphlet entitled "The College Health Service" available at the Dispensary.

Outstanding Seniors

Charles Beatty

(This is the fifth in a series of articles concerning prominent senior men and women who have proven themselves outstanding in one or more fields of activity at the College.)

By Myrna Tex

"My main goal, ever since I was a child," Charles Beatty, secretary-treasurer of the Athletic Association, said, "has been to defeat Penn in football." This goal was realized last year when Penn State defeated Penn 13-0 at Franklin Field in Philadelphia. "That day was probably the best day in my life, as far as football is concerned," Beatty remarked. If he hadn't been in the way of the Penn back during one play of the game, Penn would have scored a touchdown.

Beatty has played center on the football team for four years.

He was captain of the team during his freshman year at the California State Teachers College. His collegiate activities have not been confined to football, though, as he was president of his freshman class and secretary-treasurer of his sophomore class, which automatically made him a member of the Interclass Finance committee.

Honoraries are also included in Beatty's activities. He belongs to Druids, Farmi Nous, and Phi Epsilon Kappa, the physical education honorary. He is majoring in physical education and hopes to coach a college football team after graduation or, perhaps, play professional ball.

Quakertown is Beatty's home town and he is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He married Martha S. Rapach, a former student at the College, last August.

"I think the much-needed Student Union building will be erected in the not too distant future," Beatty said, "and I feel as many other students do; that the best man to run it is George Donovan, the present head of Student Union and student activities.

"Another innovation I feel the College would profit by is the setting-up of a system whereby the students evaluate faculty members," Beatty pointed out.

"I think the present political arrangement is very satisfactory," he continued. "If any independent or fraternity group would decide to start their own political party, it would endanger the students' governing privileges. It would give College authorities a legitimate reason to step in and assume control of the situations that formerly were in the students' hands."

Secretary Elected

Ruth Mollenhauer was elected as the new secretary of the Agriculture Student Council last night. She will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Patricia Carlisle, who was forced to leave because of a class conflict with the council meetings.

Only basketball will get officially underway at Penn State prior to the Christmas holidays.
