BX Proposal To Trustees Is Postponed

Incomplete Records Necessitate Delay

The proposal for continuance of the student book exchange will not be put before the College board of trustees this week as was previously announced, Robert Gabriel, purchasing agent, said today.

He gave as the reason for this, lack of a complete and accurate financial record and said that the proposal would be presented to the board at a later date.

Gabriel explained that the present accounting system, run by students, was inadequate, and that the BX board of control did not want to submit an incomplete report to the College board of trustees. They feel that merely a report on the approximate business of the BX during the past year would not be satisfactory.

New System

The BX will soon have an entirely new accounting procedure, Gabriel said. This new system will have a faculty advisor and will be designed to eliminate any incomplete reports on the business done at the BX. This system will have its report ready in time for the meeting of the board of trustees to be held here March 30, and the proposals for permanent operation of the BX will be presented at that time.

Gabriel and Richard Schweiker, chairman of the exchange board of control, had intended to present this proposal at the annual meeting of the College board of trustees at Harrisburg Saturday. They were to request permission for permanent operation of the store, and to seek a better and larger location for the BX, now located at the TUB.

Psychology Club

Newly elected officers for the Psychology Club are Edward Mazeika, president; John Pastovic, vice-president; Naomi Wimpenny, secretary; George Brehmen, treasurer.

Conflict Schedule

The schedule for conflict final examinations has been released by Ray Watkins, College scheduling officer, and appears on page 6 of today's issue of the Daily Collegian.

Students who have not already made out applications to take the conflict exams will not be allowed to do so. The schedule is for students who originally had more than two exams scheduled on the same day.

Sonja Tilles and Charley Williams appear in a dramatic scene from "Liliom," Players show which opened at Schwab Auditorium last night.

'Liliom' Well-Acted, Colorful Fantasy

By DEANIE KREBS

Players added another successful production to their repertoire when "Liliom" opened for a three night run at Schwab Auditorium last night.

The legend which the group made very enjoyable, is a character study, with a touch of fantasy, of Liliom, (Charles Williams); a young man who is out of harmony with his environment. He is untrained and can earn his living only as a barker at a carousel. When he marries Julie, a servant girl, (Sonja Tilles) the owner of the carousel (Geraldine Kassab) fires him in a jealous rage.

Julie's aunt grudgingly allows the couple to live with her for Liliom is unwilling to do any work that he is capable of and unable to do any he likes to do.

His wife's tears make him miserable, but being different from most men, he reacts by hitting her. Finally learning that she is expecting a child, he plans a robbery with a disreputable friend, Fiscur (Tony Bowen). The robbery fails, and rather than be captured Liliom commits suicide. He is brought before a heavenly tribunal and 16 years later is returned to earth to do one good deed for his salvation. The end of the play is particularly effective.

Charles Williams in the title role is excellent. The part calls for a forceful character to whom the rest of the cast is subordinate, and Williams successfully manages to be brutal but likeable. The only flaw in his acting is his annoying habit of defying the law of gravity when he swaggers. He constantly leans backward and that detracts from his otherwise good characterization.

Sonja Tilles as Julie is adequate. Her performance is not outstanding but neither is her role. Julie is a sweet, simple servant without much individuality who can't help but love Liliom. Miss Tilles does a fair job of portraying her.

Cabinet Requests Date Switch Because of Athletic Schedule

By STAN DEGLER

All-College Cabinet last night approved a motion to send a letter to Royal Gerhardt, dean of admissions, to change registration dates from Feb. 10 and 11 to Feb. 13 and 14, or if that is impossible to Feb. 9 and 10.

Thomas Morgan, Daily Collegian editor, made the proposal because the dates set for registration conflict with four intercollegiate sports events scheduled for Recreation Hall the same day.

Trustees Hold Annual Meeting In Harrisburg

The board of trustees of the College will hold its annual meeting in Harrisburg today and tomorrow.

The major question confronting them will be that of a permanent president for the College.

It was not certain yesterday whether the question would be brought up, but James Milholland, acting president, said that he thought it probably would be discussed because it has been uppermost in the minds of the trustees for some time.

He could not say whether any action on the question probably would be taken.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the president, said recently that he could not conceive of a board meeting being held at which the question was not at least discussed.

Milholland arrived here yesterday and was at work during the afternoon, conferring with members of the administration and preparing for the two-day meeting. He, Kenworthy and other administrative heads are expected to leave for the meeting this morning.

Karhan To Lead Sunday Concert

Theodore Karhan, assistant professor of music and music education, will conduct the College symphony orchestra in the opening concert of the semester in Schwab Auditorium at 3 p.m. Sunday.

This is the first in a series of concerts to be presented by College musical organizations. The Concert Blue Band and the College Choir will each give several concerts next semester.

In past years the symphony orchestra has presented only one concert, in the Spring. Plans have been made this year, however, to give Sunday's concert in addition to the regular one.

PSCA Plans Date Bureau Operations

Basic plans have been formulated to give Joe College and Janie Coed, who have similar interests, the opportunity to meet. How can this be done on such a large campus? The answer to this is the Penn State Christian Association's date bureau, which will go into effect next semester.

The idea has been under consideration for some time at the College, and date bureaus are now in operation at Carnegie Tech. and other schools throughout the nation. PSCA member Helen Dreher heads a committee, consisting of members from various school organizations. The committee is studying all the aspects of operating such a bureau.

Meet Other Sex

Primarily the date bureau will give students, whose curricula offer no opportunity to meet members of the opposite sex, just such opportunity. In order to organize the bureau, it will be necessary for each girl who wishes to participate to fill out a file card, giving her name and other pertinent data plus detailed information on her interests. These cards will be distributed and collected through house meetings in the dormitories, and then filed at the PSCA office. File cards will contain such interests as sports, topics of conversation, dancing (all types), hiking, movies, art, politics, bull sessions, and anything else the girls may care to add. The cards will then be available to the well-meaning lads who desire to meet a girl with similar interests.

No Photos

his particular interests until he finds a card that interests him. The number is then taken to the person in charge, who will then tell him her name, address, and phone number. The similar interests will be his excuse for calling her even though they have never been introduced. Photos will not be included on the file cards. The cost involved, among other things, prohibits their use.

"It is the opinion of many people who have worked on the project that the boy calling the girl for the first time should make a completely informal basis. It should also be understood that no one is obligated to make a date because she has her name on file," stated Bill Brown, who is in charge of publicity for the bureau.

The Nittany Lion Roars

FOR Marty Costa, the tall, lean lad who's making basketball coach Elmer Gross's life just a little bit brighter these days.

Costa, the proverbial ugly duckling of last year's squad, has turned the fans' jeers into cheers with his hoop wizardry. Wednesday night at Rec Hall he really made their eyes pop by sending 32 points swishing through the net.

To a game guy who has demonstrated he has what it takes, an obelisk-shaking roar from the Lion.
