'Kicked Out'

James MacCallum

Treas. Ousted, Fails To Pay

Things have "come to a pretty pass" when the All-College secretary-treasurer is summarily kicked out of College because he didn't pay his fees. This astounding fact was unearthed yesterday by an overzealous Collegian reporter. The non-paying culprit, of course, is James MacCallum, who handles thousands of dollars of student funds in his role of All-College secretary-treasurer. So he should feel rich even if he isn't.

Yet in MacCallum's mail recently came this doleful message from Royal M. Gerhardt, dean of admissions and registrar: "It is my duty to inform you that... you are hereby dropped as of this date from the Pennsylvania State College for non-payment of financial obligations..." By some means MacCallum managed to pay his overdue fees and be reinstated the next day. Somehow MacCallum's sparse personal finances seem to refute Tribunal Head Robert Keller's recent joking comment in All-College Cabinet. "There's a rumor that MacCallum has bought three new suits out of Cabinet funds and whisked the action right through Cabinet without an eye-blink!"

WSSF To Begin Annual Drive

With James Balog and Helen Dreher as co-chairman, the campus World Student Service Fund has begun preparation for its annual drive the week of Feb. 27—Mar. 4. A goal of $5000 has been set.

Other committee officers and chairmen are Janet Rosen, secretary; Ted Horner, treasurer; Al von Arx, Pelton Wheeler, Lynn Lapp, solicitations; Jane Kelley and William King, publicity; and Francis Fatsie and Sue Halperin, special events.

The World Student Service Fund, which campaigns annually in American colleges for funds to aid universities abroad, is the only national agency organized for this purpose, stated Jane Kelley, publicity co-chairman.

It serves in Europe and Asia without discrimination as to race, politics or religion, she added. Aid given falls into five major categories: food, clothing, medical aid, books, housing. The fund also encourages and supports student self-help projects in countries where it operated.

Detailed plans for the drive will be announced later.

Exile, Gun Totin' Woman Escort Traveling Prof

By LYNN WILSON

A fleeing political refugee and a young lady smuggling a Colt revolver through customs officials were among the traveling companions of Dr. William H. Gray on his recent South American tour. Dr. Gray, professor of Latin American history at the College, returned last Friday from a five-month trip through 17 of the 20 South American countries.

A fleeing political refugee shared the train compartment with Dr. Gray on one of his trips and he had an excellent opportunity to study South American politics first hand. The man was head of the revolutionary party in that country and had been forced to flee.

Leaves Gun

Perhaps his greatest surprise, Dr. Gray said, occurred when the young lady next to him tossed a Colt revolver in his lap when she got out of the car in which they had been traveling. Dr. Gray slid the gun under the seat, and when she returned from having had her purse inspected by customs officials, she said, "In this country a girl has to go prepared."

Much of Dr. Gray's time in South America was spent tracing original letters and manuscripts pertaining to his research project. "The interview between Bolivar and San Martin of Guayaquil," Dr. Gray made a previous trip to Columbia and Ecuador in 1946 and has now completed most of his research.

Dr. Gray's sabbatical leave will expire next month and he will resume classes at the beginning of the semester.

plants have been converted to such things as fertilizer plants, although some light manufacturing is permitted. Textiles and ing is permitted. Textile and silk production are vital if Japan is to regain her economic feet, he says. Japanese industrial leaders believe.

"The Japanese look upon the United States as a benefactor. This is an opportunity on which we should not fail to capitalize," he says.

"In the event of trouble with Russia, Japan could act as a buffer."

Wilson Views Jap Occupation As Dangerous

By MARVIN KRASNANSKY

Military control in Japan must come to an end now if the United States does not wish to endanger the success of its program of rehabilitation.

This is the opinion of Dean of Men H. K. Wilson, who spent 1947 in Japan as an adviser on agricultural matters for the Army of Occupation. Dean Wilson was vice-dean of agriculture until this semester.

"I think General MacArthur has done a fine job," Dean Wilson says. "He has an understanding of the Japanese way of thinking, but I think that the next step is to have the Japanese assume leadership and responsibility under civilian supervision."

Military Control

This does not mean, Dean Wilson is quick to point out, that we should withdraw our troops from Japan. It does mean, however, that the Japanese should be allowed to handle their own government affairs with counseling by the Department of State.

"At present we maintain a military dictatorship in Japan," the former adviser to MacArthur contends. "The question that must be answered is 'How much longer should we allow that to continue?' Further military control will endanger our program."

Ultimate Goal

"Our ultimate goal is self-government, yet military government is training young people in dictatorship. I would like to see us exemplify democracy."

Dean Wilson believes that it will take a generation before the Japanese are ready for complete self-government. He hopes that the United States does not get the economy idea and withdraw too soon.

The economy of Japan is being well-handled, Dean Wilson thinks. He does, however, see a need for putting the Japanese on their own feet so that they will not always be dependent on the United States for economic assistance.

Silk Production

No heavy industry is being allowed, Dean Wilson says. War
