Gymnasts ---

STRONGEST

Probably the strongest event will be the rope climb where Wettstone is expecting big things from senior Lee Perna, the number one man. Perna, Wettstone says, is capable of a time under four seconds. He would have been a big help last year but he suffered from an injured shoulder muscle that kept him out of action.

Two juniors, Al Christie and Sal Postich, both lettermen, look like they might help swing the rope climb for the Lions, especially against Michigan State, Army and Temple, teams weak in this event. Hendrickson is not far behind the top trio, and may find himself a starter in the future.

HS CHAMP

Dave Benner and Kurovski give State a capable one-two punch on the sidehorse but two newcomers, sophomore Don Kump and junior Glen Seifried will vie for the third spot. Benner was a high school champ at Lower Marion. He underwent an appendectomy this summer and as a result he started slow, but has been steadily improving.

Kurovski, senior letterman Joe Mireni, and sophomore Dick Spiese are the best of the parallel bar boys with Bill Humphrey in the running for a position. Humphrey is a sophomore with no experience but Wettstone likes his build and claims he could be a standout in the future.

For the meet with Michigan State the Lions are adding a seventh event, the trampoline. Cal Folmsbee, a varsity diver with the State swimming team, and tumbler Rudy Valentino will work this event.

TRAMPOLINE

The trampoline should be an interesting event for Rec Hall spectators. It wasn't used in competition last year. Performers do their tricky maneuvers and body twists while bouncing on a large canvas suspended by springs. As one spectator commented on seeing Folmsbee and Valentino practicing—"It's as though they were jumping up and down on a large, springy bed."

All the gymnasts are concentrating on smoothing out their exercises this week, eliminating those movements of which they are uncertain, and in some cases adding easier ones. Wettstone explained that finesse and body grace were the important factors judged in a meet.

Women Students Named Scholarship Recipients

Four women students at the College were recently named recipients of scholarships granted by two women's organizations at the College and by the Berks County Alumnae.

Cwens, national women's sophomore honorary, designated Julia Ibbotson as the recipient of their $50 scholarship. Miss Ibbotson is a sophomore in the School of Liberal Arts. The choice was made on the basis of high scholarship and need.

Mortar Board

Georgette Babos and Ruth Knoebel each received $100 scholarships from Mortar Board, national senior women's honorary. Basis was high scholarship, character and need. Miss Knoebel is a junior in Home Economics. She is from Sunbury. Miss Babos of Philadelphia is a junior majoring in horticulture.

Recommendations from the

Leonides Chooses Standardized Pin

At a meeting of Leonides, held January 9, a standard pin, which all Leonides members will be entitled to wear, was decided upon.

The pin chosen is one-half inch high and seven-sixteenth inches wide. The main background is black trimmed with gold. A diagonal gold stripe runs through the center of the pin and on this stripe is a black Lion. In the upper left-hand corner is the letter 'L', for Leonides.

All Leonides members may purchase these pins from chairman representatives and a design of the pin will be shown at the Athletic Store. The price of the pins is $1.80. Refreshments were served after the Leonides meeting.

Murphy—Carlton

Miss Marjoris Carlton of Springfield Gardens, N.Y., was united in marriage to Richard W. Murphy of Flushing, N.Y.

The bride is a student of child psychology at Adelphia College, N.Y. Murphy will receive his degree in commerce and finance from the College in June.
