

Boro Committee Awaits Report Before Acting

Group Studies Problem In Other Communities

Borough Council's bowling committee reported last night that it was awaiting a report from the American Bowling Congress before it will make any recommendation to Council.

Kaye Vinson, chairman of the committee, reported that his group had made a study of the tax situation in other communities. P. H. Gentzel, he said, was supposed to contact the ABC.

Gentzel, owner of the alleys, has written to the ABC, but has not yet received a reply.

Earlier Gentzel admitted that his statement during the week claiming bowling tax increases were 3414 per cent was wrong. He accepted the correction of C. R. Cromer, borough assessor, which listed the increases at 3221.4 per cent.

Gentzel also disclosed that a new bowling center is being constructed between Bellefonte and State College.

"When the new bowling center is ready to operate," he said, "there will be no possibility to compete, in that they have no local taxes; hence, if council and the tax assessor select to drive business out of our growing community we will bow to their command and permanently close our alleys, or had I better say the community bowling recreation."

The original bowling license fee in 1944 was $5 a year. Last year it was raised to $85 and on Jan. 1, 1950, the fee was increased to $160. The real estate assessment of the bowling property was raised from $7000 to $8500.

On Jan. 9 the Council appointed a three man committee to investigate the situation. At the time Gentzel labeled the ordinance that raised the tax "confiscatory." He maintained that the new tax destroyed the use of bowling alleys which cost $48,000 to construct.

The 16 alleys have been closed since Dec. 31.

Police Speculate

BOSTON—The Boston Police, still without any real clues in the one and a half million dollar robbery, have turned their resentment against the Brink's office which was held up. They say it was a soft touch, that a bunch of manicurists could have got in.

Cancer Report Issued

PHILADELPHIA—An encouraging report in the treatment of cancer was announced yesterday by the American Cancer Society. A Philadelphia researcher, Dr. Hugh J. Creech, reveals that with a drug of bacteria sugars a number of cancer victims have been kept comfortable and able to work during the last four years.

Cabinet Okays Campus Chest

Plans for the Campus Chest having been approved by the All-College Cabinet Thursday night, Joel Bachman, ex-vice chairman of the National Student Association, said yesterday that a steering committee of 13 will be appointed by Cabinet early this spring. The drive is scheduled for the fourth or fifth week of the fall semester.

According to Bachman, possibly 500 students will be active in promoting the drive.

The original NSA committee which drew up the Chest plans included Chairman Mary Fox, Joel Bachman, Michael Cantwell, Jack King, Otto Grupp, and Helen Wise.

Plans call for the Chest to consolidate all College charity and organization drives into one. Students will be asked to contribute once instead of several times throughout the year as in the past.

Undergraduate and graduate students will be asked to sign a statement authorizing the addition of $1.75 to their fees or deduction of this amount from their book receipts. The Chest goal has been set at $14,000.

The following are the organizations and charities which will receive funds from the Chest: Penn State Christian Association, 45 per cent; Women's Student Government Association, 5 per cent; World Student Service program, 7 per cent; working capital for the Chest, 3 per cent.

Off-campus organizations include the tuberculosis fund; March of Dimes, cancer fund, and heart fund combined, 19 per cent; Salvation Army, 5 per cent; Red Cross, 5 per cent; State College Community fund, 1 per cent.

Well-Balanced Program Marks Orchestra's First Concert

By L. D. GLADFELTER

With a bit more self-assurance and less timidity, the College Symphony orchestra should become a highly competent amateur group.

Its performance Sunday afternoon in Schwab Auditorium, the first of the year, improved as the short but well-balanced program progressed, and was brought to a high level in the two concluding selections. Tension seemed to be the major drawback of the orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Theodore K. Karhan.

Major Work

The major work, Schubert's fifth symphony, was the second selection, and the orchestra just did not have enough time to warm up to more than a passable performance, although some passages came off well. A little more emphasis to bring out the qualities of the work, particularly in the tedious andante, was needed.

However, the large audience liked the symphony and the program as a whole, and it must be remembered that the orchestra is not an integrated professional group with unlimited rehearsal time.

With the performance of Bach's "Little" Fugue in G Minor, the orchestra finally found its balance in a startlingly different arrangement. The performance also gave the musicians the needed self-assurance for the finale, the "Marche Hongroise" from Berlioz' opera, "The Damnation of Faust," which brought the concert to a satisfying climax.

Hinkle

Leroy Hinkle, baritone, sang Verdi's aria, "Eri tu," from "The Masked Ball," without too much enthusiasm, using lyrical rather than the desired dramatic delivery.

College Acclaims Trustees' Choice

The New President

MILTON STOVER EISENHOWER

Penn Staters—students and faculty alike—yesterday were in a happy frame of mind concerning the College presidency situation for the first time in several years.

There were hardly any discordant notes in their comments on the selection Saturday of Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, currently president of Kansas State College, to guide the destinies of this institution.

His election was announced Saturday evening by the Board of Trustees at its annual meeting in Harrisburg. He is to take office "no later than" July 1.

Further Information

Further information concerning Dr. Eisenhower's selection came to light yesterday.

It was learned that his name was among those suggested to the trustees by at least two different sources. One of these was the faculty chapter of the American Association of University Professors, which had asked the trustees that they be consulted in the election of a new president after the death of the last president, Dr. Ralph Dorn Hetzel, in 1947.

Dr. Eisenhower was being considered for the post several months ago, it was learned, but at that time it appeared that he would not be able to accept the offer.

Salary

Although no official announcement of his prospective salary was made, it was rumored at $20,000. He now gets between $10,000 and $12,000 at Kansas State, it was reported.

A. R. Warnock, emeritus dean of men, said he was "very much delighted" with the selection, and predicted that the choice would receive wide acclaim throughout the nation. He said Dr. Eisenhower has been considered tops among the younger college presidents.

Bernreuter

Dr. Robert Bernreuter, who headed the AAUP committee, termed Dr. Eisenhower "a very happy choice" and "a very fine man." He said he had discussed the selection with many members of the faculty and that all were looking forward to his arrival here.

Dr. Eisenhower told a local newspaper that he expects to make a preliminary visit here (Continued on page two)

Houck Rites Set For Tomorrow

Leo Houck, one of Penn State's most cherished traditions, will be buried in St. Joseph's Cemetery in his home town of Lancaster tomorrow morning.

The veteran boxing coach died peacefully at his home at 727 Manor street, Lancaster, Saturday at 2:45 p.m.

He was 61. His illness was diagnosed as cancer.

Funeral services will be held at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Lancaster, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

For the convenience of his many State College friends, a requiem mass will be celebrated at Our Lady of Victory Church, State College, tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Cleaning Agency Closes For Finals

Due to the difficulty of providing adequate service during the week of finals, the Student Dry Cleaning Agency will suspend operations at the close of business on Saturday, Jan. 28.

Oscar T. Fleisher, manager of the agency, said that all garments turned in by Jan. 24 will be returned this semester. Garments received after that date will be returned at the beginning of next semester.

Fleisher also said that the winners of the slogan contest, which the agency sponsored, will be announced sometime this week.

5 O'Clock Theatre To Give Excerpt

The jungle scene from the play, "Home of the Brave," by Arthur Laurents, will be presented by Little Theatre actors at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the basement of Old Main.

The highlight from the well-known play will be directed by Mesrop Kesdekian. The cast includes: Charles Schulte, George Miller, Frank Fatsie, Walter Eckley, and James Ambandos.

The sketch production marks this semester's last performance of the Little Theatre. The series of one-act productions will continue next semester.

WAC Captain Talks To Senior Girls

Captain Sue Lynch, of the Women's Army Corps, will speak to all girls interested in commissions in the Regular Army in McElwain Lounge at 3:15 this afternoon.

The meeting will also serve as a means of bringing personnel cards up to date, to announce information concerning commencement and to explain A.A.U.W. and Alumnae organization.

Dean Pearl Weston said the meeting is required for eighth semester seniors. Seventh semester women who are especially interested may also attend.

Camera Club

The Penn State Camera Club will meet in front of the Penn State Photo Shop at 7 o'clock tonight. Mr. R. Breon Jr. will give a demonstrated talk on high speed flash photography as connected with portraiture.

Today . . .

The Nittany Lion Roars

FOR the Board of Trustees. Saturday the Board presented us with a belated gift . . . a President, Milton Eisenhower. His selection ended more than two years of existence without a Chief Executive.

The Lion curls his tail and twitches his whiskers with joy at the announcement and forgives the Trustees for their tardiness in appreciation of their excellent choice.
