Former War Correspondent To Address Matrix Dinner

Esther Van Wagener Tufty, former war correspondent and at present a news commentator for radio station WWDC in Washington, D.C., will be guest speaker at the annual Matrix Dinner at the Nittany Lion Inn on Monday night.

Mrs. Tufty covered news assignments in 14 foreign countries and was called "an ambassador without a portfolio" by the British government.

A former president of the Women's National Press Club, she has her office in the National Press Building in Washington.

"My brother was the Democratic governor of Michigan," she says, "but the papers I write for are Republican, so I have to be non-partisan with my by-line."

In addition to her radio program, Mrs. Tufty writes for over 300 newspapers and does profile sketches of internationally prominent people for magazines.

She is also honorary mayor of Traverse City, Michigan, the city she helped make famous by publicizing its annual cherry festival.

Mrs. Tufty was born in Michigan but was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Before coming to Washington, she worked for the Evanston, Ill., "News Index" for ten years and eventually became managing editor of the paper.

Approximately 170 outstanding women students will hear Mrs. Tufty at the Matrix Dinner, which is sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, national women's journalism honorary.

Betty Jane Hower, president of Theta Sigma Phi, has asked that all women invited hand in their replies at the Student Union desk today.

Theta Sigma Phi will choose a Matrix Girl and a Scroll Girl at the dinner, and the results of last week's voting for Quill Girl will be announced.

Quill Girl is elected annually by the women students. This year's candidates are WSGA president, Shirley Gauger, Mortar Board president Ruth Lehman, and WRA president, Virginia Miller.
