

Old Cliques --

dates up for election are not fit to hold office." No names were mentioned, but within two days a Nittany Independent candidate was dropped from the ballot for not meeting scholastic requirements.

Another flare-up occurred when two former members of the pre-war Campus clique, in a letter to Collegian, charged that the changing of the Key party's name to Campus-Key was an underhanded effort to enlist the support of the old party's members. It was asserted that the move had failed and that Campus clique remnants were supporting the Nittany Independent candidates.

A sharp denial appeared the next day in Collegian with the counter-charge that members of the Nittany Independent party had earlier proposed a coalition with the Key clique against the independent interests, and that the former party had violated its 40-60 representation ratio by placing only two independents among its twelve candidates.

Nittany Victory

As the campaign smoke cleared, however, 44 per cent of the student body went to the polls in the Armory and handed the Nittany Independents a decisive victory. The Campus-Key candidates for All-College and junior and sophomore class offices were defeated and that party gained control in the senior class by only a narrow margin.

Thomas Lannen, defeated junior class nominee, went on later, however, to become the next All-College President, proving that a Penn State election is "anybody's ball game."

Ed Honorary Assists School

Pi Lambda Theta, women's education honorary, recently held a book auction in Grange playroom. The proceeds were donated to Crossnore, a small school located in the hill country of North Carolina.

The group has given one fifty-dollar scholarship to the school, which not only educates the pupils but also feeds and clothes them. Crossnore is supported by donations from groups such as Pi Lambda Theta.

Headed by Dr. Nell Murphy, instructor in education, the organization collected books of every description for the auction. Members and their friends bid against each other for the benefit of the group's service project.

Membership in Pi Lambda Theta is drawn from all phases of the teaching profession, including acting teachers and undergraduates. Women are elected to it on the basis of outstanding ability and service to the profession.

Councils---

Six juniors and six senior representatives will be elected.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Because of the small size of the school, a nominating committee will make preliminary nominations. Any student in physical education may nominate himself by presenting a petition signed with 15 names to the secretary, Miss Keller in Moffett Cottage. A student must also hold at least a 1.0 all-college average, and be of sophomore or junior standing.

Student Council elections will be held on April 26-27, one week after all-college elections. Both the Mineral Industries and Liberal Arts councils expect to hold their nominations, before that time so that they may hold their elections in conjunction with the other five councils.

Elections for freshmen and sophomore representatives will be held next fall.

Air Reserves

Former Air Force weathermen can get credit for promotion and retirement as well as pay for training one weekend a month in the Air Force Reserve.

There are now openings for 19 airmen and three officers including a major to train one weekend a month (Saturday and Sunday) at Olmsted Field, Middletown, Pa.
