bread, and ate in the room of one of the players.

Higgins declared, "If this is true, something should be done about it. It ought to be corrected. We'll never get anything done around here unless we cooperate."

Want 7 P.M. Deadline

In the opinion of Higgins and several other Rec Hall officials, 7 o'clock is the minimum time that should be set for a training table deadline. They pointed out that as the days grow longer, more and more valuable daylight hours are lost during which squads could practice.

If College teams cannot secure the kind of service they want in the dining commons, Higgins said, then the College should make some arrangement for teams to eat in town.

Bedenk agreed with Higgins' contention that the dining facilities were inadequate so long as the deadline was 6:30 p.m. The veteran baseball mentor pointed out that games played during the week finish so late that it is impossible for the team to eat.

"We're often still playing at 6:30," Bedenk said.

Time Problem

Practice too is cut short because of the time limit, Bedenk said. Some of the boys, he added, have classes until 5 o'clock. So by the time they are dressed and get out onto the field it's 5:30, he continued, and the coaches must let them go at 6 o'clock if they are to make the deadline. So they gain only half an hour of practice, he said.

"I'll go along with Bob and Joe," Werner said, and then, after reviewing the situation, he added:

"That's what the new football coach will have to face. They don't do that at Notre Dame, Ohio State, Kentucky, or any of the big-time football schools."

Werner declared, "Such lack of cooperation simply could not exist if the school were to have big-time football."

Termed Inadequate

Speidel termed the dining facilities inadequate for two reasons. First, he said, they don't serve the kind of food that one needs on a training table, and, second, the teams must meet the regulations as to time, or go elsewhere to get meals.

"We're very grateful for the opportunity to eat a late meal," Speidel said, "but we should have training meals instead of the type of meals that are diatetic abominations for an athlete."

Not New

Speidel stated that the situation is not new. He said that this is the first time that football has encountered the training table limit. Winter sports coaches last year cited a similar situation that has not yet been remedied, Speidel said. "We are glad to have King Football help us along in this matter."

Miss Baker's only reply to questions was "no comment."

In criticizing College policy on athletics yesterday, Druids, honorary hat society for sophomore athletes, singled out the dining facilities as being "a thorn in the side of all athletes for years."

'Big Coach' Views . . .

slogan "Big-time Coach for the Big-time College" have been printed and distributed to the student body; petitions for a big-time coach are now being circulated. We are doing our best to make our feelings known.

"Perhaps at this late date it is impossible to present this matter to your club at a regular meeting. If such is the case, will you or your executive committee take action by voicing your feelings to the Athletic Advisory Board immediately? Address your correspondence to H. R. Gilbert, secretary, Athletic Advisory Board, 102 Old Main, the Campus, State College, Pa., and may we suggest that you send a copy to Mr. James Milholland, acting president, in care of the College.

"Penn State alumni clubs have, in the past, shown themselves capable of strong opinion and effective action. Again the time has come for them to be heard! —Yours for a better Penn State! Skull and Bones, senior class honorary."

Members

Meanwhile, many newspapers throughout the state reported student concern on the College campus, in news stories and sports columns.

The Skull and Bones-sponsored tag campaign continued Wednesday and yesterday as members of Chimes, junior women's hat society and Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, passed out tags on the Mall.

Parmi Nous

In a split vote, Parmi Nous, senior men's hat society, went on record Wednesday night as opposed to the Skull and Bones contention that the College urgently needs a big-time football coach. It maintained that the prime consideration in the College's football situation is not the need for a big-time coach but the need for "more big-time subsidization" within the limits of the NCAA Sanity Code.

A statement, passed by Parmi Nous, read:

"Parmi Nous is not entirely in agreement with Skull and Bones' campaign which stresses primarily the need for a big-time coach at Penn State. Parmi Nous feels that high school players should be more effectively induced to come to Penn State through greater help to athletes than is now supplied by the College. The group maintains that this is the prime consideration and deserves student support.

"Parmi Nous extends a vote of confidence to the Athletic Advisory Board and feels the board will select the best qualified coach for the job. Parmi Nous feels that, given the proper player material to produce a good team, the coach should be dropped if he does not produce."

Petition

In effect, the Parmi Nous action added fuel to over-all student concern voiced about the general football picture. Increased player help, promoted primarily by Parmi Nous, was one need cited in a student petition circulated throughout living units Wednesday and yesterday by Druids, sophomore hat society backing the Skull and Bones drive.
