

We're It

Recent bitter debate in All-College Cabinet over the whys and wherefores of Penn State affiliation with the National Student Association threw light on a current misconception hereabouts that we attacked earlier this year.

NSA IS NOT AN organization of small student branches or chapters at countless schools. Membership at NSA schools is not "thrown open," as such, to students on each campus who "want to belong." NSA at Penn State cannot be compared structurally with the Inter-national Relations Club or any other club or organization at Penn State. Membership in NSA is not limited, at the College, to a group of about 50 students who have attended various NSA members.

Here, the student government has ratified the NSA constitution and Penn State membership dues are paid yearly. All the students at the College are therefore members of the Association and share equally the opportunity to take part in NSA activities.

Although all Penn State students are NSA members, the functional unit of NSA is student government. All-College Cabinet, highest agent of Penn State student government and therefore of NSA, yearly sets up a local NSA committee. Headed by Lyn Lapp, this committee studies projects suggested by Cabinet, for example the Campus Chest which is slated for next fall.

THUS THE SMALL group headed by Miss Lapp is not the NSA at Penn State. You are and we are. So it behooves us to take interest in the impending battle over a $1000 Cabinet appropriation in next year's budget.

Draz Captures NCAA Crown

The total of the judges and the referee was 29-29, when Referee Gene Ranking decided the contest in Thrash's favor for aggressiveness.

Mac Martinez, San Jose's 125 pounder, decided Michigan State's Henry Amos for the title in one of the better bouts of the tourney.

Pacific Coast champ, Washington State's Everett Conley, won 135 honors after a clear cut win over Paul Kostopoulos of Maryland.

The accumulated record of the eight 1950 champions totals 91 wins against a mere four setbacks.

TEAM STANDINGS: (FIRST EIGHT TEAMS)
Gonzaga	18 points
Idaho	18 points
Michigan State	13 points
Penn State	12 points
L. S. U.	12 points

Grid Banquet

Named as committee heads for the banquet are Wilbert "Red" Roth, production; Edwin Watson, invitations, and printing; and Thomas Morgan, properties and stage.

Officers of the group, in addition to Reen, are Roth, vice-president, Watson, secretary; and Eijell, treasurer. Franklin C. Banner, head of the department of journalism, is advisor.

Safety Valve...

Hopes For Success

TO THE EDITOR: May I add my two cents worth of support to you in your effort to secure a "name coach" for Penn State's football team.

What we need is a NAME offensive coach... We have the location at Penn State and we have gotten our share of good players. As Red Carlson said, in 1916, when he was at Penn State playing baseball for Pitt and inhaling that good Nittany air, "A team should be 50 per cent better than Penn State to beat them."

If I were not interested, I would not be writing this letter. May I say to you, stay in there and pitch; you are on the right track and here's hoping that your efforts will meet with success.
