

New Scholarships In Engineering Given To College

To develop a broader program in foundry engineering instruction and to attract more college graduates to the foundry industries, the Foundry Educational Foundation of Cleveland has established a number of scholarships and fellowships at the College.

Under an agreement approved by the trustees of the College, the Foundation will provide $5,000 for the year 1950-51 for undergraduate and graduate scholarships and for incidental expenses. The plan, as approved, will be effective for three years.

C. E. Bullinger, professor and head of the department of industrial engineering, explained that as a part of the program, two additional courses in foundry work would be established.

Students probably will be awarded the scholarships for their junior and senior years, Bullinger said. They will be chosen from those qualified students having an interest in the foundry industries, and probably will be expected to work in foundries during their summer vacations following the sophomore and junior years.

The Foundation also will assist the students chosen to obtain employment in foundry industries after they have completed their college work.

U.J.A. Begins Campus Drive

Students at the College will be asked to contribute $6500 as Penn State's share of the $273 million United Jewish Appeal campaign drive for 1950.

The campus fund drive, which began Sunday, is being directed by co-chairmen Myron Sloan and Dorothy Radack.

Money received from the campaign will be forwarded to the national headquarters of the UJA where it will be used to aid in the rehabilitation of Jewish refugees and displaced persons from all parts of the world.

Jewish students will be contacted through representatives in their respective fraternities, sororities, and dormitories. Containers are being placed in strategic areas in the dormitories and on campus for the convenience of non-Jewish students who wish to contribute to the appeal.

All captains and drive workers are slated to attend a final kick-off meeting at the Hillel Foundation, 2 p.m. Sunday.
