

Congressman

While in Washington to observe the workings of the Federal Government, a group of Penn State students had a run-in with Representative Rankin of Mississippi. Actually there's nothing especially unusual about this. The Congressman has been at odds with a vast majority of the American people for a long time.

IT SEEMS THAT the itinerant students wandered into the House office building and while roaming through the corridors of that edifice passed by the representative's hallowed office. Several of the students gave vent to their feelings about the congressman and hissed as they strolled by. Apparently vexed by a speech on the House floor a few minutes earlier advocating civil rights in the South—a right guaranteed to all by the Constitution—Mr. Rankin, the self-espoused defender of the Constitution dashed out into the hall and all but brought out the militia and the FBI.

During the course of the next few minutes the Congressman is supposed to have said quite a few things, among which was the side comment to someone in his office, "Some of these boys are Jews, aren't they?" Coming from Mr. Rankin, remarks of this nature are neither surprising nor shocking. The American people have come to expect such ravings from Congressman Rankin.

The Congressman, infamous for his insulting remarks to all minority groups, may be immune from retaliation when he speaks on the House floor. His immunity does not extend to public opinion, and it is there where the Congressman must pay the price for his ignorant bigotry.

CONGRESSMAN RANKIN had better get used to hissing, for it is not too long in the future that the majority of the American people will be standing at his door and doing it.

It's Your Council

Today is the last time students in six schools will be able to vote for representatives to their school student councils. Judging by yesterday's elections turn-out, relatively few students have taken interest in the election.

On the surface, voting in this election may not appear to be an important function of the student government system. Closer inspection, however, will reveal that the individual student's vote does carry weight.

Directly or indirectly, student vote in council elections determines the representative of each school to All-College Cabinet. The president of each school holds a seat in the top student government agency.

In all, eight Cabinet posts are held by school council presidents. The student who is interested in seeing himself well-represented will vote today, and he will make his selections carefully.

College's Original Name

The original name of the College "The Farmer's High School" was chosen partly because of a feeling that farmers would be prejudiced against the word college as "a place where boys only contracted evil habits" and partly because the first intention appears to have been to establish a small school with a limited course of instruction.

Tete-a-Tete

SCENE: Schwab Auditorium
OCCASION: Robert St. John Lecture, April 17.
CHARACTERS: Agatha and Agnes, two landladies in a well known college town.

AGATHA—I'd have gotten here sooner to visit with you, but I didn't dare leave the house until my husband got home from work. We have roomers you know.

AGNES—I know what you mean. I wish I had been smarter and not rented my extra rooms this year.

AGATHA—I only did it because the town is so crowded with students who need rooms.

AGNES—There's so much risk involved. You know, they all smoke in bed, and never use ashtrays. We don't smoke at our house. It's so hard on the wallpaper and curtains.

AGATHA—Do you know that we interviewed 12 students before we found two who belonged to our church? Of course, I explained that regular attendance would be necessary.

AGNES—My neighbor, Mrs. Jones, is having a perfectly horrible time with her roomers. They simply refused to buy their own toilet tissue. And I guess they won't ever get used to not-running water after nine o'clock.

AGATHA—My boys are bound to walk around upstairs with their shoes on after nine, too.

AGNES—And another thing, my husband and I like to go away for a weekend occasionally, and we simply can't possibly if we have roomers.

AGATHA—I don't believe it's worth it, really. You certainly don't make any money by renting when you consider the extra heat, cleaning, and bed linen to launder.

AGNES—Oh, my boys get their own laundered. They can't expect too much for only six dollars a week.

AGATHA—I've even heard them complain because they have to scrub the bathtub with Bon Ami after their baths.

AGNES—I only allow them one bath a week, because the water bill gets so high if you let them bathe anytime.

AGATHA—Some of them sure are independent. One of my boys bought 60 watt bulbs for all the lamps in the room. He was actually angry when I made him change them for 25 watt bulbs.

AGNES—And some nights those radios, drive me wild when I'm . . . Oh, here comes Mr. St. John. We'll talk it over right after he's through.

AGATHA—Well, all right, but I'll have to hurry home to look after things.

* Any similarity between the landladies mentioned and persons living or dead is purely disgusting.

A Chat With ARW . . .

This is another in a series of articles by Arthur R. Warnock, dean emeritus of men who came into contact with thousands of undergraduates during his 30 year tenure as dean of men.

Beta Theta Pi, first fraternity recognized at the College, lived its first year in rooms on the second floor of the Gentzel building on the southeast corner of College and Pugh. Phi Gamma Delta, first to have a house, first occupied a house that stood on the southwest corner of Allen and Beaver, the house later being moved back to the alley and, encased in stone, becoming an apartment house.

WEST COLLEGE AVENUE and Barnard street once was a fraternity corner. Alpha Gamma Rho lived in the present Alpha Phi Delta house; next door lived Sigma Nu. In the twin red brick houses across the avenue lived Phi Sigma Kappa and Pi Kappa Alpha.

For many years Kappa Sigma lived in the brick house next to Jack Frost's present office on Frazier street. In the large frame house across the street, second door from Beaver, Lambda Chi Alpha lived.

Allencrest was once the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house, later occupied by Sigma Pi. The old Foster home, next door to the Smith Tailor Shop on east Beaver avenue, was occupied for many years by Delta Tau Delta. Incidentally, the Delta chapter was organized in the southwest corner room, second floor, of Mac Hall, then a men's dormitory.

THE PHI PSIS once lived in the yellow brick house, now Cody Manor, on the southeast corner of Allen and Foster. Later Theta Chi lived in the house across the street north. The present Phi Sigma Delta house was built for A.D.S., a local which became Chi Phi.

Phi Kappa Sigma once owned the present Triangle house. Theta Xi lived in the present Beaver House; and Alpha Tau Omega lived near the present American Legion home on Pugh street. Delta Upsilon lives in the remodeled Hamilton home, and Acacia lives in the much remodeled Hamilton barn. Kappa Delta Rho was established across from the grade school on Frazier street, and Tau Kappa Epsilon in the house at the corner of Burrows and Ridge in College Heights.

Only Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, Phi Gamma Delta and Alpha Zeta live in houses which they owned in 1920.
