

Eisenhower Day

The following editorial appeared in the Kansas State Collegian the day before Eisenhower day this past Wednesday on the KSC Campus.

Tomorrow the students and faculty of Kansas State will pay tribute to a man who has led the College through seven years of progress which mark him as a leader to be remembered.

He has been instrumental in starting the splendid building program which is now in progress. Through his efforts such buildings as the fieldhouse, women's dormitory and the classrooms building are now under construction. He has also outlined a program for the next six years, of which a two-million dollar Student Union is a part.

President Eisenhower came to this campus during the trying times of the war. He saw the school through a record low in enrollment and then had the foresight to see the influx of veterans which would descend upon the campus after the war was over. He started planning and providing for the record high enrollment long before it was here. Kansas State got through these hectic years quite smoothly in comparison with other schools.

The President was a pioneer in the crusade for general education. The comprehensive courses have been one of his projects in the movement away from over-specialization. Many other curriculum changes have come about through his guidance.

Under the present administration students have become more and more self-governing. The President has always practiced a policy of equal rights for everyone, regardless of race, color, or creed.

Kansas State has received world wide publicity through Eisenhower's work with UNESCO in which he established an outstanding record. He helped students bring UNESCO to this campus, the first college in the world to have a chapter of this organization.

One could go on and on about the achievements accomplished by the President. But one thing is sure, that anyone who is or has been affiliated with Kansas State will be forever grateful to President Eisenhower for the progress he has brought to this campus.

New Drive-In Theatre Opens

Opening of the new $75,000 Starlite Drive-in Theatre on the Bellefonte-State College road is scheduled for tonight, according to owner Phillip Schleit. The outdoor theatre covers an area of nearly 14 acres and is located exactly midway between Bellefonte and State College.

The theatre, under construction since last December, will accommodate 600 cars.

Donald C. Peck, its new local manager, is expected to reside at the Delta Upsilon house here. He will be graduated from Syracuse University, where he is president of D.U., in June.

James T. Larkins, lessor of the property on which the theatre is constructed, has been an instructor in engineering drawing at the College for over 25 years.

The first movie to be shown in the new theatre is "When My Baby Smiles at Me." Feature time tonight is 7:15.

son of the School of Agriculture will speak on "Human Responsibilities in Livestock Production."

Toastmaster of the banquet which will begin at 7 o'clock is Jim Pound, co-chairman of the show. Dr. J. F. Shigley, professor emeritus of veterinary science, will give the invocation.

This year's Little International is dedicated to Peter Cameron Mackenzie, superintendent of livestock at the College from 1916 to 1950.

International Pattern

The livestock show is patterned after the real, large International Livestock Exposition which is held annually in December at Chicago.

Contestants are judged only on the way in which they have fitted and shown their animals.
