

Jr.-Sr. Women To Meet Faculty

All junior and senior women are invited to attend the semi-formal Junior-Senior Faculty Reception in McElwain Lounge from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight, Ruth Lehman, chairman of the Reception, announced yesterday.

The affair is the only one of its kind enabling women students to meet the faculty on an informal basis, Miss Lehman stressed. Invitations were sent to those faculty members who have the most contact with women students in their classes.

Senior women who have contributed outstanding service to the College will act as pourers at the affair. They include: Joan Bergdoll, Marie Card, Mary Cohen, Connie Croushore, Francis Eshleman, Gertrude Fetzer, Mary Louise Hollis and Dottie Werlinich.

Members of Mortar Board, Chimes and Cwens will act a special floaters at the affair, although the junior and senior women who attend are the actual hostesses.

Chairmen of the committees organizing the Reception are Gay Brunner, entertainment; Anne Forrest and Eileen Bonner, hostesses; Audrey Brua, decorations; Marie Card, publicity; Rachel Smith and Elizabeth Swift, refreshments; and Rose Eifert, invitations.

Junior Panhel

Junior Panhellenic Council will meet in Simmons Hall lounge at 7 o'clock tonight. All pledges are asked to attend the meeting.

May Day Dance Tops Activities

Coronation Ball, sponsored by WSGA, will top off May Day activities on May 13. The informal dance will be held from 9 to 12 p.m. at Recreation Hall the Saturday night of Mother's Day weekend.

Gene Magill's orchestra will play at the dance, which is being planned as a family affair. In addition to the dancing, there will be card tables set up and parents will be able to play bridge or canasta. Admission is free to parents.

A feature of the affair is the presentation of the May Queen and her court, who will be first honored at the May Day Festival in the afternoon.

Tickets for couples are $1.50 and will be available at Student Union Monday, May 8, or at Recreation Hall the night of the dance. Refreshments will be available at the dance.

Mary Conrath, chairman of the dance, stressed that the dance would be a place for students to take their parents after the play that night.

Other members of the committee include Barbara Klopp, entertainment; Mary Jane Woodrow, publicity; Anne Forrest, refreshments; and Margaret Shultz, tickets.

New officers of the fraternity are: President, William Bonner; Vice President, Nicholas Scandale; Pledge-master, George Diddlebock; Secretary, Thomas Dulick; Treasurer, Caryl Hendrickson.

Aquacade Members Display Talent in 'Arabian Nights'

By BETTY JO HILL

Performing before a capacity crowd, Friday and Saturday nights, members of the 1950 aquacade displayed almost perfect timing and coordination. While the story, based on the Tales of Arabian Nights, was narrated the pool was in darkness, but with the appearance of the swimmers spotlights and soft top lights appeared. This lighting set-up plus the music, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade Suite," and the wall painting of the various tales added to the effect achieved by the swimmers.

An example of the coordination of the swimmers was found in the story of the "End of the Forty Thieves" in which ten girls performed their intricate routines with clocklike precision. Barbara Benck showing championship diving form was outstanding as Aladdin in the tale of the Magic Lamp while the slaves carried lighted candles during their performance, gliding through the water with effortless grace.
