Those tapped were Audrey Brua, Gay Brunner, Bettina DePalma, Rose Eifert, Anne Forrest, Mary Ellen Grube, Janet Rosen and Barbara Sprengle.

Girls were chosen on the basis of outstanding leadership, service to the College and scholarship, at least .3 above the All-College women's average. Girls selected this year had All-College averages above a 2.00.

Mortar Board functions as a group to honor outstanding women and as a service unit to the College. Included in its activities this year was the sponsorship of the annual Mardi Gras, a carnival to raise money for charity.

Under the leadership of Ruth Lehman, president, Mortar Board began an infirmary service. Each night one member of the group visits women patients in the infirmary to obtain articles which the patients desire and have no means of getting at the time because visiting hours are over.

At present the group is working on a float to honor one of the queen finalists in the Spring Week festivities.

Girls tapped this morning were serenaded last night by outgoing members of Mortar Board attired in black caps and gowns and carrying candles.

Girls Show True Selves; Clamor For Food at Sally's

By Carolyn Barrett

Those who wish to see coeds as they really are should apply for the job of selling Sallys.

Each night the shout of "Sallys" changes quiet girls into starving animals. Immediately after the call, slippers can be heard clomping down the stairs. The most fashionable clothing to wear when buying the snack are pajamas and a housecoat.

Pajamas range from pastel flannel to rainbow striped cotton. Housecoats may be so long that they drag on the floor or short enough to be worn as a jacket.

The time element determines what style hairdo will be worn. If "Sallys" comes early most of the girls will have their hair brushed and arranged very neatly. On the other hand if he comes late, and studies have been especially hard, hair will be disarranged, put up in pin curls or wrapped in a towel to dry after a quick washing.

Approximately five conversations are held at the same time. Roommates decide how many bottles of milk to buy, whether a bar of candy would add too much weight or what flavor of ice cream is the best. Only one thing is certain, submarine sandwiches are too big and they can cause much pain.

All this time the poor fellow waits very patiently hoping to make a big sale. His sale usually consists of a few sandwiches, some ice cream, milk and apples.

After all the transactions have been completed and the salesman is about to depart, a few of the girls engage him in conversation. The only way he gets away is to say "I'm due at the next dorm in five minutes."

He still doesn't leave because someone yells that she wants another sandwich. Unhappily he lowers the basket and the ice cream box, closes the half-opened door, and gets the sandwich.

Finally the door closes and within an hour the dorm is quiet and books are open again.

Alpha Xi Delta

As their project for this semester, the pledges of Alpha Xi Delta are working under the auspices of the PSCA work camp in helping repair school buildings. Last Saturday, the group painted the school house at Waddle.

Pledge officers of the group are Nancy Lea Saylor, president; Shirley Smith, vice-president; Janet Tritt, secretary; and Joan Kuntz, treasurer.
