

Five Days Remain to Carnival

Over 50 Booths Planned for Event

The number of booths planned for the "Town and Gown Carnival" have been counted, and the number comes over the fifty mark. Only five more days remain until funtime.

These booths should provide more than enough entertainment for the thousands of eager students and others who are expected to attend the Carnival. Phi Epsilon Pi, for example, is planning a little game called, "Bet in the Wet." You toss your pennies in a dish which is floating in a tub of water. Returns are good for good tossers.

Chip a golf ball at the Phi Mu booth. Two backboards have heads painted on them. The object is to stand on the mat and chip the ball through the open mouths of the heads.

Douse the Light

Phi Delta Theta and Kappa Kappa Gamma are getting together on their booth. They are having several games of chance and are calling the booth "Las Vegas." One game which should be relatively quiet is called Russia Roulette.

Phi Kappa and Theta Phi Alpha are sponsoring a "Douse the Light" booth. This should appeal to almost everyone as water pistols are used to put out lighted candles.

The Sigma Alpha Mu house is sponsoring a bunch of games of chance. Place your money and call your odds.

Submerge

"Submerge" an Independent Man at the AIM booth. Aim your rocket projectiles at the target, and if you get a hit, you drop some poor sucker into a tank of water.

Alpha Epsilon Phi should get plenty of male customers with their game called "Getting Ger-tie's Garter." Three lovely girls, their legs crossed, invite you to ring their ankles with hoops. Not only legs, but prizes too!

The Phi Sigma Sigmas want you to take an aim at a Phi Sig Dame. But the dames you aim for are girls painted on a canvas backdrop, and not for real.

usual group, in that it is composed not only of students but also faculty members and faculty wives. With just over 70 members, the orchestra is ranked in the third class of symphonic groups, comparable to the Harrisburg Symphony Orchestra.

The College orchestra originated as a string ensemble. For many years a step-child, subordinated to band development, the orchestra itself began to come into its own when Dr. Hummel Fishburn took over the music department in 1942. He shifted emphasis to symphonic music and began building up a musical library.

College Tradition
Today, the orchestra's concerts have become a tradition at the College and play to consistently good audiences.

Tomorrow's program includes the Prelude to Act III from Wagner's "Lohengrin"; Taylor's "Dedications" from "Through the Looking Glass"; Mozart's Concerto No. 5 in A Major for Violin and Orchestra, with Barbara Thomas as soloist; Waltzes from Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier"; Grieg's "The Last Spring"; Mousorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain"; Benjamin's "Jamaican Rhumba," and Weinberger's "Czech Rhapsody."
