Mary Anne Hanna Is Miss Penn State

Pretty blonde Mary Anne Hanna was selected as Miss Penn State last night before a packed house at Schwab Auditorium. The selection and crowning climaxed the gala "Coronation Review," and officially opened the 1950 Spring Week.

Mary Anne will reign over all the Spring Week festivities, with the other three coed finalists, Jane Mullen, Joan Marshall, and Candy Griffith acting as her attendants.

After her selection by the five judges, Miss Penn State was presented with many gifts from local merchants. The huge crowd in Schwab gave her an enthusiastic reception as she was crowned by Marlene Carozzo, "Miss Pennsylvania of 1949."

Glass is MC

The "Coronation Review," directed by Sid Manes, was preceded by a gay parade of campus and town organizations and floats for the four queen finalists.

The coronation show opened at 8 p.m. Master of Ceremonies Hank Glass introduced the Varsity Quartet for several numbers. Next Frank Lewis and Edward Lefkowitz put on a comedy routine. Carol Wineman and Morris Samuel sang several numbers.

Glass then brought out the four coed finalists and chatted with them. Arnie Taylor and his sextet followed with three numbers while the judges were balloting.

After "Miss Pennsylvania" presented the winner, everyone in the show came on stage for the grand finale when Mary Anne Hanna was presented with all her gifts.

Harold Fleming was organist, Eleanor Stern handled the decorations, Milton Bernstein, the advertising, and Peter Fairchok, lighting for the show.

Two New Wings To Give Needed Infirmary Space

The addition of two new wings to the infirmary will bring available bed space to 46, Dr. Harold R. Glenn, director of the College Health Service, disclosed yesterday. The present capacity is 26.

In addition to the increased bed space, all of which will be located in the new east wing, the projected west wing will house a new dispensary. The present dispensary in the basement of Old Main will be abandoned and its facilities will be transferred to the new location.

In addition to bed space for 20 patients, the east wing will house nurses' dining room, and new kitchen facilities. If funds are available, a new X-ray machine will be purchased at a cost of approximately $15,000, and the physical therapy establishment will be modernized and revamped. An ambulance will also be obtained, but the purchase will have to await the availability of funds.

The additions to present facilities will make the Infirmary more than adequate, Dr. Glenn said, barring the outbreak of a serious epidemic. Dr. Glenn pointed out that the University of Michigan, with 23,000 students, has 50 beds and has never found itself crowded for space.

Cabinet To Name Tribunal, Discuss Customs Revision

Freshman customs and committee appointments will make up the bulk of the business to be handled at tonight's meeting of the new All-College Cabinet.

President Robert Davis said that several independent organizations have stated that they would like to see a revision in the content of customs.

The plans for revision seem to center on the "no smoking" clause and the lack of a definite date on which customs will be lifted.

Several important offices and Cabinet committee posts vacated by graduating seniors will be filled tonight.

A new Tribunal will be chosen, a new All-College elections committee, parliamentarian, senior and junior class dance committees and others.

Davis said he will speak to Cabinet tonight on bringing the student body and Cabinet closer together, and bringing about more representation that will enact the wishes of the student body.
