Awards Given In Air ROTC

The Air Force Association medal for outstanding scholastic ability was presented to Cadet 2nd Lt. James R. McMahon, of DuBois, at a recent Air ROTC ceremony.

Dr. George L. Haller, dean of the School of Chemistry and Physics, representing the Nittany Squadron, Air Forces Association, presented the award.

Medals also were presented by Lt. Col. John E. Stewart, professor of air science and tactics, to Cadet Lt. Col. Raymond S. Canton Jr., of Harrisburg, as the Outstanding Second Year Advanced Air Force ROTC cadet; to Cadet 2nd Lt. Justus D. Campbell, of Lampeter, as the Outstanding First Year Advanced Air Force ROTC cadet; to Cadet Jack W. Enterline, of Dayton, O., as the Outstanding Second Year Basic cadet; and to Cadet Raymond E. Johnson, of R.D. 1, State College, for military drill.

For excellence in rifle marksmanship, a gold medal was presented to Cadet 1st Lt. Orville H. Schwanger Jr., of Elizabethtown, N. J., a silver medal to Cadet 2nd Lt. Campbell, and a bronze medal to Cadet Major Richard H. Rogers, of Oil City.

Spring Queen 'Just the Baby' Of the Family

Blonde, blue-eyed Mary Anne Hanna, Miss Penn State of 1950, is just the "baby of the family." The youngest in her family and being called the "baby" of almost any group, has made Mary Anne a little age conscience. However, she did admit that she was 20.

Other vital statistics about the queen are: height 5' 7", weight 130 lbs. Since she is a junior in the School of Physical Education, Mary Anne has a few of her classes with members of the football squad.

"At Christmas time I had a knee operation, so for a while I had to walk using a cane," she said. "That's when I had to take all the kidding about being in the same category as the injured football players."

May Queen

Participating in queen contests is nothing new to Mary Anne. Last year she was May Queen at Blackstone Junior College, Blackstone, Va., and this spring she was a junior attendant for the Penn State May Queen, Lorraine Stitler.

She hails from Lewistown and is an active member of the Swimming Club, the circulation staff of Froth, and Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

As far as food favorites go, it's strictly a meat diet for Mary Anne. Heading the list is ham and lamb; with turkey and chicken running close seconds. Egg plant and stewed rhubarb lead her list of least-liked foods. Her favorite sport is swimming, and she is an avid spectator at football and basketball games.

Houseparties--

(Continued from page thirteen) affair. A short skit will be given by the house's pledges at the party. Sigma Chi's annual "Sweetheart Dance," a formal dinner dance, will also be held on Saturday evening. Sigma Nu has decided on an informal dance, while Sigma Phi Alpha's "Slum Inn" dance will keep 'em rolling in the gutter.

The Martins and McGoys won't be fueling at Sigma Phi Epsilon's "Moonshiners Ball," a costume affair, but musicians will be going mad at Sigma Phi Sigma's "Jazz at SPS," an informal dance. Orchids will be everywhere at Sigma Pi's annual "Orchid Dance," a formal dance, while Tau Kappa Epsilon will be picking Dandelions out at Black Moshannon come Saturday afternoon.

Woodchoppers Picnics And Safety If you see Paul Bunyon walking around campus Saturday, don't be afraid. He will probably be looking for Tau Phi Delta's "Woodchopper's Ball." Dungarees will be the uniform of the day. Theta Chi's plans call for a picnic at Whipples in the afternoon and a semi-formal "Country Club Dance" in the evening. While everyone else is running around Black Moshannon and Whipples, Theta Kappa Phi is traveling to Poe Pady for its annual picnic. Theta Xi is also having a picnic and an informal dance.

Triangle has decided on a picnic at Black Moshannon for this weekend, while Zeta Beta Tau is following its safety theme through with "Maim Street ZBT," an informal dance on Saturday evening.

Weekend Wardrobe Poses Coed Problem

BY PEG KING

With Spring Weekend already upon us, no doubt the Penn State coed has already given much thought to her weekend wardrobe. Before planning for Senior Ball tonight, though, she's probably dragged her hat wardrobe from the closet. For Hat Day is here, and she knows that her chapeau, be it ridiculous or revolting, might win a prize. And, who knows, Lily Dache might even copy the campus queen's innovation.

As evening approaches, every Penn State male will be convinced he's dating the belle of the ball when his favored female appears on the scene. Dancing to the music of Spivak she'll wear her newest gown, whether it be organdy, marquisette, net, lace; ballerina length or floor length. If her gown is a ballerina, the odds are that her slippers will be opera pumps dyed to match the dress.

Come Saturday, the campus patrol will rest in peace, if only for a few hours. Everyone will leave town on a picnic at Whipples Dam or some other favored place. Plaid shirts and jeans will be the conventional attire of all Penn Staters as they head in droves for the great out-of-doors. Should our typical coed choose to wear a cotton rather than jeans, she'll doubtlessly add to her newly acquired tan by wearing a sun-back dress.

Back in State College, the coed will plan for a big evening of party-hopping. Whether she's attending a beachcomber's ball or her dream man's formal pledge dance, the fashion world will truly run the gauntlet. If she's wearing her oldest clothes or her newest party dress, the female of the species will be well-groomed. Her new, short-haircut is a fitting setting for a tomboyish outfit or the prettiest of gowns and rhinestone earrings.

Sunday, as always, will come far too soon. But Penn Staters still have the Blue Band Concert on the agenda. And again, our coed will be looking like a fashion plate in a new pastel-tinted spring suit, or dark skirt topped with light blouse, set off with artificial flowers.

Weekends pass by too quickly as all of us believe, so Sunday night every Penn Stater will prepare to return to a dull world of classrooms and books.

Talks for Grads Held by Women

The last big event for senior women only will be Senior Day to be held on May 23 from 3 to 5 p.m. in McElwain Hall main lounge.

Talks especially for those graduating will be featured on the program. Mr. Ridge Riley will speak on "Penn State After Graduation", Mr. George Leetch on "Job Possibilities and Interview", and Mr. Wilmer Kenworthy on "After College—What?"

The A.A.U.W. membership award will be announced at that time.

Excuses will be granted for those who have conflicting classes.

Air ROTC Colonel Honored at Dinner

Prop and Wing recently held a farewell banquet at the University Club in honor of Col. John Stewart, PMS and T at the College.

Col. Stewart gave a speech on leadership and the methods used by Air ROTC to prepare students for the role of leaders in the years to come, be it for military or civilian life.

Marriages

Gardiner - Rigling

An announcement has been made of the marriage of Beatrice Marie Rigling, Penn State alumna, to Thomas Richard Gardiner, graduate of the University of Richmond, in Baltimore, Maryland, on May 13. Miss Rigling was a former member of Beta Sigma Omicron sorority.
