Commerce Dept. Figure Will Fight Ouster Charges

WASHINGTON—Michael Lee, whose loyalty has been questioned in Congress, has set the stage for a fight to defend his $10,000-a-year job in the Commerce Department.

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer has asked for Lee's resignation, but Lee showed up for work yesterday. Sawyer was out of town, but department officials said that ouster charges are being drawn against Lee.

Another man under Congressional fire on security grounds, William Remington, also was asked by Sawyer to resign from the Commerce Department.

Truman Aboard Yacht

WASHINGTON — President Truman will spend today cruising on the yacht Williamsburg. He boarded the ship to resume his cruise yesterday after conferring with Secretary of State Dean Acheson and UN Secretary-General Trygve Lie on cold war developments.

Deaths Pass 300 Mark

WASHINGTON—The Memorial Day accident death toll passed the 300 mark yesterday. Traffic accounted for 212 of the fatalities.

Ad Association Awards 6 Prizes

William Boyles, junior in journalism, won first prize in the 1950 newspaper advertising campaign contest for Penn State journalism students. The contest is sponsored by the Interstate Advertising Managers' Association in co-operation with the department of journalism at the College.

Other winners were Mark Arnold, second; Robert Craig, third; and John Dempsey, fourth. Honorable mention certificates were awarded to Louis Gilbert, and William Daniels.

Monetary awards of $25, $15, and $5 were presented by Richard Beeler, advertising director of the Altoona Mirror, chairman of the judging committee. Robert Van Slambrouck, instructor of journalism at the College, received the awards on behalf of the winners at the recent convention in Uniontown.

A field of 35 entries was considered in the judging.

College Marks Memorial Day

Memorial Day will be observed at the College by ceremonies conducted by the ROTC, Pershing Rifles, and the NROTC.

There will be no classes today. At 6 o'clock this morning a flag detail will raise the flag in front of Old Main to half-mast. At 10 o'clock, a guard detail of six men will fire three rounds in front of Old Main and before President Atherton's grave. From there they will go to Recreation Hall to repeat the ceremonies there.

The same ceremonies will be repeated at 11:50 by a 12-man firing detail composed of Pershing Rifles and NROTC men. Forty Pershing Rifles and NROTC men will escort the colors. The 12 men will fire three rounds and the flag will be raised to full mast. The borough plans no official observance of Memorial Day.

Home Ec Conflict Exam

The Home Economics 15 conflict exam will be given June 1 at 7 p. m. in 100 Hort. instead of as previously scheduled.

Outstanding Senior

James MacCallum

MacCallum Cited Top Independent

James MacCallum will receive the Penn State Club's 12th annual award for the outstanding independent senior on campus at the club's annual banquet for graduating seniors on Sunday.

MacCallum will be given a plaque and have his name inscribed on a name plate to remain in the Penn State Club room, 411 Old Main.

Selection of MacCallum was made by a committee consisting of Russell Clark, director of housing; George Donovan, manager of associated student activities; and Peter Giesey, past president of the Interfraternity Council. MacCallum was chosen for his prominence on campus with regards to activities in general and because of his promotion of the welfare of independent men.

Senior in E & C

A senior in economics and commerce, MacCallum served as All-College secretary-treasurer, and chairman of the Interclass Finance committee. He was president of Sloan Hall and Pollock Circle Council and was chairman of the Student Union Committee and handled publicity for the 1949 Spring Week Committee. He was also junior clique chairman for the Lion party. He is in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities and Who's in the News at Penn State.

He served on the Student Union Board and was vice-president of the Association of Independent Men. Other organizations in which MacCallum holds a membership are Skull and Bones and Lion's Paw.

Spokesman Sees State Party 'Death'

Decisions made in a meeting Sunday night brought about what a spokesman called the "death" of the State Party as it has been known during the past few years.

Following its second Spring election defeat, the party will be rebuilt along completely new lines although the name "State Party" will be retained. The organizational group will not take action on election of clique officers and mapping of official party policy until Fall.

Tomorrow Is Last Day For Agency Papers

Tomorrow is the last day the Student News Agency will distribute daily papers, Alexander Skipp, director, announced today. The agency will function again in the Fall. Sunday was the last day for distribution of the Sunday papers.

No Collegian Tomorrow

The Daily Collegian will not publish tomorrow. The final issue for this school year will appear Thursday morning.

Further Methods Of SU Financing To Be Weighed

All-College Cabinet Friday empowered its Student Union committee to consider further methods of financing the proposed Student Union Building.

The action came one day after Cabinet had recommended to the Board of Trustees that a $20 per year assessment be levied on all students for support of the SU, to be scaled down to $15 for the first year only.

Edward Shanken, president of the Liberal Arts Student Council, suggested the action, and also favored setting up a separate committee to investigate the possibilities of other methods of finance. However, Cabinet voted to turn the function over to the regular SU committee.

May Raise Funds

The committee, to be headed by Robert Fast, has not yet been named. No members of the previous committee, which recommended the assessment plan, will be on the committee because they are graduating seniors.

A fund-raising campaign to help pay for the construction still is being considered in some circles, inasmuch as it is believed the assessment will pay only for interest on the principal of the loan needed, and for operations of the building.

Home Ec Party Due Tomorrow

A "Triple Decker Fun Night" is being sponsored by the Home Economics Student Council tomorrow from 7 to 10 p. m. on the ground floor of the Home Economics building.

Bingo, square dancing, and bridge will be featured. There will be a door prize and other surprise events, according to Robert Kirkwood, general chairman. Tickets are 35 cents or two for 50 cents. One ticket will admit the holder to all events of the evening.

Today is the deadline for all entries in the amateur photography contest sponsored by the College Alumni Association and the Camera Club.

All students and faculty members may submit photographs of indoor and outdoor college life, local scenes, and Spring Week. Prizes will be given for the best three pictures. Entries may be turned into the Alumni Office, 104 Old Main.

Used Book Agency Opens Tomorrow

The Used Book Agency of the Student Book Exchange will open tomorrow and will continue in operation until June 7 for receiving and storing books which students at the College desire to sell next semester.

Receipts for books turned in now will be given out on Oct. 16.

Guest Accommodations For Commencement

Mrs. E. M. Grove will be at the Chamber of Commerce rooms tomorrow to take care of accommodations for overnight guests visiting the College for commencement, June 11.

La Vie Shingles

Junior and senior board members of this year's La Vie may pick up their shingles at Student Union.

Cabinet Supports Plan For New Radio Station

Cabinet passed a resolution to support present plans for a College radio station at its meeting Friday night.

Cabinet also approved a proposal to recommend a change in dormitory contracts.

Emerson Jones, All-College secretary-treasurer, brought

Hatmen To Air Frosh Customs

All new members of Skull and Bones, Parmi Nous, Androcles, Blue Key, and Druids will meet in 121 Sparks tomorrow at 7 p. m. to discuss the freshman customs program set up for next Fall.

Robert Gabriel, Hat Society Council vice-president, said yesterday that the meeting "will be important in as much as next Fall's customs will be the first in several years, and we want the program to begin on the right foot."

Tribunal Head

Only those hatmen who will be on campus next Fall are asked to attend tomorrow's meeting, added Gabriel, who chaired the original Hat Council Committee which drew up freshman customs.

Also present at tomorrow's meeting will be the new and retired Tribunal heads, Neil See and Robert Keller.

In addition, Rudolph Valentino and Richard Clair, new and retired head cheerleaders, will be present to explain the flash-card system as it has been established at home football games for the past two years and how it will tie in with freshman customs next Fall, Gabriel said.

Memorial Speaker

Joseph F. O'Brien

Boalsburg Has Service Today

Prof. Joseph F. O'Brien, of the speech department, will be the featured speaker at the Memorial Day Services in Boalsburg at 6:30 tonight.

This will be the 86th anniversary of the service at the place where the idea of Memorial Day was born. The annual memorial services were originated by a group of Boalsburg women who started placing flowers on the graves of Civil War dead. Their group was eventually joined by other organizations, and in 1864, Memorial Day was officially proclaimed.

Today's service is directed by the Civil War Veterans of Boalsburg, and is open to the public. "The Glory of Human Courage," is the title of Professor O'Brien's speech. The themes of the speech are the meaning of Memorial Day as remembering and the meaning as a tribute to human courage.

the motion about the radio station to the floor and stated that the administration wanted some sort of student reaction before accepting or rejecting the budgetary application for the station.

At present, a completely outfitted radio station is set up in 304 Sparks, but it has no facilities for broadcasting outside the studio.

According to Jones, plans now call for the purchase of surplus wire from the government which would be installed in the heating tunnels running through the campus to dormitories and buildings.

To Use Channels

The reception would be beamed to regular radio channels, but the beams would only carry 250 feet on either side of the heating tunnels.

While Pollock Circle dormitories have no heating tunnels, there are tunnels which can carry the wire.

The staff would be made up of radio speech students and others interested in radio speech, some faculty advisors, and a Cabinet committee.

Jones, Samuel Vaughn, new editor of Froth, and Carroll Howes, president of the Agriculture Student Council were appointed to the committee that will work on the project. A representative from the Daily Collegian may also be added.

The proposal in no way was an indication that Cabinet would financially support the station, at least for the time being. The budget for next year has already been completed and the station is relying on the College to provide funds for the purchase of the wire, the installation, and the maintenance.

Dorm Contract Change

Richard Bard, president of the Association of Independent Men, requested Cabinet to pass a resolution that the dormitory contracts be changed to prevent a recurrence of the recent search of dormitory rooms during the Spring vacation by the College.

Bard requested that letters be sent out to the offices of the Dean of Women, the Dean of Men, Wilmer E. Kenworthy, assistant to the president in charge of student affairs, and Russell Clark, campus housing administrator.

Howes Wins KDKA Award

For the second consecutive year the Penn State entry has won the Pittsburgh KDKA scholarship.

This year's winner is Carroll Howes, a junior in agricultural education, who won the award over finalists from Ohio State University and West Virginia University.

Howes will work with radio station KDKA's Agricultural Director, Homer Marta, during the coming summer months.

Auditions were made on the station's Farm Home program May 19, and Penn State's entry was selected, Joseph E. Baudino, general manager of KDKA announced.

Last year's winner was Penn State's Ted Allen who served as All-College president this year.

Howes is president of the Agricultural Student Council and is a member of Gamma Sigma Delta and Alpha Tau Alpha honoraries and Delta Theta Sigma fraternity. He was former president of the campus 4-H Club and the Future Farmers of America. Recently he was tapped by Skull and Bones, senior hat society.
