U.N. Votes Today on Plan To Halt Spread of War

NEW YORK—The United States has proposed that the United Nations adopt a three-point plan aimed at preventing the spread of the Korean conflict to other parts of the world. The chief United States delegate asked that the proposal be taken up at the next meeting of the UN Security Council which will be at 3 p.m. today when Russia is scheduled to end her boycott of the council.

Here is the program submitted by Warren Austin:

First, the Council should condemn the North Koreans for their continued defiance of the UN.

Second, call upon all nations to use their influence to persuade the North Koreans to end such defiance.

Third, appeal to all countries to refrain from action which might lead to a spread of the conflict.

More Superforts

WASHINGTON—The Air Force is sending more B-29 Superfortresses to the Far East. The announcement did not name the units or the bases from which the planes will depart.

Will Hold Kumchon

KOREA—On the central front in Korea, Red troops have been putting new pressure on Kumchon. At that point, the Americans were forced back slightly, but a United States First Cavalry officer said that Kumchon will be held at all costs.

American forces are braced in new positions less than 50 miles from their vital base at Pusan. The withdrawal followed the Communist capture of Chinju, 55 miles to the west of Pusan.

Long Speaks At Dinner, Tells Education Needs

Dr. Charles M. Long, newly appointed head of the department of education at the College, discussed major problems facing education at the 13th annual dinner for graduate students in the School of Engineering Friday.

Dr. Long declared that a sound educational program must be designed to define and promote the purposes of our democratic society. To help accomplish this, specific needs of public education must be fulfilled, he said.

Among these, Dr. Long listed the need for more safety education in our schools, realistic courses in family living, and personality development. In addition, he cited a more thorough understanding as desirable on the part of teachers in truly understanding the child as an individual.

Need More Teachers

Dr. Long stated that the increase in the number of children now in school and those preparing for school will further aggravate the educational needs. He declared that a more serious problem is the shortage of well-trained teachers. An additional million teachers will be necessary to staff our classrooms by 1960—merely to maintain the educational standards of pre-war years.

In Pennsylvania alone, he continued, over two thousand elementary teachers will be needed to provide for the usual turnover. Ten billion dollars will be needed over the next decade for new classrooms to accommodate the (Continued on page eight)

UN Official Says Policing No Solution to Peace

Dr. Benjamin Cohen, assistant secretary general in charge of the Department of Public Information for the United Nations, told the Pennsylvania Workshop Friday that the United Nations does not believe that a solution to the problems of peace lies only in police power.

Dr. Cohen said it is possible to work out through international agreement a better distribution of the elements that allow people to live like humans, instead of sub-animals, as is the case of half the world today.

"Must Develop Plan"

"We must develop a plan to aid those destitute millions who are now living under such miserable standards that they are open to any philosophy that comes their way," Dr. Cohen said.

Dr. Cohen contended that there are no reasons why people with the technical know-how cannot work with people possessing the natural resources without any group setting up an imperial domination.

Compared League

Comparing the UN with the League of Nations, Dr. Cohen cited three factors that contributed to the downfall of the League. "At no time were all of the principal nations of the world members of the League; every nation had a veto right; and the League was never able to get to the people of the world," Dr. Cohen said.
