Class Rings

Only students in their sixth semester or above may order class rings, Harry Kondourajian, all-college vice-president, pointed out yesterday. Kondourajian made the statement to clarify the ring situation when he received reports that new students had inquired about their rings in local jewelry stores.

Eng Students Win Awards

Three 1950 engineering graduates and one undergraduate won $25 awards in the 1949-50 competition of the Engineering Undergraduate Award and Scholarship Program sponsored by James F. Lincoln Arc Welding foundation, Cleveland.

The two winners in mining engineering were Robert W. Cooper, New Bedford, Pa., and Edwin P. Sheriff, Morrisdale, Pa.

"Design of Wrecker Boom" was the title of Cooper's paper; Sheriff wrote on "The Design, Fabrication, and Assembly of an All Welded Conveyor-Pan Carrier."

James N. Sebastian, Locust Gap, Pa., and Harry F. Bennett, Johnstown, Pa., were winners in civil engineering. Sebastian wrote on "Design of an Overhead Destination Sign for a Highway Intersection." Bennett, a sophomore, wrote on the "Design of a Welded Ship Gangway."

The program, open to all engineering undergraduates throughout the country, gave awards to engineers in 40 different colleges and universities.

Students To Receive Religious Orientation

Religious meetings and services have been scheduled for next week to orient new students into the religious activities on and off campus.

Chapel Services Begin

Regular Schwab Auditorium chapel services this semester begin Sunday at 11 a.m. with an address by the Rev. Frank A. Sharp, an officer of the Northern Baptist Convention.

The non-denominational services, traditional at the College, are open to all students and their guests. James T. Smith, newly-appointed College chaplain; George Ceiga, organist, and Maynard Hill, tenor, will assist in Sunday's service.

The Reverend Sharp, who is director of the Department of University Pastor and Student work for the Northern Baptist Convention, will meet Sunday afternoon at 2:30 with the Roger Williams Baptist Church, and will speak at the church for the Roger Williams Fellowship that evening.

Eisenhower To Speak

President Milton S. Eisenhower will speak to freshmen on "Religion at Penn State" Monday at 7:30 p.m. in 304 Old Main. Dr. Eisenhower's talk will inaugurate a series of talks for freshmen sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association.

Dr. J. Bertram Kessel, assistant professor of physical education, will open a similar PSCA-sponsored series for sophomores with a talk entitled "Let's Get Acquainted." Dr. Kessel will speak on Wednesday, also in 304 Old Main at 7:30 p.m.

The series will continue through October. Other speakers scheduled for either or both series include Dr. Andrew A. Borland, emeritus professor of dairy husbandry; Football Coach Charles A. "Rip" Engle; John H. Frizzell, emeritus chaplain at the College; and the Rev. Edwerth E. Korte, campus pastor of the State College Grace Lutheran Church.

Three cabin retreats have been planned by the Christian association. Frosh men will use the PSCA cabin facilities on Sept. 23, freshman coeds on Sept. 30, and all new sophomores and new upperclassmen in a mixed group on Oct. 7.

Convocation Scheduled

An inter-religious convocation will be held for all students Sunday at 6:45 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

Sponsored by the student groups of town churches and the Penn State Christian Association, the convocation will include talks by President Milton S. Eisenhower and Luther Harshbarger, executive secretary of PSCA.

Representatives of the State College churches will conduct the religious service. Ministers of local congregations will be introduced.

Following the convocation, open houses will be held at all religious foundations and churches in the borough.
