Athletic awards are given to the head manager and associate managers for each sport. With football considered the major sport at the College, both the varsity letter winners and the head-manager receive an eight-inch block letter "S".

For all other sports varsity letter winners and head managers receive six-inch block letter "S". Associate managers in all sports are awarded 4½-inch block "S" letters.

All award winners receive sweaters with their awards. Graduating seniors, besides their letter, receive a gold award and also an engraved certificate of the letters that were awarded to them and the year they received them.

In the past, student managers have rendered a great service to Penn State's athletic teams in fulfillment of their duties.

Penn State attendance at home football games rose from 56,000 in 1947 to 82,835 in 1949. The Lions traditionally play four games on the home gridiron.

The customs now provide for freshmen to wear dinks and black bow ties, and carry four by six name cards. After the first week smaller cards will be issued.

Frosh will doff the green dink as they pass the old Willow on the Mall, or at the command of "Button Frosh" from an upperclassman. Men may not enforce customs on women, and vice versa.

Freshmen are also required to say "hello" to all they pass on the "hello walks," leading south from Old Main Plaza. They may not associate, or converse with women within a three mile radius of Old Main, except to say "hello."

Truman Asks Treaty

WASHINGTON — President Truman has instructed the State Department to begin negotiations for a peace treaty with Japan, he told his news conference yesterday.

He also predicted a Democratic victory in November, naming the Maine election results as his reason. While the Democrats lost, they registered large gains in that traditionally Republican state.

The vast job-getting facilities of the student employment office will be available as soon as students are sure of fall schedules, Allan M. Reece, supervisor, said yesterday.

Mr. Reece pointed out that the employment office has been open all summer, and is open now, but not much can be done for the student until he receives his permanent schedule. The employment office has to be sure of the student's free time to find a job for him, Mr. Reece said.

Last year, the student employment office reported the largest registration of part-time job seekers in its three years history. This year looms as an even bigger year, due to increasing need of students for financial assistance. Students desiring work, whether skilled or unskilled, should register with the employment office. Then, as jobs come up, they will be arranged in order of registration.

Interested students were asked to call at the student employment office, in the rear of Old Main.

Fraternities Start Pledging Saturday

Following a week of intensive rushing activities, Penn State's fraternities will start issuing bids tomorrow morning. This is in accordance with the IFC rushing code which states that no rushee may be pledged until 48 hours before classes begin.

The code provides that only upperclass students with a 1.00 average or better for the preceding semester may be pledged. They must also be receiving resident instruction on the campus. Freshman students may not be pledged until sometime during the second semester.

A special meeting was held Wednesday afternoon during which housing regulations, rushing, and pledge averages were discussed.
