

College Staff Adds 11; 7 Promotions Approved

Six department heads, four professors and an assistant to the president were added to the College staff during the summer. Promotions for seven other members of the faculty were approved by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, and three other faculty members were granted leaves of absence.

New department heads were named in history, education, botany, mineral preparations engineering and the engineering experiment station. The appointments were effective July 1.

Named to head the department of education was Dr. Charles M. Long. Dr. Long was a member of the department of education at Indiana University prior to his appointment.

Dr. Henry W. Popp, a member of the College faculty since 1921, was appointed head of the botany department. Dr. Popp succeeded Dr. Frank D. Kern, who retired June 30.

Dr. Alfred G. Pundt, a member of the history department, was promoted to head of the department, succeeding Dr. Paul J. Selman, who died May 24.

Dr. John C. Calhoun, former chairman of the school of petroleum engineering at Oklahoma University, was named chief of the division of petroleum and natural gas engineering.

Dr. H. Beecher Charnbury was appointed associate professor of mineral preparation engineering and chief of the same division, replacing Raymond E. Zimmerman, and Dr. Maurie Nelles was named professor of engineering and director of the engineering experiment station.

The appointment of Richard Maloney as executive secretary to the president was announced by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower during the Summer. Maloney, a member of Eisenhower's staff at Kansas State, fills the position vacated by Wilmer E. Kenworthy, now assistant to the president in charge of student affairs.

Those appointed to the faculty were Dr. O. H. Aurand, former superintendent of the Steelton borough schools, professor of education; Dr. Wilhelm R. Buessen, consultant to the U. S. Army Air Force, Dayton, O., research professor of mineral technology; Dr. Dorothy H. Veon, former executive officer of the department of secretarial studies and adviser for business teacher training at George Washington University, associate professor of business education; and Arthur W. Eistein, former vice-president of the May Co., Youngstown, O., associate professor of economics.

Those faculty members granted leaves of absence were Robert L. Stanley, associate professor of engineering research; Dr. Rose Cologne, specialist in adult community education in central extension; and Williams R. Young, supervisor of correspondence instruction in central extension.

Faculty members promoted from associate professors to professors were Dr. John C. Garey, bacteriology; George B. Newman, zoology; Russell D. Casselberry, zoology; and Otto W. Pflueger, forestry.

Promotions from assistant professors to associate professors were granted Michael W. Knerr, industrial education; Clair F. Fitz, industrial education; and Dean Asquith, economic entomology.

Frosh Assigned To Thompson

Permanent room assignments have been given all freshmen temporarily rooming in the upperclass section of the new West dorm units since their arrival on campus Sept. 10. Many of the rooms for the freshmen in Thompson hall are only partially equipped, and the dining hall is not yet completed. Final completion date for the entire new men's dorm are is not definite, according to Russell Clark, housing director.

Clark said rumors concerning the future installation of individual phones in the dorms were false. However, wastebaskets have been ordered for the rooms and delivery is expected any moment. Ash trays for every table in the rooms and for the dining hall will also be distributed shortly.

The recreation rooms in the area will be supplied with specially constructed ping pong tables, according to Clark. They will be longer and sturdier than the tables in the TUB and the girls' dorms. Pianos and radio-phonographs will be added to the lobbies in Hamilton hall and Thompson Hall when those lobbies are completely furnished. McKee hall lobby has been finished.

PSCA Function

An open house for upperclassmen interested in the Penn State Christian association will be held today at 7:30 p.m. in 304 old Main.

Commissions will be explained to new members who will be asked to choose one. They are Christian heritage, personal and campus affairs, social responsibilities and world relatedness.

Co-chairmen of the commissions will be introduced and short business meetings held. Refreshments will be served. Marjorie Allen, associate secretary, invited new members to attend.
