

Students Approve College's Choice Of Eisenhower

Appointment of Milton S. Eisenhower as president of the College found widespread student approval when announced last Jan. 21.

A one-day visit by the President-elect on Feb. 28 brought an even more favorable student response as, for the first time, the student body met its new chief in person. On both occasions, students and student leaders seemed elated both by the appointment of a president after a two-year vacancy, and by the character and reputation of the man appointed.

Student interviews were key-noted by such phrases as, "One of the best things that ever happened to the college." "He'll be a good man." "Eisenhower will do a lot to help the College advance" and "Thank God we have a President at last!"

When the new President made his first visit to the campus, he met most of the student government leaders. All of them were impressed. All-College President Ted Allen said, "I was very pleased with meeting Dr. Eisenhower. He will be a wonderful President to work with and I am sure that he is anxious to see student government continue to work in cooperation with the administration."

President Eisenhower's apparent interest in student affairs was commented on by several other leaders. James MacCallum, All-College secretary-treasurer said, "I was quite impressed with his friendliness and his attitude toward student government. He will take a great interest in student activities."

Others commented on President Eisenhower's sincerity, sense of humor, and quality of leadership. Most predicted a bright future for the new administration.

But the best summary of student reaction came from an unnamed coed. Of the new president she simply said, "He's a good Joe."

South Koreans Now 50 Miles Beyond Parallel

SEOUL—South Korean Troops continued their advance beyond the 38th parallel into Red Korea to the extent of 50 miles. There is no sign of serious resistance, but South Korean commanders and American advisers said they felt that the troops might be over-extending themselves.

Papers Strikebound

PITTSBURGH—A strike for higher wages by AF of L mailing room workers brought to a halt the publishing of Pittsburgh's three daily papers. Truck drivers on the papers have also refused to work. Non-striking employees were notified that until the strikers return there will be no work and no pay.

Bridges Criticized

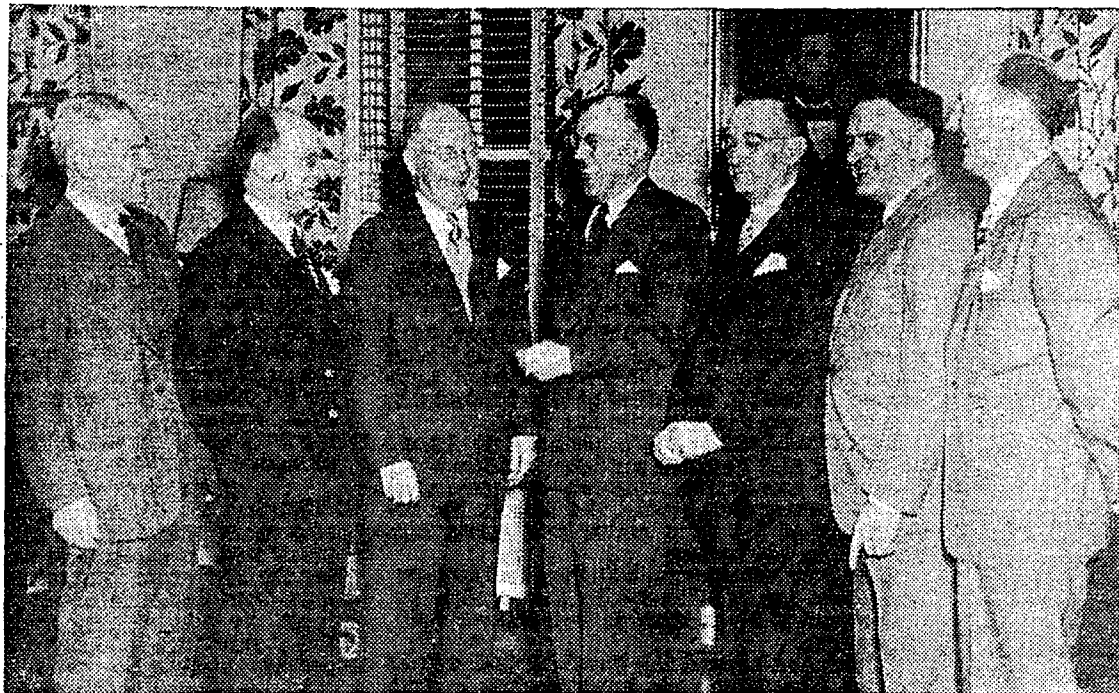

WASHINGTON — Senator Styles Bridges (Rep. NH) was criticized by the State department for his charge that Secretary of State Acheson is "selling out" America to the Chinese Communists. The Senator accused Acheson of opening the back door for the entrance of Red China into the United Nations.

AMA Campaign Rapped

WASHINGTON — Mrs. India Edwards, vice-chairman of the Democratic National committee, said the American Medical Association's campaign against compulsory health insurance is "a new, insidious political tactic" used to "beat the Democrats at the polls."

The AMA replied Mrs. Edwards' statement was "one of the most vicious lies ever in a series of vicious lies presented by self-seeking individuals."

5 Assistants To President Eisenhower's Chief Aides

SHOWN ABOVE with President Eisenhower and James Milholland, former acting president of the College and president of the Board of Trustees are the assistants to the president. They are (left to right) Adrian O. Morse, assistant in charge of resident instruction; C. S. Wyand, administrative assistant; Milholland; Dr. Eisenhower; Samuel K. Hostetter, assistant in charge of business and finance; J. Orvis Keller, assistant in charge of extension; and Wilmer E. Kenworthy, assistant in charge of student affairs.

Five men surround President Eisenhower and have their fingers on the pulse of the College. Each is an assistant to the President in charge of some specific area of the College's operation.

Samuel K. Hostetter, assistant to the president in charge of business and finance, has been in his present office since 1935. Previously, he held the position of secretary to the dean of the College, purchasing agent, and manager of the dormitories and dining commons.

He also holds now the position of College treasurer and treasurer of the Board of Trustees.

John Orvis Keller, assistant to the president in charge of extension, has been a presidential assistant since 1934. He went to Iowa State and set up an Industrial Engineering course there.

His duties now place him at the head of Penn State's huge extension system.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, assistant to the president in charge of student affairs, took over his present position in 1949. Previous to that, in 1937, he was named executive secretary to Ralph Dorn Hetzel, then President of the College.

In May of this year, at the inauguration of the new All-College cabinet officers, Kenworthy was awarded the honorary title of dean of student affairs by the newly-elected All-College officers.

Adrian O. Morse, assistant to the president in charge of resident instruction, was secretary to the Secretary of Agriculture before he came here as executive secretary to the President in 1929.

In 1935 he took over his present position. Morse acts as a coordinator between the schools of the College and handles all affairs concerning resident instructors.

Charles S. Wyand, administrative assistant to the President, took over his job in 1946, although he had been with the College since 1931 as an economics teacher. He was graduated from State in 1929 and received his master's degree in 1934.

While not given the title of an assistant to the president, Richard Maloney is the executive secretary to the President. Maloney was appointed by President Eisenhower in September of this year, after serving as registrar and assignment officer at Kansas State under President Eisenhower.

Newspapers Saw Kansas' Loss As Penn State's Gain

Election of Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower last January as President of Penn State elicited an outburst of surprise in Kansas and unleashed a flood of pleased and excited comment on the Penn State campus and throughout the East.

Kansas newspapers were unanimous in declaring that Dr. Eisenhower's resignation as Kansas State college president was "Kansas State's loss and Penn State's gain."

Surprise Departure
The Topeka, Kas., Capital said, "News of Eisenhower's coming departure took students and faculty by surprise. He has been a popular president and he has been held in high regard both personally and professionally by Kansas educators and citizens."

The leading editorial in the Capital a few days following Eisenhower's appointment said, "It (the resignation) will be accepted with regret by all Kansans interested in the advancement of education."

The editorial concluded by saying that the Eisenhower imprint upon Kansas State would be of permanent worth.

The Kansas City, Mo., Star declared that "the Kansas board of regents has a real challenge in finding a successor of Eisenhower's ability and with the promise of his accomplishments," the Star editorial ended.

F. D. Farrell, president emeritus of Kansas State, was quoted by the press as saying that Dr. Eisenhower's leaving would be "a very severe loss to Kansas State, but the college's loss would be Penn State's gain."

The surprised and pleased reaction in the eastern press was expressed by the Harrisburg Sunday Patriot-News, which said that Dr. Eisenhower's election came as a surprise, even though "the selection was unanimous."

A. R. Warnock, emeritus dean of men at the College, commented in his daily column in the Centre Daily Times that "Milton Eisenhower was held to be tops among college president possibilities here and elsewhere."

Orchid Leis Sent As Inaugural Gifts

Two Hawaiian leis of orchids were among the many gifts received this week by President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

The leis were sent by clipper plane by Dr. Gregg M. Sinclair, president of the University of Hawaii, and were presented to the Eisenhowers by Dr. Clarence

Hetzel Succumbed Three Years Ago

Yesterday was the third anniversary of the death of Dr. Ralph Dorn Hetzel, tenth President of the College. Dr. Hetzel died suddenly Oct. 3, 1947.

Dr. Hetzel served as president from 1926 to 1947.
