DiMag Homer In 10th Tops Phils, 2-1

Joltin' Joe DiMaggio lined a home run into the upper deck of Philadelphia's Shibe Park yesterday and with it gave the New York Yankees a 2-1 win in the second game of the World Series.

The blow came in the top half of the tenth inning and broke up a pitching duel between the Yanks' Allie Reynolds and the Phils' Robin Roberts. It was Joe's first hit of the Series.

ies after having popped to the infield in six previous trips. It was his seventh homer in World Series competition.

Until DiMag connected, the Yanks and Phils were locked in a 1-1 battle. The Yanks scored first in the second and the Whiz Kids tied the count in the fifth. After that both teams were turned back at every turn by the pitchers.

The Yanks got their run with two out in the second. Jerry Coleman walked on a full count and went to third on Reynolds' single to right. He crossed when Gene Woodling drove a single to deep short stop.

Mike Goliat scored the Phillies run in the fifth. He opened the inning with a single to right on which Coleman made a great stop but was unable to nip the speedster at first.

Roberts popped up trying to sacrifice but Goliat raced to third on Ed Waitkus' base hit which took a bad bounce over Coleman's head. Ashburn drove the run home with a fly to left.

Both pitchers worked themselves out of every tight spot thereafter. Reynolds got out of a particularly bad situation in the ninth with the aid of a double play.

The Yanks will throw lefty Ed Lopat at the Phils this afternoon as the Series shifts to Yankee Stadium. Manager Ed Sawyer, of the Kids, was undecided between lefthander Ken Heintzleman and righty Bob Miller.

State Lineups Unchanged For Crucial Army Test

Rip Engle, who made a successful debut as Penn State football coach last week, will stick with the same two platoon personnel he used in trouncing Georgetown, when the Nittany Lions match touchdowns with a highpowered Army gridiron machine tomorrow afternoon in Michie Stadium.

Satisfied that the starters he used in the 34-14 conquest of the Hoys last Saturday are the best at his call, Engle disclosed his intention of going along with the same units after the squad went through a brief workout on the golf course yesterday morning.

The Lions are scheduled to depart for West Point at 6:15 o'clock this morning, traveling by bus to Lewistown. From Lewistown the 44-man contingent will entrain to New York City, from which point they will move to Bear Mt. Engle will run the squad through a light session this afternoon at Bear Mt. The team will arrive at West Point shortly before game time tomorrow.

Starting Backfield

In the Blue and White backfield answering the starting gun will be quarterback Vince O'Bara, halfback Tony Orsini, fullback Ted Shattuck, and wingback and Captain Owen Dougherty.

The offensive card will line up with Art Betts and John Smidansky at the flanks, Chuck Godlasky and Ed Hoover at the tackle slots, Len Bartek and Jim Barr at the guard positions, and Ken Bunn at center.

Defensively the Lions will take the field with Pat McPoland and Dick Wilson, ends; Stew Scheetz and Dick Cripps, tackles, and Don Barney, guard. Backing up the line will be Len Shephard, John Podrasky, and Joe Shumock, while Bob Pollard and George Jacob will man the halfback posts and Chan Johnson will be at safety.

Koerber Injured

With O'Bara calling signals and throwing some timely, well-directed passes, the Lions displayed an offense which, it is predicted by observers, will improve steadily. Dick Koerber, who made his varsity debut last week by completing two touchdown passes, will be available only for limited service. Koerber, sidelined for two weeks with a strained ligament in his right knee earlier in the fall, aggravated the injury in the Hoya skirmish.

The most promising candidate to don the Blue and White in several campaigns, Shattuck was the squad's leading ground gainer in his varsity opener. The fast-stepping sophomore rolled up 72 yards in 17 tries for a 4.2 yards average.

Dougherty, a slow starter, can be expected to take a hand in the pitching department as well as carrying his share of the leather-lugging, pass-catching, and blocking from the vital wingback slot. Another back scheduled for plenty of game time is Earle Mundell, the 5-foot 4-inch speed merchant who displayed a flashy broken field ability last week.

With the Lions expected to go skyward with even greater frequency, ends Betts, Smidansky and Andy Silock will be three of the favorite targets for the Nittany tossers.

Pleased with the work of his defensive unit in stopping the Hoya air and ground attack, Engle is hoping that his athletes will come through with the pressure on. Engle was particularly impressed with the pass defense contrived by Jacob, Bob Pollard, Shumock, and Johnson, and with the bone-crushing, heads-up backing up of Shephard and Podrasky.

Rifle Practice

Candidates for the varsity rifle team will practice in the Armory at 7 o'clock tonight.

All managership aspirants are asked to report to head manager Harold Boyer at the same time.

Qualifying rounds for the team will be fired next Monday, Tuesday, and Friday evenings at 7 o'clock.

Blaik Moans, But Watch Knights!

1950 Version Of Cadets Maintains Grid Tradition

Despite the loss of virtually the entire offensive line, the cadets are rolling along once again.

Each year with the departure of half-a-dozen or so of his starters from each platoon, Coach Earl Blaik hauls out his crying towel and is invariably the first of the big-time coaches to howl at the moon. And each year with monotonous regularity the same Mr. Blaik comes up with another crop of football players as good if not better than the year before. His 1950 squad is no exception.

Foldberg Back

Working around Captain Dan Foldberg, end, and guard Bruce Elmsblad, Blaik has fashioned another Army line which is fast, rugged, and aggressive. Another veteran on the forward wall is Bob Haas, who is now over the ball at center. Teamed with Foldberg on the flanks is Al Conway, a junior, while Jim Cox, who saw some minor duty last year, will team with Elmsblad at guard. The tackles on the offensive unit are Lew Zeigler, who saw much game time in 1949, and Bruce Ackerson, switched from the defensive unit.

Supplied with one of the country's greatest array of ball carriers, Blaik has no worries about the backfield. Gone is all-American quarterback Arnold Galiffa and in his place is an adequate Bob Blaik, son of the coach. The rest of the backfield remains intact with Gil Stephenson at fullback, and Jim Cain and Frank Fischl at halfback. Behind these four Blaik has quarterback Gil Reich, and three swift-footed couriers in Al Pollard, Vic Pollock, and Jack Martin.

Strong Defense

Blaik's 1949 defensive unit, almost untouched by graduations, promises to be one of the roughest in the country. At the ends are Harold Loehlein and Bill Rowe-kamp; the tackles are Chuck Shira and J. D. Kimmel, while the guard positions are only handled by a pair of sophomores, Bob Volonino and Ed Stahura. Don Beck and Elmer Stout, the latter one of the great defensive line backers in Cadet history, will back up the line, while Hal Shultz and Herb Johnson will go at the halfback posts. Reich, one of the few men to play on both platoons, will be at safety.

Bill Mack, one of the nation's top mile and half-mile runners, has been awarded the 1950 Michigan State athletic council award for best combining scholarship and athletics among Spartan athletes.

Profits by Change

Everett Grandelius, winner of the "outstanding player" award in the annual spring intra-squad football game, was competing in his first game as a fullback. Grandelius, the Spartans' regular left half last season, switched to fullback during spring drills.

Pete Newell, Michigan State's newly-appointed basketball coach, directed the University of San Francisco's 1948-49 cage team that captured the National Invitation Tournament title in New York City.
