Chuck Wilson, tackles Stew Scheetz and Dick Cripps, and guard Don Barney, backed up by Len Shephard, John Podrasky, and Joe Shumock were the lads who stopped the Hoyas.

Engle was especially high in his praise of Shephard, Podrasky, and Shumock, and of pass defenders Chan Johnson, George Jacob, and Bob Pollard.

Vince O'Bara, who completed 6 out of 13 passes for 101 yards, will run the team from his quarterback position. Reserve flipper Dick Koerber, who completed three out of four tries for two touchdowns, will only be available for limited duty. Koerber aggravated an old knee injury last week.

Sophomore Discovery

Sophomore fullback Ted Shattuck, one of the most promising finds in recent Penn State grid history, will start at fullback. Captain Owen Dougherty is slated to start at wingback.

Art Betts and John Smidansky, ends, who were on the payoff terminals of two touchdowns last week, tackles Chuck Godlasky and Ed Hoover, guards Jim Barr and Len Bartek, and center Ken Bunn round out the offensive unit.

Army's offensive platoon includes Bob Blaik, at quarterback, fullback Gil Stephenson, and halfbacks Jim Cain and Frank Fischl. On the line are Captain Dan Foldberg and Al Conway, ends; Lew Zeigler and Bruce Ackerson, tackles; Bruce Elblad and Jim Cox, guards; and Bob Haas, center.

Jay Barry, Daily Herald Sports writer, tells this story about the day Engle left the Brown campus.

"It was Brown's loss and Penn State's gain when Rip decided to leave the campus' ivy covered walls and return to his home state to meet a new challenge. Our last memory is of Rip Engle coming into the Brown Daily Herald office a few hours before he was scheduled to leave Providence. He came around to thank the boys for the help they had given him during the past six years.

"I'm leaving Brown," said Rip, line up with Harold Loehli and Bill Rowekamp, ends; J. D. Kimmel and Chuck Shira, tackles; and Bob Volonnino and Ed Stahura, guards. Backing up the line are Elmer Stout and Don Beck, while Hal Shultz and Herb Johnson are at the halfback slots, and Reich at safety.
