

College Grows New Pa. Wheat

A new Pennsylvania wheat was released by scientists of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station at the College with approximately 200 acres planted to increase supplies for certified seed growers next year.

As the first new Pennsylvania wheat since 1917, the new strain has stirred considerable interest since it possesses milling qualities not available in popular varieties now in use.

Clarence S. Bryer, agronomist at the College, reports that in seven year's tests, the new wheat consistently outyielded seven other varieties.

Resists Diseases

The new wheat is a soft, red winter wheat with good yield, high test weight, possessing a stiff tall straw, and is resistant to several diseases. Milling tests show it has a satisfactory soft wheat quality, large kernel and good gluten quality.

While it has gone as high as 50 bushels per acre in some plots, the 1950 records show the new wheat produced 46.9 bushels average as compared to 44.5 bushels for all varieties under test.

Of hybrid origin, the wheat is the result of a cross first made in 1933 between Valprize and Nittany varieties by Dr. C. F. Noll, professor emeritus and former head of the department of agronomy at Penn State.

Taxi, Student Auto Collide

A car driven by Floyd Dreas, a student at the College, collided with a McClellan taxi early Tuesday night at the intersection of Allen street and College avenue, State College police reported yesterday. The damage to the two cars amounted to $45.

The Police Said

The accident occurred when Clarence Yearick, operating the taxi, attempted to make a right hand turn from College avenue onto Allen street and was struck by a car driven by Dreas, a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

Dreas, traveling in the same direction, had stopped at the intersection to discharge a passenger, according to the police, and he pulled out just as the taxi was turning onto Allen street.

Police said that Dreas will be charge with violation of the vehicle code.
