

Senate To Decide Winner In WSGA Treasurer Tie

No re-vote by the women students will take place for the unfilled office of WSGA treasurer which ended in a 360-360 final election tie between JoAnn Edwards and Jane Grubb on Tuesday night. The Senate, at a special meeting Saturday at 12:45 p. m., will break the tie by a plurality vote.

In calling for a re-vote, the WSGA unknowingly went against its constitution. This was one of the main topics of discussion at the Senate meeting Wednesday night.

At a special meeting of the Senate at noon yesterday, a statement was prepared and voted upon which explains the rule for voting in case of a tie in final elections. This statement will be posted in each of the women's dormitories.

Constitution Clause

"The hastily prepared statement given to the Collegian for the Wednesday paper regarding the third election for the WSGA treasurer is in error. According to the WSGA constitution on page 50 in the WSGA Handbook under Section IV, Final Elections: "Senate shall break any electoral tie by a plurality vote." Therefore, acting in accordance with the constitution, there will not be a third election, but Senate shall break the tie by a plurality vote. The decision shall be made at a special meeting of the Senate on Saturday, Oct. 21, 1950 at 12:45 p. m. in the WSGA room in White Hall. All Senate meetings are open to the student body, and your presence will be welcomed."

Senator Appointed

At the Senate meeting Wednesday night, Barbara Werts was appointed as freshman Senator. According to the constitution, one freshman senator shall be elected by the members of the freshman class and the other shall be appointed by the Senate. Jane Mason is the elected senator.

Suzanne Halperin was named publicity chairman for the WSGA.

A meeting of chairmen of the woman's dorms was held in Simmons Lounge last night. Herbert Axford and Jo Ann Esterly explained the purpose of the drive.

John Allison and Curtis Wessner are co-chairmen of the fraternity division. They have divided the fraternities into seven sections. A meeting of fraternity leaders is tentatively scheduled this week-end.

College Profs Co-authors Of Metal Report

A paper dealing with sheet metal construction will be presented at the annual Metals Congress and meetings of the American Society of Metals in Chicago on Oct. 23-27.

Co-authors of the paper on tension-compression biaxial stress-strain relations for aluminum alloys are Dr. J. H. Faupel, research engineer with the DuPont Co., and Dr. Joseph Marin, research professor of engineering materials at the College.

The paper is a contribution to a field of research which is important in the formulation of methods dealing with the forming of metal sheets into various industrial shapes as used in machines and structures with sheet metal construction.

The work to be reported was conducted in the engineering experiment station at the College and was sponsored by Wright Field and DuPont Co.

Dr. Faupel received his doctor of philosophy degree at the College in 1948.

Campus Politicos View Fresh, Soph Elections

Both campus political parties, now getting their campaigns ready for the Nov. 16 elections, will face much the same problems they encountered last year in freshman and sophomore class elections.

State party will meet at 7 p. m. Sunday in 119 Osmond, and Lion party will meet at the same time in 121 Sparks. Formulation of preliminary campaign plans and election of clique officers probably will be main business of the meetings.

The Lions, who swept to an overwhelming victory in the all-College elections last spring, will be faced with the problem of holding ground gained in the last two all-College elections. However, a defeat this fall would not do them as much damage as another Lion victory would do to the State party.

Staters, who have won in the last two fall elections, but have not taken an all-College election since spring of 1948, will be out to roll up a large victory vote to keep themselves in the running for the spring battle.

'No Drinking' Ruling Hit By Fraternity Delegates

IFC President ...

Harold Leinbach

Work Started On Resolution After Leinbach Is Called In

Protesting the "no drinking" ban of the College last night, fraternity men summoned Interfraternity council President Harold Leinbach before proposing a motion to take before IFC on the possibility of abolishing the ban.

The protest came up at the meeting of the social problem committee of the fraternity workshop program.

Before the resolution was drawn up, the Daily Collegian reporter present was asked to leave.

Fraternities believe that they are "butting against a stone wall" but are determined to get rid of prohibition, members said.

Leinbach proposed that a resolution be drawn up and promised action from IFC.

He told the committee that it must act through IFC and not go over its head, as some members had suggested.

Fact that University of Pennsylvania petitioned for and brought about the return of drinking to the campus was mentioned.

It was also stated that if men cannot drink in the open they will drink on the sly.

Last summer the College banned drinking in fraternities and other organizations and ordered that all bars be removed.

The no drinking rule states that "the College does not permit the establishment of bars or their maintenance in the residence or headquarters of any fraternity, rooming house, society or other student organizations and that all existing facilities shall be removed by Sept. 10, 1950."

At the Theta Xi house, another group discussed problems of pledge training.

One fraternity man suggested that a constructive hell week should be established by the fraternities. He referred to the Bellefonte hospital painting project undertaken last year.

Most of the group voiced an opinion in favor of such a plan. It was proposed that a central agency should be set up to gather information on such projects.

The group split on the problem of using paddles to keep pledges in line. James Davis, Phi Kappa Sigma, said paddles were used

Prof Opposes Hort Woods Parking Lot

"The only way for the College to be sure of retaining its one natural woodland is for Hort woods to be declared inviolate by the Board of Trustees," H. E. Dickson, professor of fine arts, told the Daily Collegian yesterday.

"Although present plans for a parking lot there may or may not be cancelled, the College needs a long range plan for its retention, not just this year or the next, but as long in the future as possible," he said.

Student support for the woods to remain untouched is evident, he added.

A portion of Hort woods had previously been staked out for conversion into a parking lot.

Questioned yesterday concerning further plans of the College, George W. Ebert, director of physical plant, said that he could "make no comment for publication at this time."

S. K. Hostetter, assistant to the president in charge of business and finance, was out of town and could not be contacted for comment.

NSA Officers At Swarthmore

Two men on campus who hold state offices in the National Student Association are attending the annual steering committee convention which opens today in Swarthmore.

They are William Klisanin who is state vice-president in charge of international affairs, and Murray Goldman who is chairman of the central Pennsylvania sub-region. Both men also hold executive positions in the local chapter of the NSA. Goldman is sending a substitute, David Fitzcharles, to the meeting.

The convention, which will extend through tomorrow and Sunday, is being held to decide the time and place of the open students' meeting which is to be held some time later. The committee will also decide what main issues are to be discussed at the open meeting.

The convention, which is open only to members of the Pennsylvania state executive board, will also hear reports from the national committee which has its headquarters in Madison, Wisconsin.
