

Planes, Men Searching For Missing Prof, Wife

A University of Illinois professor and his wife are still missing after a two-day, four-county search following their disappearance on a flight to State College.

Elliot R. Alexander, of the department of chemistry at Illinois, left Johnstown in a single engine Cessna at noon Monday to give a lecture at the College. He has not been heard from since the time of his departure.

The search for the missing professor and his wife, covering the area 50 miles north of State College and 25 miles on each side of the route, has been conducted through the combined efforts of the Civil Air Patrol, Air Rescue Service, the Pennsylvania National Guard, the Army Air Force, and voluntary assistance of airmen from other towns and cities in this area. Over 30 men and 10 planes took part in yesterday's search.

Bad weather prevented the rescue proceedings from starting on Monday when word was received. However, the search began with the fair weather on Tuesday. With the continuation of good weather, sections surrounding State College have been combed methodically by planes.

"We have nothing to go on," Wayne Showers, commander of the State-College flight said. "There was no word from the plane after its takeoff from Johnstown."

Dr. Alexander, it was believed, was not familiar with instrument flying which was needed with the poor visibility Monday. He had requested instrument plans for the area several times before leaving Johnstown. The route over which the professor had to travel consisted of 80 miles of rough mountain terrain.

There is a possibility that the army will send helicopters today to aid in the search if nothing is uncovered by the present method.

Penn State Club Initiates 38 Men

With faces smeared with red and black shoe polish, and waists fastened to a rope in close order formation, 38 Penn State club initiates were put through their paces Tuesday night.

The group was instructed by Louis Rauscher, initiation chairman, to serenade the girls living in MacAllister hall. They then marched to Burrows and Pollock roads to witness the tug of war between freshmen and hatmen. At frequent intervals they chanted, "We are the members of the Penn State club. We aren't the wheels, we are the hub." By the time the group reached its destination, many variations were heard.

A short business meeting preceded the initiations. Joseph Kosky, club president, announced the next meeting would be Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. in 405 Old Main.

Women's Debate Squad Adds 23

Twenty-three freshman and upperclass women have been added to the women's debate squad for the coming year, according to Clayton H. Sehug, coach of the women's debate team.

Those selected are: upperclassmen: Marilyn Cohn, Joan Dobson, Elinor Forman, Roberta Goldberg, Janet Horger, Virginia McMillin, Constance Matlavage, Eileen Olesker, Patricia Shaffer, Sylvia Silver, and Greta Weayer; Freshmen: Helen Carter, Peggy Crooks, Marjorie Ehman, Genevieve Kelly, Kay Lloyd, Mary Ann McFadden, Barbara Menapace, Dorothy Osterhout, Daphne Quigley, Gloria Schoffel, Guyla Woodward, and Marlene Zilberberg. Lois Pulver is manager of the squad.

Last year the women's debate team gained national recognition by winning the women's grand nationals at Fredericksburg, Va. In addition, they defeated the men's debating teams of the College and the University of Pittsburgh in a three-way debate.
