Sarnoff To Appear In Concert Tonight

Soprano Dorothy Sarnoff will open the Community Concert season tonight at Schwab auditorium with a program of grand opera arias and recital favorites.

Miss Sarnoff will sing Handel's "Aria from 'Susanna'" and "Arietta from 'Xerxes,'" Respighi's "Stornellatrice"; and Mascagni's "M'ama, non m'ama" in the first part of a six-part concert. Part two will include Schubert's "To Music (An die Musik)" and "Laughter and Tears (Lachen und Weinen)," Marx's "Marienlied," and Strauss' "Zueignung."

Part Three

Part three will consist of the single aria "Ballatella, from 'I Pagliacci'" by Leoncavallo. A piano group, played by Miss Sarnoff's accompanist Josef Blatt, will make up part four. Included will be Scarlatti's "Sonata in E Major," and Chopin's "Berceuse" and "Waltz in D Flat Major."

In part five Miss Sarnoff will return to sing Gretchaminoff's "Triste est le Steppe," Stravinsky's "Tilimbom," Debussy's "Beau Soir," Hahn's "Si mes vers avaient des Ailes," and Faure's "Toujours."

Miss Sarnoff will conclude with Villa-Lobos' "Lament," from "Magdalena," the Hughes' arrangement of two Irish folk airs, "I Am a Decent Good Irish Body" and "I Have a Bonnet," and La Forge's "Song of the Open."

Future Programs

Tonight's concert will be the first of five to be presented by the Community Concerts association this season. Mac Morgan, baritone, will appear Dec. 5; Josef Battista, pianist, Jan. 4; the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, Fabian Seviatsky conducting, Feb. 9; and the De. Paur Infantry chorus, March 9.

American-born Dorothy Sarnoff is a star of grand and light opera, radio, television, and recital.

She has appeared as soloist at Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell, the Hollywood Bowl and other concert stages, as well as with the NBC, Indianapolis, Kansas City, and Toronto symphony orchestras. She has starred with the New York City opera, the Philadelphia-La Scala opera, and the New Orleans opera.

Voting Heavy At Local Polls

Voting at Centre county polling places was reported heavy in early checks yesterday with the major interest centering around the Reede-Van Zandt race for the 22nd district seat in Congress.

Early reports showed that voting was normal throughout the rest of the state as the campaign, marked by some of the roughest name-calling in years, came to a close.

Interest Slight

Apparently student interest in the elections for governor and Congress was slight. PSCA, which was sponsoring rides home for student voters, reported that only four students had signed up. Few excuses from class for voting had been filled out, it was reported.

In the Reede-Van Zandt race, the betting odds reportedly had narrowed since earlier in the campaign, but Van Zandt, the Republican candidate, still was considered the favorite.

Counter-Charges

Polls did not close until 8 p.m., and no significant returns were expected until sometime before dawn today.

The local Congressional race was marked by charges and counter-charges which tended to involve the College, the Collegian, student government, and PSCA in the campaign.

Campaigning On Campus Set To Begin Tomorrow

State and Lion parties will begin official campaigning at noon tomorrow following the release of their platforms by the elections committee at a meeting tonight.

According to the elections code, campaigning may not take place until one week before the actual date of elections, Nov. 16. Another elections code regulation states that platforms may not be made public until they are passed by the committee.

Campaign Parade

Lion party clique chairman Huber Stevens said that candidates will begin a round of speech-making at fraternity houses as soon as possible. He also set Tuesday, Nov. 14 as the tentative date for the Lion campaign parade, depending when permission is given by the borough.

Stevens declined to give any further campaign information.

Speeches at Fraternities

Campaign chairman Murray Goldman stated that State party candidates will speak at fraternity houses beginning Thursday at noon. He added that speeches will be much shorter this year than they have been in the past.

Goldman also said that the State party will start a door-to-door campaign in sophomore and freshman living units, using their ward system as a means of introducing candidates to students.

Renewed Effort At Fraternities Urged In Drive

Herbert Axford, Campus chest chairman, yesterday asked all fraternity solicitors to renew their efforts on behalf of the chest drive.

Axford announced that no appreciable donations had been received at the chest headquarters in Old Main and that the total was still about $8,000.

Chief Bottlenecks

He said that the fraternities were the chief bottleneck in the drive's attempt to reach its goal of $14,000. Fraternity solicitors have been rather lax in their attempts to contact members, he added. He said that the fraternities are regrouping and starting over again in an effort to reach all members.

At the same time he complimented the faculty and college personnel for their contributions to the chest. He said that they were doing a "wonderful job."

"If the remaining students and fraternity members get behind the drive they can put it over the top," he said.

Greatest Amount

Axford said that he expects the greatest amount of contributions to reach the chest headquarters tomorrow, but added that the final figures on the amount of donations will not be available until sometime next week.

The drive was originally scheduled to end last Saturday but was extended until Friday in order to give the solicitors additional time to contact students they missed.

Dairy Teams To Play Host

College livestock and meat judging teams will play host to teams from Cornell, Maryland, West Virginia, and Ohio State universities today before going to the Eastern National Livestock show at Timonium, Md. Saturday.

The visiting groups will inspect new additions to the College herds and flocks, and participate in a one-day practice judging following procedures used at the intercollegiate contests later. The College entry will accompany the teams to the farm of Sen. Guy Leader in York county, a few farms in Maryland and another practice session at the University of Maryland.

400 Freshmen To Enter College Next Semester

Approximately 400 freshman men and women will matriculate to the College at midyear, C. O. Williams, dean of admissions, said yesterday. The ratio will be about three men to each woman.

Richard Bard, chairman of the board of governors of AIM, said that the new freshman men probably will not be elected to any office in the West dorms, where they are likely to be housed. If they are placed in the dorms, they will come under the rule of the officers already elected, but if the group occupies a complete block, they may have their own officers, Bard explained.

Tribunal has not yet considered any customs program for the new group, according to Neil See, chairman.

ASCE Slates Meeting

Earle Schwartz, bridge engineer for Gannett, Fleming, Cordry and Carpenter, Incorporated, designers of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, will discuss "Express Highway Bridge Design" at a business meeting of the Penn State chapter of ASCE in 3 White Hall at 7 p.m. today.

AIM Governors Not Efficient, Turk Charges

Francis Turk, former president of the Nittany dorm council, charged the board of governors of the Association of Independent Men with inefficiency and lack of organization at meetings of the West dorm and Nittany dorm councils Monday night.

The West dorm council subsequently approved the forming of a committee to investigate and take action on Turk's charges. John Laubach, president of Nittany council, said he would talk to Richard Bard, president of the AIM board, about the matter.

Bard was not available for comment on the charges.

No Meeting Held

Turk asked the councils to "get on AIM's back," or the board will be unable to operate effectively until shortly before Christmas. He said that Bard has represented AIM and its 6,000 members at five All-College Cabinet meetings, but, as yet, there have been no meetings of the AIM board.

He said AIM could not have a complete board of governors until the Town council is organized and officers are elected. This will take another month, according to Turk. "Let's put the blame on the four officers of AIM," he said. The other officers are William Zakor, vice-president; Richard Mills, secretary; and Howard Fitting, treasurer.

Turk said each student pays 25 cents to AIM "whether he knows it or not" for the operation of AIM but no services have been offered yet.

Nittany Council Protests Rates

Action will be taken by the Nittany council against the administration's plan to assess all men in the Nittany and Pollock areas $120 a semester for living without a roommate in a double room.

At a council meeting Monday night it was decided that a letter would be sent to men in charge of housing in the areas in an attempt to repeal the measure.

The council also protested the administration's right to allow weekend guests to stay in vacant and semi-vacant rooms. The council stated the opinion that if students were assessed the fee of $120 they should and not the administration hold the right to allow guests to sleep in their rooms.

Other action taken by the council include a $15 prize which will be presented to the leading dormitory in the Campus Chest drive, and the decision to aid the West Dorm council in their attempts to raise money for their treasury.

Student Sent To Jail

Charles J. Arton, 19, a student at the College in the lower division, was committed to the Centre County jail in Bellefonte Monday in default of $5,000 bail set at a hearing before a justice of the peace.

Arton was arrested last Monday by State College police on charges of larceny of an automobile. The car is owned by G. Motter of Halifax and was, according to police, taken from the campus Sept. 30.

Balloting Heavy In Congressional Election Returns

An estimated 42,000,000 voters went to the polls yesterday, and a record for a non-presidential year may have been set.

President Truman voted the straight Democratic ticket in his home town of Independence, Mo. yesterday, and then flew back to Washington for conferences on the turn of events in Korea. The President was so confident of the outcome of the election, he wouldn't even sit up to hear about it.

Korean Front Quiet

TOKYO—A strange quiet continued on the Korean front yesterday while Chinese resistance eased suddenly in both the Northwest and Northeast. There was nothing to indicate the Reds were withdrawing. During the lull, American and British troops advanced more than two miles on the crucial Northwest front. To the East, American Marines went forward nearly a mile toward the big Changjin power dam.

The Chinese Communist radio at Peiping admitted that Chinese are fighting with Korean Reds against United Nations troops in Korea. Radio Peiping said the Chinese were volunteers.

Prof's Essay Accepted

"Romantic Democracy," an essay by Dr. John M. Anderson, associate professor of philosophy at the College, has been accepted for the Fall issue of the American Quarterly. The essay deals with Walt Whitman and 19th century democracy.

Eisenhower To Address Colloquy This Weekend

President Milton S. Eisenhower will deliver the opening address at the intercollegiate colloquy to be held at the College this weekend.

Registration in 304 Old Main from 4:30 to 5:45 p.m. Friday will open the colloquy which will last until Sunday afternoon. The chapel speech, Sunday, will be a part of the convention.

The President will speak on "The Missing Factors in International Politics" at a dinner in the St. Paul's Methodist church. The dinner will be at 6 p.m.

Sponsored By PSCA

The colloquy is being sponsored by the Penn State Christian association and will be attended by 75 delegates from seven other colleges and universities.

The subject of the colloquy will be "Religious Idealism and Political Affairs." It will feature speeches by outstanding men in both religion and politics.

Speakers will include Dr. Liston Pope, dean of the Yale Divinity school; Kermit Eby of the University of Chicago; William Edgerton, professor of Russian at the College; Harry Butcher, Executive secretary of the Committee of Seventy of Philadelphia; Hiram Andrews, minority leader in the Pennsylvania General assembly; George Sturat, newspaper editor and member of the General assembly; Homer Brown, judge of the Allegheny county court; Father Charles Owen Rice, professor at Duquesne university; and Dennis P. Donovan, Mayor of Newark, New Jersey.

The purpose of the three-day convention is to acquaint students with the methods used in political affairs and to explore the relevance of religion to them, so that the student may be better able to formulate ideals in concrete situations.

Members of the faculty committee and resource leaders of the colloquy are: W. C. Fernelius, John H. Ferguson, Wallace Brewster, Neal Riemer, L. E. Corter, Seth Russell, Arthur H. Reede, William Edgerton, W. G. Mather, C. C. Peters, faculty members, Mrs. F. R. Matson, graduate student, and Luther Harshbarger, executive secretary of the PSCA.

Speeches and Discussions

The colloquy will include addresses, panel discussions and "backroom" discussions in which the delegates will have an opportunity to talk with the guest speakers intimately.

Delegations from Bucknell University, Juniata college, Lock Haven State Teachers college, Lycoming college, University of Pittsburgh, Susquehanna college, West Virginia University and the College will attend the colloquy.
