Local Politics

With statewide and Congressional elections now out of the way, Penn State sophs and frosh —as well as interested onlookers from the other classes—can give their undivided political attention to the class elections scheduled for next Thursday.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGNING by both parties, scheduled to begin today, will give most new students here their first taste of Penn State student politics. Some frosh and sophs—those actively aligned with the two cliques—already are in the swim, and many more probably will take an active interest within the next seven days.

Time for new students to get into the habit of taking part in political activity is now, before they get too immersed in other affairs to take an interest at a later date.

The new soph and frosh should get to know the candidates of both parties, and should study both platforms carefully. His student representatives will be called upon many times to make decisions affecting him, and it will be to his benefit to have a voice in selecting those representatives and making certain that he will elect the best candidates available.

Planned Rally

It's heartening to see that some actual planning has been done for tonight's West Virginia pep rally. A lively, well-planned program, plus an energetic publicity campaign should produce a really "peppy" rally, which will set a precedent for those remaining this year.

PREVIOUSLY THIS YEAR, there was little advance preparation for pre-game programs.
Thus, the Georgetown rally was a screaming success, while the Temple rally was a flabby fiasco. Such inconsistency defeats the purpose of a pep rally.

"Pep rallies prove to the team that they are not only 11 men on the field, but that they are 11,000 strong," said Robert Fast, Parmi Nous secretary. This senior men's society, with the help of cheerleaders, has tackled this problem with the hope of injecting some vitamins into the waning College spirit and of showing the team that we're all behind them.

So, here's to a mass turnout of students at the Lion shrine at 7 o'clock tonight.

Common Sense In Rules

TO THE EDITOR: On Saturday, Nov. 4, I arrived at McAllister dining hall at 8 a.m. It was raining hard. To my dismay, I had forgotten my meal ticket. Needless to say, I was told to go back and get it, even though I remembered the number on the meal ticket. A meal is not worth risking pneumonia twice . . . so I fasted.

I feel that strict adherence to rules is despotic.
We are individuals and as such ought not to be treated as members of a totalitarian society.

More Payment Plans

TO THE EDITOR: In my opinion there are quite a few who still resent the method by which the proposed Student Union building has been appropriated . . . It is not too late to find means and ways to alleviate the subsequent debt . . . which will be incurred upon the undergraduates for years to come. The following methods are believed to be in accord with the above:

1. Instead of letting the concession (soft drinks, etc.) at Beaver field in the hands of a private merchant, a plan should be initiated whereby the Student Union would run the concession and the enormous profit go to the Student Union building fund.

2. A similar concession (of dry goods) run by the Student Union could be had in Rec. hall during the indoor sports season.

Debaters Travel To Vermont Today

The Penn State men's debate team will travel to the University of Vermont today for its first debate tournament of the season.

The team will debate twice Friday night and six times on Saturday against New England teams. These teams will be picked prior to the start of tournament competition Friday.

Those making the trip are Professor J. F. O'Brien, debate coach; Marlin Brenner, team captain; Clair George, David Lewis, and Harry Kondourajian.

Penn State debaters last year tied for first place in this event.
All members of last year's squad have been graduated, however.

This will be the third debate of the season for the team. Earlier the debate squad defeated the Army team and engaged a combined British universities debate team in a non-decision debate.

Fernelius Gives Talk

Dr. W. C. Fernelius, head of the department of Chemistry, gave an address recently at the Metropolitan Long Island sub-section of the American Chemical society in Brooklyn, N.Y. "The Structure of Coordination Compounds" was the theme of his address.

2 Schools Hold Run-Off Ballot

A second election to determine the freshman representative to the Home Economics student council will be held today in the Living Center of the Home Economics building from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. In the first election there was a tie vote between Irene Buck and Marty Wornington.

In a second election runoff, in the School of Engineering yesterday, Richard Gibbs was elected freshman council representative.

Technical Conferences To Discuss Oil Research

Latest developments in research in oil production methods will be discussed at the 14th annual technical meetings to be held at the College today, tomorrow, and Saturday.

The conference, sponsored by the School of Mineral Industries and the Penn Grade Crude Oil association, will be attended by 160 men from the oil producing industry.

The three-day program will include the presentation of 13 technical papers, the showing of a color film "Microscopic Studies of Capillary Flow," and inspection of laboratories in the Mineral Industries and Mineral Science buildings.
