

Lions Favored Over W. Virginia

Anders Possible Starter; Passing Battle Expected

By MARV KRASNANSKY

Beaten in their last three outings, West Virginia's Mountaineers can be expected to flood the air with passes in an attempt to relocate the victory formula when they meet the Nittany Lions for the 17th time on Beaver field this afternoon.

Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

Victors over Boston College last week, the Lions are a one touchdown favorite to cop their third victory of the campaign. They have won two, tied one, and lost three. The Mountaineers enter the game with a season mark of two wins, five losses.

The Lions hold an 11 to 4 margin in the series with the Mountaineers. West Virginia will be seeking its first win since 1944.

Anders To Play

The chances of a Penn State victory were buoyed last night when trainer Chuck Medlar announced sophomore fullback Paul Anders would be ready for today's contest. Anders suffered a shoulder separation last Saturday and has been under treatment all week. It is doubtful that Jim Pollard, another Lion fullback suffering a similar injury, will see action.

Anders has been out of action all week, and Coach Rip Engle will not decide until game time whether he will start him. In the event that Engle decides not to start Anders, the job will go to Ted Shattuck, another sophomore.

Despite their poor season mark, the Mountaineers field a high scoring unit which relies greatly on passing. In his first year at the helm at West Virginia, Coach Art Lewis is going through the usual stages of rebuilding. His task has been made somewhat easier by one of the top passing-catching trios in the country.

Top Passing Trio

On the pitching end of the line are Bill Allen, a right-handed flinger, and Kent Bartges, a southpaw. Most of the catching will probably be handled by sophomore end Paul Bischoff, who is the 13th ranking pass receiver in the nation.

This trio has largely been responsible for the Mountaineers' standing as the 10th best passing team in the country. In seven previous engagements West Virginia has completed 73 passes in 167 attempts for 1154 yards. They have averaged 164.9 yards per game.

At the same time, however, the Mountaineers have been a soft touch to opposition passers, so it

Manhattan, State Collide In Battle Of Harrier Giants

By RAY GALANT

Coach Chick Werner's cross country team will attempt to preserve its undefeated record in the last dual meet of the season against the Manhattan Jaspers on the State course. The run will begin during the second period of the football game.

Coach George Eastment's Manhattan Jaspers will be out to snap the State cross country victory streak at four straight.

Beat Syracuse

Breaking victory streaks is nothing new to the Gotham city harriers. Earlier in the season they ended a Syracuse four-year victory run of 16 dual meet victories, 25-30.

Running away from all competition in the New York City metropolitan championships, the Jaspers have firmly established themselves as one of the top cross country teams in the east.

Lucas Top Foe Runner

Bill Lucas, two-time winner of the metropolitan title, will pace the Jasper contingent. Along with Lucas, the Kelly Green features such top-notch performers as Captain Walter Soltow, Pat Duffy, Bob McNeil, Frank Egan, Marty Enright, and Joe Seebode.

Coach Chick Werner's undefeated harriers with Bill Ashenfelter, undefeated in four previous meets, Al Porto, Don Ashenfelter, Dudley Foster, Bill Gordon, Bob Freebairn, Bob Parsons, and Jack St. Clair, will try to make the Kelly Green victim No. 5 and close out their dual meet season with a perfect slate.

In last year's dual meet between the Jaspers and the Lions, the Wernermen eeked out a close 26-29 victory.

Denver U. Coeds Don Grid Clothes

Touch football is no longer strictly a man's sport, at least not at Denver university.

At Denver the coeds play a game similar to the intramural touch football played between the fraternities and independents at Penn State. Out there the program is called the fleet bowl, according to Jack Lavin, a '50 graduate of the College.

Lavin said a cup is awarded each year to the winning sorority. The contests are sponsored by the Phi Kappa fraternity at Denver. The coeds show plenty of enthusiasm both on the field and in the cheering sections. Lavin said he attended one of the contests at which there were about a thousand coeds.

Can you imagine a big weekend where the girl tells the boy about the great pass play she made last week? Or the long run around left end? It would be different, wouldn't it girls?
