

Chest Drive—

Penn State Christian association, praised the chest drive. He said that it was good for the PSCA in that it gave the Christian association an opportunity to work with other student organizations which was lacking in former years when the PSCA held its own drive. "It helped dispel misunderstanding of what the PSCA is and what it stands for. In addition, we understand other student organizations better," he said. But he pointed out that if the chest falls short of its $14,000 goal it would mean a curtailment of the budget of the association. It would definitely rule out any hope of expansion in PSCA plans, he said.

He said that the Board of Directors of the PSCA would have to decide whether it would enter into campus chest drives in the future or resume its own individual drives. Last year the PSCA drive netted over $6000. They would receive a similar sum this year if the chest reaches its goal.
