Election Day

Election of freshman and sophomore class officers today is more important than most students realize. Although many people think class officers are mere figureheads, each officer has certain responsible duties.

THE PRESIDENT of each class becomes a member of All-College cabinet, and thus votes on issues which affect not only his class, but the whole College. This is the most important duty of a president, but he also presides over class meetings, and appoints committees for class activities. The vice-president attends cabinet in the absence of the president, and presides over class meetings if the president is absent. The secretary-treasurer writes minutes of class meetings, budgets class money, and attends cabinet if neither the president or vice-president can attend.

Give your class a boost, and whether you favor Lion or State candidates, choose the people you think will do the best job for your class, by voting in the second floor lounge of Old Main.

Activities File

Proposal for a student activities card file now being investigated by a cabinet committee prompts questions as regards the need for such a file and the information which would be included in it.

AS PROPOSED to cabinet, the file would include information on each student in four categories: (a) employment, (b) personal history, (c) scholastic, and (d) activities. It would be made available to various persons—students and outsiders—under control of a complex administrative organization.

Although cabinet felt that the administrative setup proposed was too complicated, it might also be noted that few of the people who spoke on the subject at a recent cabinet meeting thought the card file would be necessary. Aside from its immediate sponsor, only the feminine cabinet members—a similar file already is in effect for women—really endorsed the idea.

But, to us, the question of what information would be listed seems to be the more vital question. For example, these files are, under the proposal, to be made available to employers seeking men for jobs. This situation immediately raises the question of whether a prospective employer should be given access to the personal history of a student without the student's consent. If such items as race and religion were to be included in the personal history information, the file could be used by employers as a primary means of discrimination without their ever having to come in personal contact with the students against whom they would discriminate.

THE SPONSOR of the plan put forth the suggestion that users of the file could be kept under scrutiny by means of publishing their names in Collegian. But this would run into additional troubles. To be meaningful, publication of any such information would have to include the names of the students whose cards were studied and the purpose for which they were studied. We can imagine how happy hat societies, searching for names of prospective tappers, would be over such a provision.

If cabinet should go ahead with the plan, the question of what information would be available to what people for what purposes should be given far more weighty consideration than the mere topheaviness of the proposed administrative setup.

Dorms Named For War Dead

Each dormitory in the Nittany area has been named in honor of a former Penn State student who was killed in World War II.

A plaque bearing the name of a former student has been placed in the lobby of each dormitory. The committee in charge of obtaining the memorial plaques was headed by William Zakor, a student now living in the West dorms. The proposal to have each dorm named was made last year by the Nittany dorm council. The plaques were made early this semester. Pollock dormitories had been named previously.

The dormitories and their new names are 20, Gerald T. Kearns; 21, Martin Barndollar; 22, William Gillmore; 23, William T. Jones; 24, Edwin Nock; 25, Ernest Zukauskas; 26, Bruce Gillard; 27, Roger E. Smiley; 28, John J. Broderick; 29, Basil Vaczmarczyk; 30, James R. Rizzolo; 31, Leonard Wilhelm; 32, Paul Moyer; 34, Charles Vanela; 35, Benjamin Wilmer; 36, Joseph Schmucker; 37, William Foucort; 38, John R. Laubach; 39, Judah Kovitch; 43, Harold Fortinsky.

Dorm Men Plan Mixer Tomorrow

Men from the Nittany-Pollock area will hold a mixer with women from Grange and Simmons halls in Grange playroom and Simmons recreation room at 7:30 tomorrow night, Victor Fiscus, president, announced at the Pollock dorm council meeting Monday night.

The council also decided to select a representative-at-large to the board of governors of the Association of Independent Men at its next meeting. Each dorm will select a member to appear before the council to give a three-minute speech on his qualifications for the position.

At the last meeting the following men were elected officers of the council: Robert Strottemeyer, vice-president; Norman Kaplan, secretary; and Richard Hamilton, treasurer.
