

Elections—

(Continued from page one) sophomore vice-presidential candidate, and John Harris were hit. Rosfeld was hit in the ear with an apple and Harris was hit in the eye with an egg. They were taken to the infirmary for treatment and were discharged.

Edwin Barnitz, chairman of the All-College elections committee, said the affair was "very thoughtless" and said that although the elections committee had no jurisdiction in the matter, an investigation would be made and the guilty parties would be strictly disciplined if they were caught.

Huber Stevens, Lion clique chairman, termed the demonstration as "unsportsmanlike conduct and very foolish." He said that someone might have been seriously hurt and deplored the conduct of the men who were associated in it. He said he believed it "was not the fault of either party."

The State party held a parade last night which toured the town and fraternity sections. The candidates rode in convertibles and a band accompanied the parade. The Staters had held their campus parade Saturday and so were not allowed to tour the campus because of an elections code ruling which states that only one campus parade may be held by each party during a campaign.

Barnitz urged every sophomore and freshman to get out and vote "for a better student government." He said that about 4,300 students were eligible to vote and said he hoped that a large percentage of them would turn out to vote today. Barnitz said that it would take only a few minutes to vote because of the alphabetical system of voting. There will be an alphabetical breakdown of the voters by last names and there will be six tables at which to vote.

Institute Offers 2 Fellowships

Two Hamilton-Standard fellowships awarding master's degrees and two design contests sponsored by the Beaux-Arts institute of design were announced recently.

The fellowships will be available next semester. One of the fellowships is for mechanical engineering and the other for electrical engineering.

The student, on completion of his college work, is guaranteed a job with the Hamilton-Standard company. Fellowship stipend is $1,200 for a ten-month academic year.

Application forms for the fellowships will be found in 204 Engineering A. Students graduating in January who wish to be considered for these fellowships must fill out the forms and obtain letters of recommendation from faculty members in the next few weeks.

Total amount in prizes for the two national design contests is $325.

Problems for the contests are a design for a group of garden apartments with 350 dwelling units and a sketch plan for a public swimming pool.
