College Places 3rd In Meat Judging

Penn State's meat judging team ranked third in intercollegiate judging events at the National Live Stock show at Timonium, Md., on Tuesday. The team coach, Prof. P. T. Zeigler, reported that Ohio State university won the meet with North Carolina second, Penn State third, and others in this order: West Virginia university, University of Maryland, University of Tennessee, and the University of Massachusetts.

William R. King, one of the Penn State team members, ranked sixth high man in individual honors for all divisions of the contest. King tied with Harrison Feese for 5th place in pork judging, placed first in beef grading, tied for 3rd in judging lamb, and placed 3rd in beef judging. Harrison Feese, in addition to tying in pork judging, rated 4th in lamb grading and placed 6th in lamb judging.

Pa. Dutch Custom To Be Observed

The Home Economics building at the College is now displaying articles employed in early Pennsylvania-German homes in its exhibition cases on the first floor until Dec. 1.

The utensils are a part of a collection which was started several years ago with a gift of money made to the School. It was made possible to enhance other items to the collection by donations from faculty, alumni, students, and friends of the School.

The Committee in charge of the work hopes the collection may become large enough to be representative of the cultures and crafts of the early settlers of the Pennsylvania-German areas of the State and instrumental in preserving their traditions.

Among the utensils shown are pewter spoons of various sizes, a spatter-ware plate, copper and brass ladles and dippers, candleholders, a crimping iron, and a piece of fine Stiegel glass.

Magill To Play For Soph Dance

Gene Magill's orchestra will play for the informal sophomore dance Friday, Dec. 1 in Rec hall from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Sophomores may obtain tickets for the dance by presenting matric cards at the Student Union desk in Old Main beginning next Monday and continuing to the end of week.

Co-chairmen Marian Whiteley and Thomas Smith have named the following committee heads: decorations, Glenn Wiggins; publicity, Shirley Gallagher; and finance, Josephine Waterhouse. These chairmen will select committee members in the near future.

Smith said that the decoration committee hopes to use some unique decorations despite the limited budget for the dance.

Lion Shrine Guards...

Apples And Cider Make Life Brighter

Who's tired of cider? Who thinks apples have seen their day? No doubt there are a few students weary of apple-eating and cider drinking, but surprisingly enough, Harry Jones, foreman of the College apple orchards, will go on biting into a round ripe McIntosh or juicy Delicious day after day, year after year.

He should have the right to refuse a look at a glass of cider or dish of apple sauce. For Jones has been looking at apples in the College orchards for a little more than a quarter of a century.

He deals with apples every day, raising, pruning, picking, grading and packing them. Enough to make you swear off apples for life isn't it?

Jones first arrived at the College in 1920 as a two-year agriculture student. He began full time work for the College in 1924, and in 1926 became foreman of the College orchard.

Today's apple-raising conditions vary greatly from that time, when no more than a paltry 6000 bushels were produced. At present the annual output is 20,000 bushels.

Now, Jones has a crew of about 45 persons to pick and pack the crop. Mechanical equipment helps do the job quicker and better—and higher quality apples arrive on the consumers table.

Orchard work is a year-around job, and a risky one at that, for frosts, insects, and excessive rainfall can do much damage to a good crop.

Jones has had trouble with heavy and early frosts which reduced the crop severely but other than that he has better than average luck with the orchards.

Frosh Permissions

Freshman girls will be given special ten o'clock permissions for return from Thanksgiving vacation, Sunday night, November 26, said Virginia Pruess, chairman of Freshman Customs and Regulations Board.

APU Honorary Installs Axford As President

Herbert Axford was installed as president of the Alpha Phi Omega, national service honorary, at its annual initiation banquet at Autoport last Thursday.

Other officers installed were Paul Shogren, vice president; Robert Zarr, recording secretary; Donald Beal, corresponding secretary; Thomas Sadler, alumni secretary; David Lockard, treasurer; William Borrowes, historian; and Prof. H. Norton Cope, chairman of faculty advisory committee.

Entertainment was provided by the Troubadors, a male quartet.

'Farmer' To Go On Sale At SU, Grahams Tuesday

The November issue of "The Penn State Farmer" will go on sale Tuesday at Student Union and Graham's. Featured article this month is "Draft Horses Are Not On the Way Out" which describes the new program of horse breeding being carried on at the College by Elmer Taft.

Other articles include "One Name for Wood", a personality sketch on Dr. David A. Kribs, botany professor who is doing research on identifying different kinds of wood; an article on mushroom raising in Pennsylvania; and an article on the new automatic henhouse developed at the College.

Charles Zellner, editor of the Penn State Farmer, will attend the annual meeting of the Agricultural College Magazines Association in Chicago next Friday and Saturday.

He will be accompanied by Tom Jurchak, business manager of the Farmer, and Professor Roy Buck, faculty adviser. Zellner is a senior in poultry husbandry, and Jurchak is a junior in animal husbandry. Professor Buck is an instructor in the rural sociology.

Mil Run-off Elections

The run-off election for freshman representative to the Mineral Industries student council will be held Nov. 28 from 4 to 5 p.m. in 110 electrical engineering. Louis Fefolt and Arthur Hussey tied for the position in the last election.

Mil Ball Invitations

ROTC cadets in the freshman and sophomore classes can obtain a limited number of invitations to the Military ball.

Students in the Air, Army, and Naval units should apply for invitations at their respective headquarters. All invitations to advanced students have been distributed.
