Forbes Field Site Of State-Pitt Classic

By MARV KRASNANSKY

Penn State and Pittsburgh will try for the third time to play their on-again-off-again football game this Saturday afternoon, but the site of the battle—the 50th in the ancient series—has been switched to Forbes field, home of the Pittsburgh Pirate baseball club and the Steeler professional football team.

Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

The decision to move the game from snow-bound Pitt stadium to Forbes field was made yesterday by University of Pittsburgh authorities when they found that they would be unable to clear the field by Saturday.

Buried Under Snow

Located on high ground, the Pitt bowl was buried under an estimated 144,000 cubic feet of snow. Pittsburgh officials said that it would take 2000 truckloads and 500 men at a cost of $15,000 to clear the field. Although the playing area is covered by a tarpaulin, snow drifts of from three to four feet covered the entire field.

3 Men Elected To AIM Board

Ray Evert, Robert Huling, and John Stoudt were elected representatives-at-large from the West dorm area to the board of governors of the Association of Independent Men.

Evert, Huling, and Stoudt were chosen from a slate of 18 by residents of the area in all day balloting Nov. 20. Fifty per cent of eligible voters cast ballots. The offices were hotly contested with posters and placards blanketing the area before the election.

Under a provision of the new AIM constitution, each men's dorm area is allowed one representative-at-large on the board of governors for every 500 residents. The constitution permits each dorm council to choose its own method for electing the representatives.

West dorm council allowed any area resident submitting a petition containing 50 signatures to have his name placed on the ballot. Any undergraduate resident in the area was eligible to vote for three candidates.

Nittany dorm council has elected Michael Hanek, a council member, to represent that area on the AIM board. Pollock dorm council will select an area representative at its next meeting.

Pollock Dorm 7 Burns In Rainstorm

Fire destroyed Pollock dormitory 7 in the midst of a driving rainstorm, which helped the fire company confine the blaze to Moffatt hall.

The blaze, discovered early Saturday morning, was believed to have started in the basement of the pre-fabricated dormitory in an oil-heater in the utility shop.

The building, one of nine previously closed by the College, was used as a store-room for unused dormitory furniture, automatic laundry units, and other College property.

Damage was estimated at $10,000.

It was the sixth time that fire had broken out in the same unit. After the fire was thought out, it started up again and completed the job it had started.

Phone Booth Leveled

Several people saw the fire at the same time. Donald E. Nelson, a resident of Windcrest, saw the blaze and headed for the nearest phone. He was still in his night clothes, and rain and a 65-mile-an-hour wind were going on at the time. Arriving at the location of the phone booth, he found that it had been leveled by the wind. Just as he began to run toward Simmons hall, the fire whistle in the borough sounded the alarm.

Chinese Reds Pushing UN Forces Back

KOREA — A Communist flanking drive pushed to within 12 miles of the main Allied supply line and about 30 miles from Pyongyang. The U.S. 25th and Second divisions retreated across the frozen Chongchon river under heavy pressure, and the U.S. 24th and Korean First were expected to follow.

Field commanders called the situation crucial, and military men regard the situation resulting from surprise Chinese attacks as very grave.

Austin Questions China

LAKE SUCCESS — Warren Austin, chief U.S. delegate to the UN, demanded yesterday that Communist China explain why it has sent thousands of troops into Korea. He told the Red Chinese delegate that the latter had spoken distortions and lies, and asked the question: "Will there be peace or war in the Far East?" And he added, "The world waits anxiously for the answer."

Draft Change Expected

WASHINGTON — A member of the Senate Armed Services committee said that Congress is almost sure to be asked to change the draft law to get more men into service. The age limit for men being drafted now is 19 to 26. Millard Tydings, chairman of the committee, said a whole new war plan must be developed as a result of the Chinese Communist attack, and hinted that such a plan is already being worked out.

Class Make-up Unsure

No decision will be taken on making up the two days of classwork cancelled by the storm until the beginning of next week, the President's office announced yesterday.

Blue Band Through For Rest Of Year

The Penn State Blue band is through marching for this year, Harold Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, said yesterday. They will not go to Pittsburgh again when the Penn State-Pitt game is played.

But the Blue Band, cheated out of playing when they were in Pittsburgh last weekend, got even with old man weather by giving two impromptu concerts, one in the lobby of the Pittsburgher hotel, and the other in the Pittsburgh railroad station.

Played Several Pieces

Late Saturday morning before the band left the hotel to walk the six snowbound blocks to the station, they played several pieces to the snowbound patrons of the Pittsburgher. While they played, Hummel Fishburn, director of the Blue band, described the band's marching formation to the listeners.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph sent a photographer to the hotel, and a picture of the band appeared in that paper.

When the band arrived at the railroad station to take the 4 p.m. train to Tyrone, they found that the 1 o'clock train had not yet left, so once again they hauled out their instruments and serenaded the crowd of travellers. Almost two thousand people gathered to hear the music.

Blow Torch Used
The train finally left the station at six p.m. and arrived at the Tyrone station at 3:30 Sunday morning. During the trip, each switch had to be thawed out with a blow torch before the train could proceed.

At Tyrone, the busses which were supposed to meet the train at 7 p.m. were snowbound also, and the boys of the band pillowed their heads on their instruments and tried to go to sleep. Later, the National Guard and the American Red Cross brought army trucks that could navigate the high water in the streets, and the members of the band were taken to the Tyrone high school where they spent the rest of the night on the wrestling mats.

On the return trip, a few of the Blue band members stayed behind in Pittsburgh until they could bring their cars back with them.

'Battle Of Sexes'
Debate Postponed
The annual men-women debate with Mt. Mercy college scheduled for tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in 121 Sparks, has been postponed indefinitely. Gerald Walmer and Paul Litwak of the College debating team will oppose two coeds from Mt. Mercy. The question will be, Resolved: "Single men should be taxed for the support of unmarried women."

Cross examination style of debate will be employed. This affords both sides with an opportunity to question directly their opponents. Professor J. F. O'Brien of the speech department will act as chairman.

Shoes Preferred By Mystery Thief

For the third year an odd kind of theft occurred in the Pollock circle area, and campus police are at a loss to explain it.

It seems that nine pairs of shoes have mysteriously disappeared. The shoes are all different colors and sizes. Eight pairs were taken from the southwest wing of dorm 11 and one was stolen from dorm 8.

Campus patrol captain Philip Mark said that the shoes last year reappeared as mysteriously as they disappeared and hopes that the same thing happens this year.

Mark said that whoever took the shoes passed up other more expensive articles of clothing which were in the rooms.

Pittsburgh Struck By 29-Inch Snow; Digging Out Begins

One of the worst storms in the history of the East swept across the state this weekend, causing deaths and damages which are still being tabulated.

Latest figure on the death toll in the 22 states hit by the storm is 281, with 36 of the deaths recorded in Pennsylvania.

Property damage has been roughly estimated high up into the millions. Pennsylvania and Ohio, the two states hit worst by the storm, are still digging themselves out, and no complete report has been tabulated.

Pittsburgh Hit Hard

Pittsburgh was the hardest hit in the storm area. The city is beginning to show signs of life again this week after being buried in an 29.1-inch avalanche of snow that choked off all traffic and left thousands of people, including many College students stranded.

Mayor David L. Lawrence yesterday ordered all but emergency traffic turned back from thoroughfares leading to downtown Pittsburgh. Public transportation in the city had been restored only 35 per cent by yesterday.

Officials say that the city will not be back to normal again at least until the end of the week.

Time Tables Now Available

Spring semester scheduling time tables are now on sale on the ground floor of Willard hall.

First phase registration will still take place on Monday and Tuesday of next week, and classes will be canceled those two days. Adrian O. Morse, assistant to the President in charge of resident instruction, said.

Alphabetical listing will not be used in the School of Home Economics. Students are requested to report to their advisers by Saturday for definite appointments. Juniors and seniors wishing to enter a course in which section sizes are controlled may pick up section cards Monday in the main office. Freshmen and sophomores may get section cards Tuesday, and upperclassmen will be given no preference after Monday.

Because of a printer's error, the times for final registration were incorrectly stated in the time table. The columns of times as they now appear in the time table are in reverse order.

The list of names beginning with A-An and ending with Eis-Fan should go with the list of times beginning with 8 a.m. and ending with 11:45 p.m. The names beginning Far-Fit through Kup-La register from 1 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. on Feb. 1.

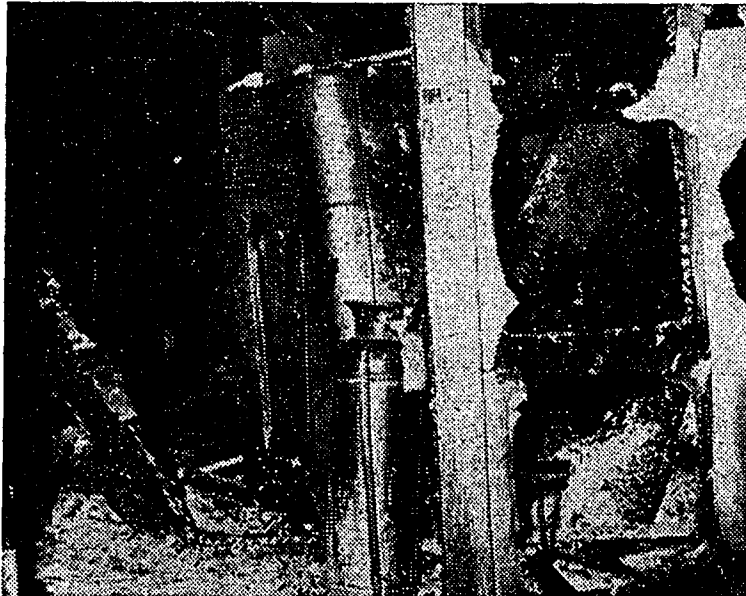

On Feb. 2 the names Le-Lin through Roc-Roz register from 8 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., and the names Ru-Sca through Za-Zy register from 1 p.m. to 4:45 p.m.

A correct schedule for final registration will be printed in the Daily Collegian at an early date.

Directories Delayed

Student directory shipments have been delayed. No definite date is set for their sale.

Hall Fire Aftermath...

NOTHING BUT CHARRED surroundings remained for returning students to see in the basement of one wing of Moffatt hall, which was damaged by fire Saturday. Shown here is the basement heating unit with a fire extinguisher nearby. Snow came in from all sides and through the roof during the recent storms.

Cap And Gown Deposits Due

Seniors who expect to graduate in January should sign up for their caps and gowns at the Athletic store.

Due to the extended Thanksgiving vacation, Agriculture seniors, who were scheduled to pick up their caps and gowns on Monday and Tuesday, will do so next Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 6 and 7.

The deposit for cap and gown is $5. Seniors should give their hat size when ordering. Invitations and announcements are 10 cents each and may be ordered at Student Union on the same days as noted above. Students who will graduate in military uniform should not sign up for cap and gown.

The schedule is as follows: Education and Engineering, Nov. 30; Chemistry and Physics and Mineral Industries, Dec. 1 and 2; Liberal Arts, Home Economics, and Physical Education, Dec. 4 and 5; Agriculture, Dec. 6 and 7.
