Trustees Ratify Tenure Policy

The board of trustees has approved a policy on academic freedom, tenure, and resignations for the College faculty based on recommendations of the American Association of University Professors, President Milton S. Eisenhower announced yesterday.

While the program will not go into effect officially until July 1, 1952, President Eisenhower said, "the spirit of the new tenure plan is effective immediately."

Covered by the policy are full-time research assistants, instructors, research associates, assistant professors, associate professors, and professors. The plan does not apply to visiting professors, visiting lecturers, part-time or temporary employees, or staff members working for degrees.

Probationary Period
The policy sets forth a probationary period of up to seven years full-time work at this and other schools, after which full-time teachers will receive permanent tenure. The College may require that up to four of the years be served here.

A 90-day notice will be given a teacher if his contract is not to be renewed after the first year of probation; 12 month notice of non-renewal is required for any other year. Teachers dismissed on moral grounds forfeit these rights.

During the probationary period, teachers have the same academic freedom as permanent faculty members. The College must notify a teacher when he attains permanent status.

Committee Formed
The policy sets up a faculty-administration committee to hear appeals from teachers in disputed dismissals. When a teacher is dismissed because of a fund shortage no other teacher may be appointed to his post within two years unless he declines reinstatement.

In the section on academic freedom, the plan says, "The teacher is entitled to full freedom in research or other services of his own undertaking . . . subject to the adequate performance of his other academic duties."

Teacher's Right
The plan sets forth the teacher's right to a hearing.

Debating Team Wins 12 Events

Teams representing the College won 12 of the 16 events in which they competed at the Temple university novice debate tournament last weekend.

Two affirmative and two negative teams from the College competed in the annual tournament, which features debaters who have never before entered an inter-collegiate event. The topic was the national debate question, "Resolved: That the non-Communist nations should form a new international organization."

No winner was announced, but George Washington university compiled the best record, with eight wins and no losses. Penn State placed in the first ten. Eighty teams from 40 eastern universities were entered.

Last year the College won 11 of the 16 events in which they competed. One Penn State team was undefeated in four starts and gained the highest rating of the 76 competing teams.

This year each team won three and lost one.

Affirmative Teams
One affirmative team, consisting of Robert Alderdice and Gifford Phillips, defeated Princeton, Temple, and Ursinus, and lost to New York university. The other, with Edward Shanken and Robert Matasick, defeated Temple, Georgetown, and Drexel, and lost to Duquesne.

The negative team of Lionel Wernick and Sanford Hertz beat New York university, Rutgers, and Lehigh, and was defeated by Elizabethtown. The other negative team, consisting of Gene Kolber and Edwin Lefkowitz, defeated Georgetown, St. Joseph's, and LaSalle, and lost to Lafayette.

Morgan's concert will consist of six sections. He will open with an aria from Mendelssohn's "Lord God of Abraham" (Elijah); followed by "Say Love, If Ever Thou Didst Find", by John Dowland; Handel's "Where're You Walk" (Semele); and "Preach Not Me Your Musty Rules" (Comus), by Thomas Arne.

Works of three Italian composers will make up the second section of Morgan's program. They are "Tu lo sai," by Giuseppe Torelli, "Nina" by Giovanni Battista Pergolesi, and "La Danza" (Tarantella Napoletana) by Ciaochino Rossini.

Morgan then will sing four numbers from "The Tempest," by the American composer, David Diamond. They are "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," "Full Fathom Five," "While You Do Snoring Lie," and "Where the Bee Sucks." This will be followed by an aria, "Eri tu," from "The Masked Ball" by Giuseppe Verdi.

Following the intermission, Howard Barr, the accompanist, will play Sonetto del Patrarca. (Continued on page four)

State Soccermen Accept Bid To Jan. 1 Bowl Game

By BUD FENTON

The Penn State soccer team, acclaimed as one of the nation's best, has accepted an invitation to play in the Soccer bowl in St. Louis on New Year's day.

Coach Bill Jeffrey said yesterday that he understood that the Nittany Lions, winners of 23 of their last 25 contests, will meet Purdue university, Big Ten champion, in the Jan. 1 game, although no official word has been received.

This marks the second straight year that Jeffrey's squad has been selected for the Missouri bowl. Last January's meeting with San Francisco, which ended in a 2-2 tie, was the first collegiate soccer bowl game ever played.

The 1950 Lions have won eight of their nine games. The lone loss to West Chester was the first one inflicted on a Penn State team since 1949.

In picking the Nittany booters, the bowl committee passed up such strong teams as undefeated Temple, Cornell, and the West

Lions Upset Pitt In '50 'Mud Bowl' To Finish Season

By MARV KRASNANSKY

Sloshing through the sea of mud that turned Forbes field into the 1950 "Mud Bowl," Penn State's footballers tripped a favored Pitt Panther team, 21-20, to register a victory that would make any Nittany grid season a success.

But coming as a climax to a year which started with prophecies of disaster, the victory—fifth for the Lions in nine starts—turned the 1950 campaign, the first under the leadership of Rip Engle, a milestone in the football history of the College.

Mastered T

Taking over a squad that at first looked too clumsy and awkward to master the intricacies of the winged-T, Engle knit a team that in its last five games played almost as if they had worked the system for years.

That the 1950 Lions had what it takes to be a winner they demonstrated in the final ten minutes of play Saturday when, exhausted by more than three quarters of sloshing through the mud and goo of Forbes field, they tenaciously hung on to a one-point margin that rested on the educated right toe of Vince O'Bara. That was playing under pressure, the kind of pressure that separates the men from the boys and the winners from the vanquished.

Played Well

"Everybody played well," said line coach Joe Bedenk yesterday. It wasn't even necessary for Bedenk to single out Paul Anders, the bruising sophomore fullback, Bill Leonard, the unheralded sophomore defensive halfback, defensive end Chuck Wilson, and O'Bara.

Leonard accounted for the only touchdown produced by the defensive team all year when early in the first period he snatched a Bob Bestwick pass out of the air on his own 40 and raced 60 yards without being touched by a Pitt defender. He helped stave off the rallying Panthers late in the game by hauling in another Bestwick heave.

Loyalty Oath Sides Debated By Speakers

Dr. James J. Reid spoke out strongly for loyalty oaths from college teachers at the Hilliel Town meeting Sunday night, while Dr. Ruth C. Silva opposed the oaths with equal force, and Dr. Arthur F. Davis defended a middle position.

Harold P. Zelko, associate professor of public speaking, moderated the discussion "Should a loyalty oath be required of college teachers?" which drew an unusually large audience.

Defends Oath

Defending the oath, Dr. Reid, professor of bacteriology said it is justifiable under the purposes of the Constitution set forth in the preamble.

"These intents must be carried out," he said. "What freedom exists but that which is returned to us by the government without impairing them?" He also noted that Communists signing the oath would then be liable to prosecution for perjury.

Opposes Oath

Dr. Silva, assistant professor of political science, opposed the oath on two major issues. She predicted that it would not catch the real Communists, who would probably sign it, but the liberal teachers who would refuse to sign on moral or religious grounds.

Silva States Danger

Dr. Silva said there was a danger that in a loyalty oath case certain juries would consider membership in legitimate liberal organizations evidence of Communist leanings.

In a middle position, Dr. Davis, professor of physical education, said, "I disapprove of the oath, but, if required, I would sign it, and then work for its removal."
