Rare Sight

The few hundred Penn Staters who returned to Pittsburgh this past weekend were treated to a rare sight—that of a Penn State football team beating Pittsburgh.

THE SAME Penn Staters also viewed the closing of a football season that saw the football fortunes of the Nittany Lions take a welcome and none too soon improvement.

Rip Engle has produced a winning football team, and, what is more important, a growing, expanding system. It is a system that combines good coaching, good material, and effective bushbeating.

That Engle has produced a team with a season mark of five wins, three losses, and a tie from the wreckage of the past is evidence that Penn State football is in good hands. At this time, however, while talk of the future is in order, let us not forget as willing and rugged a band of Nittany gridders as has ever donned the Blue and White.

Let it not be forgotten that while the task facing Engle at the start of the season was stupendous in scope, the task facing the individual players was none the less huge. Each man found it necessary to adjust all his football knowledge and skill to a new way of doing things.

"This has been the finest bunch of boys I have ever worked with," Engle said recently—and with justification. Each man labored long and hard on the practice field and then gave his all on the gridiron each Saturday. It has been a long and grueling season for all concerned, but not a season without its compensations.

FOR THE SUCCESS which has come to Penn State this year on the gridiron, all Penn Staters owe a vote of thanks to Rip Engle, his assistants, and the team.

Cut Red Tape

The plan being used for first phase registration this semester certainly has its merits, in that it gives advisers the necessary time to do their work and allows students lee-way by eliminating classes. However, we would like to suggest that uniform procedure be followed to a greater degree in the future.

ONE FLAW in the alphabetical pre-registration plan is that it produces difficulty in departments where it is necessary for seniors to pre-register first because of class priorities. Possibly the best solution would be to start pre-registration with seniors and end it with freshmen, in order to provide for priorities, and then also to use an alphabetical listing with the four class groups.

Any procedure which will make the red tape machinery less painful certainly will be welcomed by the students.

Snowball Fights

Newfallen snow provides a picturesque setting on the campus and also serves as a form of entertainment as the major ingredient going into a good snowball battle. Although snowball battles are a legitimate means of amusement, we would suggest that care and discretion be exercised.

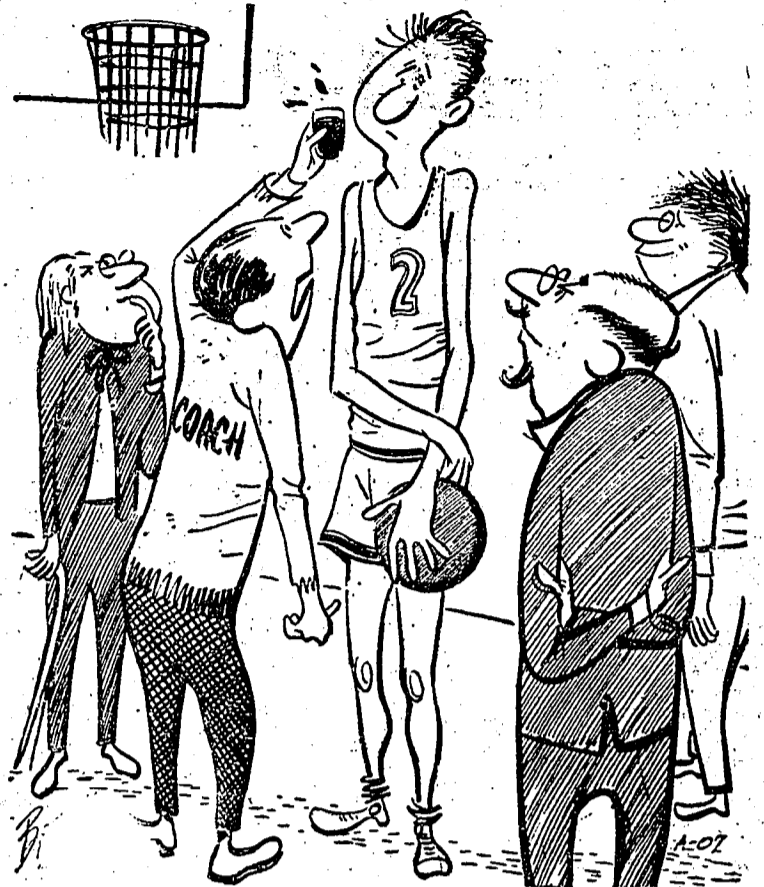

A CASE IN POINT in which care was not exercised resulted in a cut neck for a Penn State coed. A snowball, apparently thrown intentionally at the window behind which she was sitting, shattered the glass and a sliver cut her neck. Fortunately, she was not injured seriously, but tragedy could have resulted.

Other cases of windows' being broken by snowballs have been reported recently, as well as the story of two waste basketsful of snowballs being thrown through one window in a women's dorm.

Plenty of fun can be had with snowballs without aiming at windows and risking injury to innocent bystanders.

UN Forces In Full Retreat As Reds Near Pyongyang

TOKYO — The biggest U.N. forces retreat in the Korean war is underway. With supposedly one million Chinese Communist soldiers outflanking Pyongyang it looks as if they'll take the city without firing a shot.

Allied forces in endless columns of tanks, trucks, big guns and jeeps are moving southward, towards Seoul over every type of road with light snow, thick dust, a bitterly cold wind piercing heavy layers of clothing, numb hands and faces.

Tenure Policy—

er's right to discuss all issues connected with his subject. It says, "It is not the function of a teacher in a democracy to indoctrinate his students with ready-made conclusions on controversial subjects. He is expected to train students to think for themselves."

Under the policy, teachers agree to abide by College regulations and to perform reasonable duties assigned.

The policy requires a four-month notification of resignation. A teacher is free to consider other positions while working at the College. He may ask his superiors to waive or reduce the four-month requirement.

Truman, Attlee Confer

WASHINGTON — President Truman and Prime Minister Clement Attlee issued a joint statement in a conference today that the United States and Britain are determined to arrive at a mutual understanding of the serious nations, as well as by other members of the U.N. and that the two countries base their policies on common ground.

Mr. Truman and Attlee will meet again tomorrow to continue the series of conferences.
