W. H. Walters, director of "Time," lays claim to no eccentricities either, which probably gives the disbelievers in the old tradition a slight majority.

Walters came to Penn State this year from Western Reserve university in Cleveland, where he did graduate work in dramatics last year. He was associated with the Cleveland playhouse and also the Community theatre, where he acted in and directed several plays.

Williams, Schulte, Miss Tilles and Morkides have all been with Players for three years. Bird graduated from the college last year and is at present working for his master's degree in English literature.

Trustees—

Basis of award of the scholarships is merit and imagination, and promise.

Breakdown of the $44,000 research grants includes a $15,000 grant from American Viscose corporation for continued support of the Ellen H. Richards institute and a $5000 grant from the National Live Stock and Meat board for a study by the Richards institute of women's meat intake. Both projects are under the supervision of the Institute's director, Dr. Pauline Beery Mack.

The council, with little debate on the subject, approved the resolution and instructed Richard Bard to oppose the increase in fees in cabinet. The council is the first organization to question the 35-cent Collegian assessment.

The formation of a West Dorm newspaper was given the "go ahead" signal from the council. This paper, sponsored by the council, will appear weekly covering in detail the activities of the West Dorm area.

Richard Klingensmith, of Thompson hall, was elected treasurer of the council.

John Mounts, editor of the paper told council the aim of the paper. He said, "the main purpose of newspaper would be to inform the area of the news and the meaning of the happenings to the individuals living in the area." This paper would provide the information not found in other media, yet essential to the welfare of the area.

The first edition of the paper is scheduled for tomorrow morning with distribution of the papers in the residents' mailboxes.

of steel properties received a Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation grant of $10,426, while Dr. Robert V. Boucher, professor of agricultural and biological chemistry, and Ernest W. Callenbach, head of the Department of Dairy Husbandry, will direct a study of turkey nutrition under a $2400 grant from the Cooperative Grange League federation.

'Off The Cuff'

State College in June of this year. He's back for that degree he didn't take time to get in 1939.

The good natured outside left on the 1950 squad says he's sorry this is his last year of eligibility. But he adds quickly that it's time he thought of hanging up his soccer togs. This year he has played under a handicap which would have sidelined a less avid player. Early in the season he developed two boils on his left foot.

Gus is going to give tennis another try next spring, but is skeptical about his chances of making the varsity with so many younger boys around. His wife is willing to bet that he'll make it. He was second man on State's 1939 tennis team. A few years before that he was city champion in Harrisburg in singles, and teamed with his brother to win the doubles championship in 1933 and 1934.

Gus thinks he will graduate in February of 1952. He and the family will head for Venezuela, and he'll start his real estate business again. It's not that he doesn't like it here. It's just that South America is home to them all.

Gus isn't sure how long after that it will be until he gets back to the States. But his son will be back he says. Tito is going to be educated in America as his parents were. And what's more, Tito is coming to Penn State.

Gus assures everyone that in twelve years you will see his son playing soccer at Penn State. And Bill Jeffrey will be his coach. Gus says "You couldn't ask for a better coach or a better guy." And the coach thinks the same of his ageless soccer player. Two years an All-American and at 34 years a great guy.
