

Audience Applauds 'Antigone' And Star

By ROSEMARY DELAHANTY

As the audience in Schwab auditorium last night gave its whole-hearted approval to "Antigone," few of them realized that the star of the play, Anne Wahl Grant, is appearing in her last Playef's production.

After the play, Mrs. Grant, married recently, commented, "I'm grateful for the privilege of being able to work in Greek tragedy — and I'm certainly sorry this is my last show."

Campus theater-goers aren't exactly glad either, because the applause for "Antigone" was loud enough and long enough to indicate that the clearly-outlined tragedy, presented on a bare stage, is as timely and emotionally satisfying now as it was 2300 years ago.

Each line is essential to the development of the plot, and there are no sub-plots to detract from the "oneness" of the theme.

Conveys Sincerity

Mrs. Grant manages to convey to the audience the sincerity of the Greek girl who accepts death as the penalty for obeying her conscience, yet her "Antigone" is never permitted to degenerate into a whining martyr.

In our opinion, Mrs. Grant's performance last night plus her previous ones in "Yes, My Darling Daughter" and "Private Lives" prove she's the most competent actress on the Players' roster.

"Creon," the king of Thebes, is played by Newell Stark. Occasionally he runs through his lines so quickly that the endings of the words are jumbled and lost, but otherwise his interpretation of the stern old ruler is one of the best characterizations of the season.

Actually, the play might be called a psychological study of "Creon." "Antigone's" fate, for which he is responsible, starts the chain of events which bring about his eventual remorse.

Tense A Few Minutes

In the supporting roles, Joada Oswald as "Ismene" is tense and over-dramatic for a few minutes, but soon becomes convincing as the sister who wants to die with "Antigone."

Donald Colbert as "Haemon," after an uninspired half dozen lines, does some eloquent pleading for "Antigone," while Helen Jaskol as the queen, "Eurydice,"

(Continued on page two)

Time For Convocation Changed To 7:30 p. m.

The convocation at which President Eisenhower will speak to the students and faculty on the national emergency next Wednesday in Recreation hall has been moved from 4 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, said the change was "due to unforeseen difficulties." Four o'clock classes, originally cancelled for the convocation, will be held, he said.

Bids For New Library Unit Will Be Taken

Bids for a new unit of the Pattee library, with reading rooms for 1000 students, will be submitted to the General State authority by Jan. 31.

The new unit will double available library facilities. The present library provides room for only five per cent of the student body.

Designed by the Pittsburgh firm of Kuhn and Newcomer, the new building will be of masonry and steel construction. Its exterior will be faced brick and limestone trim, similar to that of the present building.

The interior of the new building will have seven stack levels, with reading, reference, and catalogue rooms.

College Librarian Ralph W. E. McComb estimated that, according to present specifications, the new building will hold between 300,000 to 400,000 volumes. The present structure contains some 200,000 volumes.

Construction of the addition should take about a year.

Cabinet Approves Collegian Increase

35-Cent Rise Passes First Of 2 Votes, 18-4

By RON BONN

All-College cabinet last night approved a 35-cent increase in the Daily Collegian student assessment by an 18-4 vote.

The assessment must be brought up for final approval at the next meeting of cabinet. A two-thirds majority is required at each voting to pass the measure.

The increase would bring the total assessment to $1.10 per semester. The money is to be used to enlarge the paper to eight pages daily.

Other major cabinet action included hearing of reports on final allocations of Campus chest drive funds and on suggested activities cards for all male students.

Four Vote "No"

Voting against the Collegian increase were Robert Miller for the Chemistry and Physics student council, Curtis Wessner for the Interfraternity council, Hubert Stevens for the Home Economic student council, and Raymond Miller for the Engineering student council. All four had been instructed by their councils to vote "no."

Robert Davis, as All-College president, did not vote, and Freshman Class president Maria Whitely was absent.

Consideration of the assessment had been postponed at the last meeting of cabinet. After the matter was brought up again, a fairly short discussion ensued with much of the questioning coming from non-members of cabinet.

Calling for passage, Harry Kondourajian, All-College vice president, said "There is a crying need for an eight-page daily paper. We should regard this measure as a step toward the betterment of Penn State."

Query On Enrollment

Owen Landon, Collegian business manager, was questioned on the effect of a possible future decline in enrollment. He said that in the event the College lost 1000 students, Collegian would return to its old circulation schedule and had at the beginning of this semester. Present circulation is higher.

Ella Williams, representing WSGA in the absence of President Barbara Sprengle, asked Collegian editor Dean Gladfelter if women's page space could be (Continued on page four)

Symphony To Play On Sunday

The student-faculty symphony orchestra will perform at Schwab auditorium, Sunday at 3 p. m. Theodore Karhan, assistant professor of music announced yesterday.

The program consists of five pieces — three classics and two modern compositions. The orchestra will begin the concert with Suite No. 1 from "Carmen" by Bizet. Symphony in A major (Italian) by Mendelssohn will follow.

Joseph Rosenthal will play the piano solo in Beethoven's Concerto No. 2 for piano. Rosenthal, a graduate in the school of Education, has performed in previous concerts.

The modern portion of the program will consist of Prelude by Shostakovich arranged by Stolkowski and Polka and Fugue from "Shvanda" by Weindorfer.

Doors for the concert will open at 2:30 p. m. There will be no admission charge.

60 Students Must Report For Physicals

Sixty Penn State students have been ordered to report for pre-induction physical examinations Monday.

The 60 students are Levis T. Baldwin, Bruce N. Becker, John A. Bosch, John C. Bristor, Charles A. Brockmiller, Enos H. Brubaker, Lewis M. Cohen, Richard E. Cover, William D. Curtin, Peter G. Fairchok, Stanford I. Feigelman, David F. Feuerfile, Carl T. Gerhart.

Allen Goldenberg, Otto Grupp, Albert C. Hand, Albert F. Happel, Kurt Herman, Charles S. Jarvis, Robert W. Johnson, Johns J. Jones, William L. Kadoich, Robert C. Kelley, Richard F. Kowal, Ronald E. Krape, Paul R. Kulp, Herbert G. Kurtz, Walter F. Lee.

Morton Levine, William B. Margerum, Glenn E. Martin, Charles F. Mason, Robert C. Mazer, Robert D. Miller, Harry W. O'Neill, Donald D. Phelps, William G. Phillips, John J. Pisano, Joseph A. Queeney, Nathan H. Rambo, James L. Randall, Daniel H. Rauscher, Rudolph P. Reid, Philip Rodgers.

Michael J. Rubino, Joseph F. Rynewicz, Elbert Scouten, Morris Shanken, Eugene P. Shelly, Robert J. Simpson, Merrill A. Sporkin, James B. Steen, Bruce C. Stephens, Leonard P. Suffredini, Herbert G. Thumbore, William L. Weiss, Edward B. Woodward, Wee H. Yee, Richard G. Zahner, and Charles E. Zellner.

Gross Defends Lions' 'Freeze' Against Bisons

Coach Elmer Gross yesterday answered a charge that the Lions' performance against Bucknell Wednesday night was "a disgrace to basketball."

Jack Guy, Bucknell coach, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that the Lions "freeze" was a "disgrace to basketball."

Gross said he used the "freeze" because his scouting revealed the Lions could not play Bucknell's type of basketball and win.

He said he did not intend the Lions to freeze the ball as long as they did, but that failure of the Bisons to come out and close-guard prolonged the "freeze."

"They could have broken it up had they come out. If a defending player comes within guarding distance, the offensive player cannot hold the ball over five seconds," Gross pointed out.

The AP story said that Joe Piorokowski held the ball for two and three minutes at a time. Gross said he had not intended that to happen, but that the Bisons would not come out to challenge Piorokowski.

The Lions played a faster game in the second half, employing a possession game and beat the Bisons, 25-15.

Seniors' Announcements Now Available At SU

The invitations and announcements for graduating seniors have arrived at Student Union, George Donovan announced yesterday.

Seniors should present their receipts to obtain their invitations and announcements. They may be picked up at the Student Union starting today.

Publications Make 2nd Term Move-ups

Promotions for the second semester have been announced by La Vie, Penn State Farmer, the Ag Hill Breeze, and the Independent.

Forty-four students have been promoted to the La Vie junior board, William Zakor, editor, announced. They are Patricia Acosta, Robert Amole, Lila Louise Barnes, Jeannine Bell, Janet Bleutge, Lois Blum, Ronald Bonn, Jean Brossman, David Colton, Isabella Cooper, Maxine Cornell, Margaret Doggett, David Fix, Robert Fraser, James Geffert, Martha Grimshaw, Joan Grossman, Margaret Guthrie, Vivian Hartenbach, Elizabeth Hill, Nancy Hood, and Lewis Hoover.

La Vie Junior Board

Also promoted to La Vie Junior board are Marc Kimilman, Elizabeth Knerr, Emily Kostas, Virginia Laudano, Virginia Mayes, Harry McFerran, Moylan Mills, Jane Musgrave, Judith Norton, John Pakkanen, Grace Porrello, Betty Robb, Margaret Roberts, Timoleon Rodriguez, Barbara Rogers, Jerome Rosenberg, Eleanor Tetley, Robert Vosburg, Greta Weaver, Donald Williams, Marilyn Wilson, and Stanley Zimmerman.

Receiving promotions on the Penn State Farmer are: Thomas Jurchak, editor-in-chief; David Stabler, managing editor; Joseph Ondrejko, feature editor; Lowell Lewis, assistant feature editor;

Louis Laffoon, layout editor; Russell Kaniuka, ad layout editor; Richard Witmer, business manager; James Pasike, circulation manager; Murry Frank, advertising manager; Donald Snyder, state advertising manager; James Graef, local advertising manager; Signa Grimes, promotion manager; Charles Zellner, student counselor. Zellner is the retiring editor-in-chief.

Mills Ind. Editor

Moylan Mills has been named editor of the Independent, bi-weekly publication of AIM and Leonides.

Mills replaces Stanley Degler, retiring editor, who will be graduated later this month. He is a former editor of the Lionews.

Ag Hill Breeze promotions for the second semester are John Berkebile, editor-in-chief; William Griffith, managing editor; John Mourar, circulation manager; Charles Criste, production manager.