Not All Windcrest To Be Destroyed

A plan to save certain portions of Windcrest from abandonment was announced yesterday.

Comptroller S. K. Hostetter announced he had met with a committee of the trailer camp residents and had formulated a plan whereby only certain trailers would be abandoned in June.

A committee of student Windcrest residents and representatives of the College housing and physical plant departments will determine which of the trailers will be abandoned, Hostetter said.

Letter From Clark

Previously, Windcrest residents were told that it might be necessary for the College to discontinue the wartime emergency housing project "on or before June 30, 1951." The statement was contained in a letter from Russell E. Clark, director of housing.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, said yesterday that some misunderstanding might have been responsible for the petition by Windcrest residents asking President Milton S. Eisenhower to continue the project.

Only A Warning

He pointed out that Clark's letter warned residents of the area that the project might be discontinued, but that it would depend on the results of inspection after the winter of 1949-'50. "In no way was it an ultimatum—rather, it was a warning of what might have to be done so that Windcrest residents would be forewarned of the eventuality," he said.

Windcrest representatives at the conference were James F. Young, secretary of the Windcrest council; Jean C. Nisley, Charles K. Criste and Clarence O. Colvin Jr.

Hostetter said that the group decided that those trailers whose repair expenses are above the yearly rental for the trailer would be destroyed. An agreement with the Federal Project Housing Administration, made when the trailers were purchased, stipulates that the trailers must be burned if they are no longer used to house students.

To determine which of the trailers will be razed, committees will inspect each unit and submit recommendations for repairs or abandonment. The report also will include an opinion by the

The U. S. Civil Service commission has announced examinations for several positions for engineers.

Students having a college education and either professional engineering experience or graduate study in engineering are eligible to fill positions in all branches of engineering at salaries from $4600 to $6400 a year. Positions are located in or around Washington, D. C.

The position of highway engineer (trainee), at salaries from $2875 to $3100, is open to students having had college study in civil engineering. Positions are located throughout the U. S.

Information and applications may be secured from most post offices or from the U. S. Civil Service commission, Washington 25, D. C.

Engineer Reserve Unit Open For Enlistment

There are openings in the 491st engineer battalion, a local reserve unit, for students who desire to join, it was announced recently.

The announcement stated that both former service men and non-service men are eligible to join. Veterans, joining the reserve, retain their rank, but non-service men joining the unit will not be subject to the draft.

Further information about the reserve unit may be obtained at the organized reserve corps center, 646 W. College avenue.

Gym Students 'Lent' To Army For Research

One hundred students taking gym have been under close observation by both the School of Education and instructional film research officials of the armed services.

The 100 students are being "lent" to them by the School of Physical Education as subjects of a training experiment to determine the effectiveness of motion pictures for teaching physical skills. Some of the new techniques devised during this study are better than previous methods of instruction.

The largest single improvement accomplished by the tests has been the ability of more students to do the same stunt in less time than previously required.

Same Stunts

Students participating in this experiment are taught the same stunts. But the methods employed in training them are different. The process involved in presenting the film is varied to determine which of eight treatments is the most successful. The treatments are divided into two series, according to the similarity of the approaches. The series are then rotated among the classes.

The first series involves showing the material by massed presentations—the film is repeated several times. A second treatment in the same series uses an interspersed method. This is merely showing the film, having a practice period, and then reshowing it. These two approaches are then compared to "live" demonstrations using the same methods employed when using film. Series one allows no coaching on the part of the instructors.

Second Series

The second series uses coaching in two of the treatments. The first two methods are compared with the second two as to the effectiveness of coaching. Film presentation consists of interspersed showing and free choice. Free choice is a continuous showing of the film.

Of the two series, the inter-

30 Frosh Refused Dining Hall Entrance

About 30 freshman wrestling, boxing, and basketball players were refused entrance into the West dining hall one minute after the 6 o'clock deadline Monday night, the Collegian learned yesterday.

According to a letter signed by five members of the yearling basketball team, the boys had the doors of the dining hall "slammed and locked" in their faces by an attendant. When they got into a serving line via the rear exit, the men charged, they were refused food by the dietitian in charge although others were being served seconds.

The charges were made in a letter to Collegian signed by Bob Kauffman, Jay Poser, Bob Siegel, Bob Harris, and Ray Rizzo.

Similar charges were made Monday night shortly after the incident by James Light, a freshman representative on the West dorm council, and Robert Kline, another member of the freshman five. Kline said "It has happened to me three or four times in the past."

AIM To Sponsor Dance Saturday

AIM will sponsor a post-game dance following the Penn State-Gettysburg basketball game Saturday night, social chairman Richard Mills announced at a meeting of the board of governors last week.

Gene Magill's orchestra will probably supply the music, Mills said. Admission will be 25 cents per person.

A question raised over the constitutionality of a $100 grant to each of the four councils represented on AIM was referred to the newly formed constitutional committee.

Two other committees were organized, one group to set up a dating code for AIM, the other to coordinate the scheduling of exchange dinners.

A motion to strike out budget allocations for an AIM banquet, and keys for board members was tabled and a proposal that the Collegian assessment be reconsidered was defeated.

Pitt Dance Ticket Refund Deadline Set

Students still holding tickets for the dance that was to be held after the Pitt-Penn State football game in the Hotel Schenley are requested to turn them in for refunds at the Student Union desk in Old Main before the end of the semester.

Rec Hall Convocation Scheduled For 7:30

President Milton S. Eisenhower will speak in detail on present draft laws and probable government action at the College convocation tonight at 7:30 in Recreation hall.

The President said yesterday he would outline pertinent facts available on the present situation, without offering advice.

Trustees Will Consider Dorm Social Fee

A constitutional block apparently hurdled, the 50-cent-per-semester assessment levied on West dormitory men by the West dorm council Monday night seemed headed for consideration by the board of trustees yesterday.

Thomas Durek, West dorm council president, said last night that Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, had assured him that the assessment proposal would get a hearing by the trustees when they meet in Harrisburg Friday, provided that the council gave him a written copy of the measure. Durek said that this would be done.

Regulations Waived

It had appeared before yesterday's developments that the effort of the council to get the measure passed in time for next semester would stumble over the All-College constitution. The constitution provides that "the recommendation of all student activities fees" must be made by cabinet.

All-College President Robert Davis had originally contended that the assessment would have to be approved by cabinet in the usual manner. Yesterday Davis changed his mind and waived the regulations. He said he was doing this under his executive power as All-College president.

Home Ec School

Davis said that the School of Home Economics will have a similar fee for a newspaper on the trustee agenda without consulting cabinet first.

The assessment, passed by a narrow ten to eight margin, will be collected along with the regular College fees at the start of next semester if the trustees approve. More than $1500 per year will be raised. The money will be used to finance social and recreational activities.

Coed Exchange Dinner Planned

An exchange dinner between women from McElwain hall and men from Pollock Circle will be held Sunday, it was announced at Pollock council Monday.

Frank J. Simes, chief resident advisor of the men's dorms, handed out forms to council members for evaluation of advisors and to help them do a better job. These forms are available to all residents of the area and can be obtained from the dorm advisers.

Richard Hamilton, social committee chairman, said that there would be a spring dance April 21, held by the Nittany-Pollock area, in Recreation hall. Robert Stottlemeyer introduced tentative plans for a square dance to be held in the PUB.

Norman Kaplan resigned as council secretary.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, yesterday urged that all students and faculty members attend the convocation. He pointed out that the building's seating capacity has been raised to a maximum with bleachers and main floor chairs supplementing permanent seating.

WMAJ To Broadcast

WMAJ will broadcast as much of the address as time will allow for townspeople and others unable to attend.

Speaking from notes, the President is expected to discuss possible modification the College will make in its program because of the emergency.

The President has made several statements on draft and universal military training problems since the beginning of the emergency. On Jan. 4 he released an open letter to the student body, urging continuation of normal academic standards despite uncertainties of the draft.

Educators Agree

He wrote, "Every educator and government official I have talked with agrees that the best contribution each of us can make at the moment is to carry on with his regular responsibilities until, through legislation or other action, he is notified to do otherwise."

At a faculty-trustee dinner on Dec. 1, President Eisenhower proposed a system of universal military training which, he said, would prevent emptying of the colleges. His plan would allow men to select which two or two-and-a-half years between the ages of 18 and 26 they wished to serve.

Plans now under consideration would make training automatic at the age of 18. Speaking at an Interfraternity council banquet on Dec. 12, the President said if necessary he would go to Washington to fight for revision of the plan.

Talent Search To Start Soon

The search for talent for the Penn State club's 11th annual all-College Talent Show will be held Feb. 5-9, club officials announced yesterday.

Students interested in auditioning for the show should fill out an application blank at the Student Union desk in the lobby of Old Main during that time. Auditions will begin Feb. 10.

Freshmen as well as upper-classmen were urged by officials to audition for the show which will be held on Feb. 23 in Schwab auditorium. Cash prizes will be awarded to the winners. Last year's winner was Ray Rachowski who recited "Casey At The Bat."

Joseph Lipsky, club president and chairman of the affair, said that all types of acts are necessary. Cosmo Fazio is publicity chairman. Members of the auditions committee are Joseph Hudak, Ray Evert, Joseph Lipsky, William Burrows, Arnold Gasche, William Park, and Kenneth Mc-
