house, but he is inexperienced in construction work. He has $7,000

Passeri was taken into custody Wednesday afternoon in a South Allen street drugstore a few minutes after he had accepted $25 in marked bills from a Collegian reporter in exchange for a slip containing the answers to part of the Spanish 2 test. Twenty-three of the 25 answers on the slip checked with the answers as worked out by Clements.

At the same time, Passeri tried to sell the Collegian reporter a copy of last semester's Commerce 25 final for $30. Passeri admitted to the reporter that the test was last semester's, but that it was worth $30 because none of the fraternities had it in their files.

To Split Money

Passeri told Deans Wilson and Russell yesterday morning that at first he had agreed to split whatever money could be made from the sale with Duckett on a 50-50 basis. With Duckett leaving for the National Guard, Passeri said yesterday he gave Duckett $25 for the test on Wednesday, hoping to make some money for himself by selling it to other students.

Asked why he entered into the venture, Passeri said it was "for money." Passeri said that he had planned to "pay some bills" with the money he hoped to make. He said that he had been working until recently in a State College drugstore, but was laid off when there was a cut in the staff.
