

Sevitsky To Conduct Symphony Orchestra

The Indianapolis symphony orchestra with Fabien Sevitsky conducting will bring its new concertmaster, 25-year-old Stanley Weiner, to Schwab auditorium Friday night when it presents the fourth in the Community Concert series.

Scheduled for 8:30 p.m., the program will be open only to members of the Community Concert association.

Weiner made his first appearance as a violinist when he played "Yankee Doodle" at the age of 16 months. As soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra under Hans Kindler, he was hailed as a child prodigy.

Your Best Musician

When he was concertmaster of Leonard Bernstein's New York City symphony orchestra in 1947-48 he was the youngest musician holding such a position with a major symphony orchestra in this country.

Another newcomer to the 85-piece Indianapolis symphony is Henry Kulik, bass trombone player. Twenty-six years old, he has played in the Boston civic symphony, the New England philharmonic with Arthur Fiedler and Paul Hindemith, the Handel and Haydn society, and the New England conservatory orchestra. Kulik also has had dance band experience with Gene Autry's rodeo show.

Director Since 1937

Dr. Sevitsky has been music director and conductor of the Orchestra since 1937. Born in Russia, he won the Cesar Cui music scholarship at the age of ten years, and graduated from the Imperial conservatory of music at Petrograd with the Gold Medal for double bass. In 1923 he came to the United States and became a citizen five years later.

Dr. Sevitsky organized the first permanent string orchestra in this country, and has made European tours as the head of many of the country's leading orchestras. In 1937 he founded the Indianapolis symphonic choir.

Gift Of $4700 Given College

A gift of 50 shares of stock valued at approximately $4,700 has been given the College by Bayard D. Kunkle of the Class of 1907.

The gift, accepted by the Board of Trustees at their Saturday meeting, will be added to the principal of the Ethel and Bayard Kunkle Loan fund.

Mr. Kunkle is a member of the Board of Directors of General Motors and is also vice-president in charge of overseas and Canadian affairs for the corporation.

In subsequent donations the loan fund increased until it was $38,000 prior to this latest gift of 50 shares of Class B stock.

For Veterans

Loans from this fund are made to married veterans in full-time attendance at the College. They are intended for emergencies or to supplement incomes to meet current expenditures.

Business Group Elects Officers

John Beiter, junior in the School of Education, was installed as president of the College chapter of Future Business Leaders of America at an organizational meeting last Saturday.

The organization was newly chartered by Dr. Dorothy H. Veon, state sponsor. The chapter was formed to train prospective instructors of business education and to sponsor chapters in high schools and colleges throughout Pennsylvania.

Other student officers installed were: John Barrons, first vice-president; Sally Dixon, substituting for Dorothy Green, second vice-president; Roselyn Beard, secretary; Joseph Gronick, treasurer and Ina Epstein, reporter.

Dr. James Gemmell, head of the Department of Business Education, Mrs. Frances Chapman, Miss Margaret Swartz, Miss Mary Stella and Lowell Chapman, all faculty members, participated in the installation.

Deike Names Fund For Son

George H. Deike, vice-president of the College board of trustees, recently established a scholarship fund at the College in memory of his son, Kenneth.

Kenneth Deike was graduated by the College in 1930. While on campus, he played freshman football, was assistant manager of the baseball team, and was a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. He died Nov. 21, 1939.

The fund, named the Kenneth T. Deike Memorial Scholarship fund, was established with 100 shares of common stock of the Phillips Petroleum company. The shares are valued at approximately $7,700.

This amount and further gifts that may be added will provide for scholarships based on need, character, qualities of leadership, scholastic ability, and athletic ability. A committee composed of the dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, the treasurer of the College, and the director of student affairs will recommend the awarding of the scholarships.

Both the principal and the income of the fund may be used as the committee deems advisable.

The elder Deike has served more than 25 years on the board of trustees and is a 1903 graduate of Penn State. He is living in Pittsburgh.

Rodriguez To Head Chemistry Society

Timoleon Rodriguez was elected president of the Leibeg Chemistry society last Tuesday night at the first meeting of the spring semester.

Other newly elected officers are: William Fried Jr., vice-president; Anne Greene, secretary; John Cranston, treasurer; and Guy Kreiser and Donald Lutz, Agriculture student council representatives. Dr. J. W. Shigley is faculty adviser for the society.

Embargo On Bulk Mail Relaxed By Post Office

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—The Post Office department late today partially relaxed its tight embargo on handling bulk mail.

In a new order, immediately effective, the department announced a resumption of normal postal services over wide areas as a result of partial restoration of train service. The new order permits normal service within the eastern and western halves of the nation but not between them.

However, the city of St. Louis and its nearby suburban post offices and the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan (except for the northern peninsula) were continued under a full embargo applying against everything except first class mail under eight ounces, daily newspapers, medical and surgical supplies and money shipments by banks.

The two pound limit on air parcel post mailings was set aside for all sections of the country.

The Railway Express agency also announced a second modification of its embargo, effective at midnight. This permits express shipments between New York City and Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and the cities of Baltimore and Washington.

The agency's Chicago office later announced that it was lifting its embargo on rail express shipments to all states west of the Mississippi river and to Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Wisconsin and Tennessee. The announcement added, however, that such express may be "subject to delay."

Robert J. Miller, local postmaster, said, "My belief is that when the embargo does open, it will only open partially, as the East will undoubtedly be cleaned up before the West."

Student Life Panel Planned

A panel discussion on student life in other countries will highlight the meeting of the State College branch of the American Association of University Women in Simmons Lounge at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The panel members will also trace the differences in general education with emphasis on contrasting credit systems, the comparative interest on men and women in educational opportunities, student attitudes and extra-curricular activities.

Aaron Druckman, assistant professor of philosophy, will moderate the program.

Foreign students participating will include Ilija M. Saldarriaga, Lima, Peru; Yohan Louis DeVries, Netherlands; Samir David Ajay, Syria; Elsa Gunvor Haglund, Stockholm, Sweden; Minocher Dadabhoy Karkhanavala, Bombay, India; John Robertson, Scotland.

Ship Named For Alum Transferred To Hellenic Navy

The United States Navy destroyer escort, the Garfield Thomas, named for an alumnus of the College, who was killed in World War II, has been transferred to the Royal Hellenic Navy under terms of the Mutual Assistance Pact.

It will be renamed The Panther.

Lt. W. Garfield Thomas, Jr., was graduated from Penn State in the journalism curriculum in 1938. At the College he was class historian, a member of the Blue Key, Skull and Bones, and Kappa Sigma fraternities.

Lt. Thomas, who entered the Navy in 1940, was killed in action on October 11-12, 1942, when the U.S.S. Boise was hit by a Japanese torpedo. Because he succeeded in saving the lives of eleven men, the Navy named the Garfield Thomas in his honor. He was also awarded the Navy Cross and the Purple Heart in recognition of his heroic action.

Sun Oil Co. Executive To Speak In Sparks

The Penn State Accounting club will present a lecture by Donald P. Jones today at 8 p.m. in 316 Sparks. Jones is a comptroller with the Sun Oil company and will speak on "Controlling As A Career."

The lecture is open to the public.

Dolls In West Dorms

Trustees Will Honor Alumni

Five distinguished alumni will be honored annually under a plan adopted by the board of trustees, President Eisenhower has announced.

The trustees will recognize former students who have best exemplified the objectives of their alma mater in their personal lives, professional achievements, and community service.

The purpose of the plan is not only to recognize and salute outstanding alumni, but also to instill in the undergraduates a goal of achievement which they may aspire to reach, the President said.

The achievement awards will be presented at spring honors day exercises held each year by the student body.

Each of the five will receive an inscribed illuminated parchment scroll and a bronze medalion.

The College intends to publish a commemorative booklet yearly with photographs and biographical sketches of the five winners, who will be chosen by the executive committee of the board of trustees. Members of the board and College staff members are not eligible.

No date has been set for honors day yet, and a speaker has not been chosen.

The date will be chosen in consultation with All-College cabinet. The day is a scholarship and move-up day for undergraduates.

WMAJ To Present South American Songs

South American folk songs will be presented tonight at 8:30 over WMAJ on the Romance Language department program "The Music of the Nations".

Prof. Gerald Moser will comment on these folk songs. This series of programs features records of foreign music from the private collections of both staff members and students working in Romance languages.

lent by the well-known doll-maker Mrs. Frank Zimmerman to Student Union for an exhibit in the lounge display case. Stanley Zimmerman, a junior at the College, arranged for the exhibit of his aunt's dolls.

Other dolls in the collection include Pope Pius XII; "The Post Girl," fashioned after a girl drawn by Norman Rockwell for a Saturday Evening Post cover; "The Artist," a girl art fancier made for a private doll collection; and "Murph," a typical teenager complete with blue jeans and plaid shirt.

Mrs. Zimmerman began making her dolls about 15 years ago. She first used them as party favors and eventually became so successful at creating life-like miniatures of famous personalities that she soon had a professional business on her hands.

The dolls are approximately ten inches high and made of pressed paper over a pipe cleaner base. The faces are tiny masks made over a carved head so that they may be easily duplicated. Costumes are exact replicas of clothes worn by the persons whom the dolls represent. Each one is authentic and detailed to scale.

The versatility of the creator is evidenced by the variety of the collection. Mary Martin is shown doing her "Honey Bun" number from "South Pacific," Einstein appears in rumpled sweater and baggy trousers, and Carol Channing is shown dripping with jewels in the midst of her rendition of "Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend" from "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Mrs. Zimmerman has used her dolls many times for charitable purposes and is in constant demand for lectures on her dolls and doll-making before clubs and organizations. She has also fashioned portrait dolls for Bernard Ravca, nationally-famous doll creator.

Cardinal Mindzenty and the Pope are dressed in the formal attire of their church offices. Gandhi appears in the scanty sheets and carries the walking stick always associated with him.
