

Service In Schwab Ends Religion Week

By DAVE COLTON

An hour closing service of worship in Schwab auditorium last night with a keynote address by Richard T. Sutcliffe ended the five-day Religion-in-Life program.

Sutcliffe, assistant editor of The Lutheran, news magazine of the United Lutheran church, compared the pessimism of many people today with the depressed feelings of the ancient Egyptians. The Egyptians feared man soon would destroy himself because the world was decaying, but those who predicted complete decay of the world were wrong, he said.

The former newspaperman said he saw about 1000 Penn State students this week and saw in their eyes a search for truth. The hope of the world does not lie in the hands of politicians or ministers, but in the hands of laymen, he said.

Heroes Were Laymen

Laymen are persons who are not ordained ministers, and Christian laymen are those interested in the church, he added. Heroes of both the Old and New Testaments were laymen, he asserted. Christ selected not priests, or ministers, when he left this world, but 12 laymen. Laymen are the

Debaters Off For Mt. Mercy

Four members of the men's debate team will leave this afternoon for Mount Mercy college to compete in the annual Mount Mercy tournament tomorrow.

Last year Penn State placed first in the tourney, with a perfect record. Teams from schools in Pennsylvania and nearby states participate.

Harry Kondourajian and Robert Alderdice will form the affirmative team, with John Boddington and Clair George on the negative team. Topic will be this year's national intercollegiate debate question, "Resolved: That the non-communist nations should form a new international organization."

The debate will be held in orthodox style, with each team member allowed a ten-minute constructive speech and a five-minute rebuttal. Both the affirmative and negative teams of each school compete in four debates each. The team with the highest score after these eight rounds is declared the winner.

H. J. O'Brien, assistant debating coach, will accompany team members to the tournament.

Auto Firm 'Tipped' On RFC Loan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22—(AP)—An executive of Kaiser-Frazer Corp., borrowers of $69,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, told Senate investigators today his firm had been tipped it could get better terms on its loans by hiring the right man to handle them.

The story came from Chad Calhoun, vice-president of the automobile company, testifying at a hearing called by a Senate banking subcommittee which has charged that political favoritism and influence has affected the RFC's lending policy.

But who the right man might be was not established clearly at today's hearing.

Calhoun said that he understood from a conversation with Edgar Kaiser, president of his company, that the man to employ was William M. Boyle Jr., of Kansas City, Democratic national chairman.

Conference Report

However, Calhoun based his assumption on a report of a conference Kaiser had with another Detroit industrialist, Rex Jacobs, in December, 1949.

Jacobs testified later that he did not recall that Boyle's name was mentioned in his conversation with Kaiser. But he said the name of Max Siskind, a former law partner of Boyle's, was mentioned as a man who might be helpful to Kaiser-Frazer. He suggested that might have led to an impression that he was recommending Boyle.

Kaiser himself did not mention Boyle's name when he testified. He remarked that Calhoun "probably drew certain conclusions" after he had talked with him and prepared a memorandum of the conversation.

Talent Show To Begin At 8 p.m. In Schwab

The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock tonight on the Penn State club's 11th annual all-College talent show in Schwab auditorium. Twelve acts will be featured in the show.

John Cox, master of ceremonies for the affair, will be aided by the Frustrated Four quartet, composed of Richard Kerwin, George Eyrich, Eugene Raup, and Thomas Stabler.

Rachkowski To Appear

Raymond Rachkowski, last year's winner, will make a guest appearance in a comedy skit on French and British army life.

The performers and their selections will include Noel Peterson and Fred Humphries as Pete and Muggs, a couple of comedians; Janice Berg, soprano, singing "Some Day" and "Be My Love;" Stanley Myers, accordionist, playing "Dark Eyes" and "Little Brown Jug;" and Edward Rolf, baritone, singing "Old Man River."

Quartet To Sing

The Four Troubadors quartet, composed of George Jeffries, Theodore Myers, Gordon Seward, and Herky Allison, will sing "Coney Island Babe," "Dear Old Girl," and "Why the Roses Grow." Patricia Marsteller will present a novelty reading, "Vera at the Vaudeville." Donald Hopkins and William Durborow, as the Nittany Ridgerunners, will present instrumental medleys of "Mississippi Mud" and "Charleston."

Following the intermission, baritone LaRue Durrwachter will open the second part of the show by singing "Song of the Vagabonds" and "Come Back to Sorrento." Robert Klug, pianist, will play Debussy's "Claire de Lune" and Reinhold's "Impromptu" in C sharp minor.

Sonia Goldstein, impressionistic modern dancer, will present "Get Happy" and "Melancholy Rhapsody." Patricia Leis will impersonate Betty Hutton and sing popular songs. The Four Flats and a Sharp, a vocal quintet, will complete the show with "Blue Moon" and "Once in a While." Members of the quintet are William Detweiler, David Margolf, Richard Wrentmore, Earl Baker, and Polly Potter.

Five Judges

Five judges, Russell E. Clark, director of housing; Daniel A. DeMarino, assistant dean of men; R. D. Reifsnider, professor of dramatics; and Mary Brewer and Patricia Thompson, assistants to the dean of women, will select the five finalists. Three prize winners will be selected.

Third Of Students Sign NSA Petition

About one third of the student body has signed the National Student Association's petition to the state legislature urging legalized absentee voting in Pennsylvania, William Klisanin, NSA chairman, announced last night.

The petition will be circulated at the boxing match at Recreation hall tomorrow night and will continue in circulation at dormitories, fraternities, and at the Student Union desk in Old Main until next week.

Blue Key To Honor 2 Coaches

Awards for 25 years of service to College athletics will be given to William Jeffrey and Charles Speidel by Blue Key, men's junior hat society, tomorrow night at Recreation hall.

The awards honoring Jeffrey, veteran soccer mentor who completed his 25th year in 1950, and Speidel, now coaching in his 25th season, will be made at 6:45, just before the boxing match with Wisconsin.

David Mutchler, president of the hat society, said that because of the group's close connection with campus sports, they chose to make the awards to the two veteran coaches.

The trophies are in the form of small silver table bowls, with a reproduction of the Blue Key insignia, and the following inscription: "To . . . (name) for 25 years of devoted service as coach of . . . (sport) at the Pennsylvania State College."

Blue Key also appointed the committee for their annual spring banquet at the meeting Tuesday night. Marvin Krasnansky, Donald Cook, and Jack Brown are members of the committee.

The revised constitution for the group was read over, but no action was taken because not enough members were present to constitute a quorum.

A special meeting of the society will be held Tuesday in 103 Willard hall at 7:30 p.m., Mutchler said.

Psi Chi Hears Child Specialist

Dr. J. W. Birch described the principles followed in giving advice to parents of feebleminded children in a talk before Psi Chi, psychology honorary, Wednesday night.

The director of special education for Pittsburgh schools said that he spends as much time in conference with parents as they wish. His first job is to impress parents of the adequacy of tests performed to determine if a child is feebleminded.

Next he sees that arrangements are made to care for the child, either in a private school or at home. He also tries to prevent them from having faith in fake cures.

Under regular business, Psi Chi voted to send representatives to a regional conference of Psi Chi at Brooklyn college March 29.

Fee Deadline Today

Today is the final day for payment of fees at the bursar's office in Willard hall.

The office will be open between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Late registration will cost $5.

Ringers Of Fire Alarms Are Warned

Student Tribunal issued a stern warning to the men in the West dorms last night who are responsible for the unnecessary ringing of fire alarms in their buildings.

The warning was made last night at the weekly meeting of the body. Dean of Men H. K. Wilson will back the group in any decisions it makes regarding anyone caught tampering with the alarms, according to Harry Cover, member of Tribunal.

Severe Punishment

Neil See, chairman, Ray Evert, Richard Schoenberger, Carlton Durling and Cover were unanimous in the sentiment that the persons guilty should be severely punished.

Cover said that the alarm boxes that were damaged would be repaired.

Lessen Temptation

He said he hoped that the action would make it more difficult to set them off and thereby lessen the temptation for the men.

Fines for parking in restricted areas were imposed and immediately suspended in three cases at the meeting.

Two men were found guilty of parking in the Old Main service area behind the building. The third was fined for parking on the grass near the service area for the Central Extension building.

Delivery Men, Visitors Allowed In Windcrest

Delivery men and visitors are not included in the new Windcrest area regulation which restricts traffic to residents of the trailer camp, a Windcrest council official said yesterday.

The council recently enacted the regulation to keep excess cars out of the area because of danger to children.

Seniors Will Vote On Finals Proposal

Success of the proposal to eliminate final examinations for seniors may well depend on the amount of student interest, John Erickson, senior class president, said yesterday.

Seniors will vote on the proposal and a plan to bring it before All-College cabinet at a class meeting next Tuesday in 119 Osmond laboratory at 7:30 p.m.

Erickson reported that the senior class committee which investigated final examinations felt that student interest at both the class meeting and at cabinet would be an important indication of sentiment to members of the College senate.

The senate, which must approve any changes in the final exam procedure, is scheduled to meet next Thursday. Approval by both the senior class and cabinet would be necessary early in the week, Erickson said.

The committee is not trying to abolish all finals for seniors, Erickson said. After studying several plans, he said, the committee felt that many seniors would want to take the exams in order to try to raise their grades.

The basic argument for elimination of finals is to

Art Forum To Do Play By Whelan

Peter Whelan, journalism junior, will have a one-act play, "Seattle Hunch," produced at the eighth annual Arts forum March 8 to 10 at Woman's college of the University of North Carolina.

Whelan's effort was chosen the best of three submitted to the forum by members of last semester's Dramatics 21 playwrighting class. Warren S. Smith, assistant professor of dramatics, is in charge of the course.

Student work of 23 other colleges will be represented. Poetry, short stories, plays, musical composition and performance, painting, sculpture, dancing, photography, and puppetry are included for forum consideration.

Hatmen and frosh, on their brightly painted rolling "horses," scramble for the defeated soccer ball in the midst of the "Dinky Polo Game" which the hatmen won 2 to 0 at Recreation hall Wednesday night.

The frosh wielded their mallets with gusto and one of them even pinned wrestling champion Homer Barr, but customs remained for the 61 newcomers. Had the frosh won the match, customs were to have been lifted immediately.

The battle between the black hats and the green dinks delighted a screaming crowd between halves of the Penn State-American university basketball game.
