

Council—

Sparks so that area residents could see the council in action. The suggestion was passed unanimously. The executive committee will decide the date for the meeting.

Simms announced that the resident advisers were to have a meeting some time this week with Miss Baker and other food department officials. He said the entire food situation would be discussed.

The council approved a semester social calendar submitted by Tomlinson, social chairman. The calendar calls for an informal record dance Saturday, a square dance March 10, a skating party March 16, record dances March 31 and April 13, a semi-formal dance April 20, a talent show April 27, and a square dance April 28.

Record Dance Planned
Also, a record dance May 4, a semi-formal dance May 19, a square dance May 25, and a hike and street dance May 26. Tomlinson announced card tournaments March 18, May 15, and May 29. He also announced an exchange dinner schedule. Dinners will be held between Tri-dorms and MacAllister March 4, McKee and MacAllister halls and Thompson and Atherton halls March 11, and Hamilton and Atherton halls March 18.

Edgerton--

to a hypothetical example such as a separate Negro republic within the United States.

Changes in the communistic attitude within Yugoslavia are evident, Edgerton said. First, they believe that every nation should work out its own destiny in a framework with other nations. Second, the Yugoslavs have a "lively and healthy" interest in maintaining contact with the rest of the world.

There is no iron curtain on the Yugoslav borders, Edgerton said. In the third instance, the Tito government is a strong supporter of the United Nations.

Edgerton believed that the people of Yugoslavia will back the Tito regime rather than accept the rule of Russia or return to their pre-World War II way of life.

The success of the Communists in Yugoslavia hinges directly on the fact that they came out of the war with a program for rebuilding the devastated country, he said.

Senior Class

the only effective means of education. We make our proposal due to the fact that the graduating senior is different from other students . . ."

Reasons Given

Brenner then recited the six reasons for the proposal:

1. Grades for graduating seniors being required in advance of those of other students, the seniors invariably have less time to take the exams.

2. Because of this tight schedule, "instructors cannot give as much consideration to the final examinations of seniors as he does to those of the non-graduating students."

3. Graduating students are making arrangements for graduation, clearing up personal affairs at the College, and closing up all ties at the College.

4. Graduating students are looking for jobs.

5. Many seniors take just enough courses to assure graduation. Some students are in doubt if they have passed or failed, and final examinations only delay knowledge of their standing.

6. Seniors have already proved their ability to do college work.

The letter pointed out that the College itself does not know who is graduating and who is not, as indicated by a lack of an official list of graduating seniors at commencement.

Pollock—

Nittany-Pollock councils, the council decided.

The council elected three new officers: vice president, Joseph Haines; secretary, William Walker; and treasurer, Walter Shadle.

In cooperation with the Nittany council, the Pollock council is sending a letter to the Student union requesting a paid operator to handle dinner music. At the present, students are providing the music.

The council voted in favor of giving keys to AIM representatives on the Board of governors in recognition of their service.

Joseph Errigo, chief resident dorm advisor, extended to the council an invitation from the Dean of Men to a coffee hour to discuss problems facing the councils.

President Leonard Tomazin appointed a fire marshal and members to three committees. On the food committee are George Horne and Donald Ludwig; public welfare, Richard Noon and John Smerke; Edward Prall and Wilfried Hirsch on publicity; and fire marshal, Earle McGill.

Be Happy- Go Lucky!

We students like a lift-to class
When we're too tired to hike
And what provides the biggest lift?
You bet! A Lucky Strike!
